WETS COMPARE WINE JUICE, BEER AND THE DRY ACT

Ask Why One Drink Is Legal, Other Not?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Holding aloft the advertisement of a California company which sells grape concentrates and promises to bottle the product in your home at the end of sixty days, Senator Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.], militant wet, challenged the senate today to say that this was not a violation of the 18th amendment.

The drys, he reminded the senate, permit such a manufacture of 20 per cent wine, but hold that the manufacture of four per cent beer is illegal and immoral. Satirically, he begged Senator Robert Howell [Neb.], radical Republican, author of the District of Columbia prohibition bill, to amend his measure so that the making of wine might be forbidden.

"O, yes," he exclaimed, "according to the drys, four per cent beer will make a man go home and beat his wife, but he can drink all the home made wine he wants and the next day go to church in prayer."

Reads Campaign's Ads.

He read from pamphlets put out by Fruit Industries, Ltd., a California cooperative which sells "Vine-Glo" in eight different varieties. Agents of the company bring the concentrate in a keg; water is added; and the resultant wine is bottled at the end of two months. The company states flatly that the process is within the law. Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement prosecutions, is counsel for Fruit Industries.

Senator Tydings maintained that the concentrate business was within the Volstead act, but insisted that it violated the expressed intention of the 18th admendment.

"I defy any senator to say that making wine in the cellar is not in contravention of the 18th amendment," he declared. "Do I hear an answer? No. Then I take it that the 18th amendment is being violated with the consent of the senate.

Has $20,000,000 U. S. Loan.

"Not only that, but this California company is being helped by a $20,000,000 loan from the federal farm board. In other words, $20,000,000 of the prohibitionists' money is being used to help wicked imbibers wiggle around the 18th amendment.

"It has come to the point where we have the constitution on the one hand and on the other a violation of it approved by the government and financed from the United States treasury. That is the sort of hypocrisy that exists under the dry law."

With sarcastic references to the sanctity of wine making in the home and the horrible crime of making four per cent beer, Senators Bingham [Rep., Conn.], Blaine [Wis.], insurgent Republican, and David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], three leading wets, helped Senator Tydings' cause along.

Blaine Is Sarcastic.

"You call making this wine illegal," said Senator Blaine in a shocked voice. "Why, how can it be when it has been approved by every government and temperance agency, including the President and the W. C. T. U.?"

Senator Hawes [Dem., Mo.] assisted by introducing an amendment to the Borah bill to make wire tapping by dry agents unlawful.

"If people who sell bottles and corks and such can be found guilty of conspiracy to violate the dry law," demanded Senator King [Dem., Utah], another wet, "why aren't congress and the farm board guilty of conspiracy for having furnished these grape growers with money."

"The whole thing goes to show our own congressional hypocrisy," declared Senator Tydings. "If it is right and moral to make twenty per cent wine, then it is right to make twenty per cent anything else, whether it's beer, whisky or gin."

$18,000,000 TAX PROTESTS RULED OUT BY JARECKI

Ends 4,500 Suits on 50,000 Properties.

County Judge Jarecki ruled yesterday that he has no jurisdiction to hear 4,500 tax objection cases, involving 50,000 parcels of Cook county real estate on which more than $18,000,000 in taxes was levied under the 1928 assessment. These taxes were due on July 10 of last year.

The ruling, which disposes of nearly one-third of the tax cases pending in court, was made on the grounds that the property owners had forfeited their right to a court hearing by their failure to file complaints with the board of assessors or board of review.

Many of the tax complaints charged that the 1928 assessments were fraudulently excessive. Others attacked the validity of the 1927 revaluation, on which the 1928 levy was based. At the time the mass of objections was filed taxing officials said they believed that many of the property owners had filed objections as a means of delaying temporarily the payment of their tax bills.

Have Full Term to Appeal.

After announcing his decision in regard to the 4,500 cases Judge Jarecki continued the hearing until Monday, the first day of the new court term, in order that attorneys for the taxpayers will have a full term in which to appeal the decision if they so desire.

Those who fail to appeal the ruling will be compelled to pay their taxes for 1928 or their bills will be sold to professional tax buyers. The judge said that he will now turn his attention to the remainder of the 11,724 tax cases which have been filed in the County court. These involve about 70,000 parcels of property, on which taxes of about $30,000,000 are due.

City and county officials regarded Judge Jarecki's decision as a step towards easing the present financial plight of the local government bodies. Further appeals were broadcast during the day for the adoption of measures which will effect a permanent cure of the collapsing revenue system.

Urge Support of Bill.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuation, urged support of house bill No. 28, pending in the legislature, which would abolish the present system of assessing taxes.

Addressing the luncheon meeting of the Association of Commerce in the Hotel La Salle, Col. Randolph declared that the credit of the local governments will be ruined unless something is done to simplify the assessing machinery.

"Our cash position is very bad," he said. "We find the several municipal governments preparing to borrow from special funds—trust funds—to meet current pay rolls and to place in those trusts in lieu of the money taken from them the canceled pay checks of municipal employés, in anticipation of authority to sell 1931 tax anticipation warrants to make good this illegal borrowing.

Tax Bills to Be Delayed.

"Authority to sell may be forthcoming in this exigency, but ability to sell is quite another matter. There is very little prospect that the tax bills for 1929, 1930 and 1931 will be issued before the respective penalty dates and the holders of tax anticipation warrants have very little assurance as to when the warrants will be paid.

"Bank funds must be liquid and saleable. No bank can freeze its assets by the purchase of paper that is payable only if, as, and when. The citizens' rescue committee headed by Silas Strawn came to the rescue last spring and straightened out the mess, but the rescue committee is through.

"Believing this to be true, your executive committe at a special meeting Tuesday approved house bill 28 providing for the appointment of a single assessor who shall have the sole responsibility for the levying of the general property tax and shall sit en blanc with two others as a member of a board of review that shall have no other duty than to pass upon complaints."

WOMAN SHOOTS BANDIT IN HOME; ROUTS HIS PALS

A woman routed three bandits who invaded her home last night when she unexpectedly produced a revolver and opened fire, shooting one through the head and chasing another under a bed.

She is Mrs. Ruth Pappas, 37 years old, 1214 West Harrison street. With her husband, John, and a roomer, Chris Kratchkas, she was sitting in the living room listening to the radio when the bandits entered. One, armed with two revolvers, covered the Pappases and Kratchkas, while the others began ransacking the house.

Mrs. Pappas slowly edged toward a shelf upon which lay a pistol. Seizing it, she opened fire. The bandit fell to the floor. Mrs. Pappas then ran into the bedroom, surprising the second bandit as he ransacked a bureau. He yelled and crawled under the bed, emerged from the far side, and dived through a window.

In the meantime, the third bandit, taking advantage of the excitement, had picked up the wounded man and fled with him, leaving a trail of blood. The Des Plaines street police notified all hospitals to be on watch for him.

Caraway Gives Critics Chance to Fight Him

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.] issued an invitation today for any persons aggrieved at remarks of his "to tell him privately" about their feelings.

"The other day I made a speech discussing the drought situation," he declared on the floor of the senate. "Two gentlemen became very much stirred up about it. I have been endeavoring to extend them an opportunity to tell me personally what they really think about it.

"They have declined to do it, or to afford me an opportunity to tell them privately what I think about them. I am now extending them this public invitation. At any time that is convenient for them it will be convenient for me to have them tell me privately what they want to say about that speech."

Cramton, Treadway Stirred Up.

The gentlemen who became stirred up were Representatives Cramton [Rep., Mich.] and Treadway [Rep., Mass.]. Senator Caraway charged that Representative Cramton, who is a lame duck, was fixing a soft spot for himself after March 4 on the Washington bi-centennial commission. With support from Representative Treadway, Representative Cramton declared yesterday that any one who made such charges was a "plain, unadulterated liar."

Reports that Caraway had telephoned Cramton offering to meet him "any time, anywhere," and that Treadway had telephoned Caraway much the same message, flew about during the day.

One report said Cramton hung up on Caraway when the latter called him by telephone to invite him to repeat face to face his lie direct charge.

Heard "Fiery Cussin' Words."

Cramton's comment about the telephone exchange was a laugh and a statement that Caraway had called him and that when he "shut him off" he heard something that sounded like "fiery cussin' words."

The Arkansas senator paid a visit to the house chamber. He walked in the middle aisle and looked around as if searching for some one. Cramton was sitting on the Republican side of the house, apparently oblivious of Caraway.

Mr. Caraway has been known to say it with fists before. Henry A. Wallerstein sued him, claiming the senator had landed left swings and short rights on his person after a difference on a street car. G. F. Clarke of New York alleged that in 1924 the senator swung on his nose after an automobile collision.

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Pals: I won $70 at the dog races the other night and lost four times that costly sum at the Hialeah race track the following afternoon, betting on dogs that were running under the alias of horses. The ones I bet on would have won the next race. Horses must have jockeys astride them, and maybe my jockeys had found something under their pillow the night before. Dogs are not ridden by anything but fleas and you can't bribe a flea. At least I have never been able to.

A. D. RODENBERG OF TAX BOARD IS FOUND DEAD

Albert D. Rodenberg, 60 years old, member of Gov. Emmerson's newly appointed tax commission, was found dead late last night in a room he had rented earlier in the day at the Great Northern hotel. Dr. Roland A. Jacobson, house physician, said death apparently was due to heart disease.

Mr. Rodenberg's home was in Centralia, but he started to practice law in Springfield recently when he resigned as an assistant attorney general. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. May Rodenberg; a daughter, Muriel, 22 years old, and a son, Arthur, 19. He was a brother of former Congressman Rodenberg of East St. Louis.

DRUG COMPANY HEAD AND WIFE ROBBED OF GEMS

Two armed bandits boarded the automobile of James Hirschfield of 7516 Eastlake terrace, president of the Royal Drug company, 403 East Illinois street, as it stopped for a traffic light at Birchwood avenue and Sheridan road last night and forced him to drive to Fargo avenue and Clark street. There a $1,000 diamond ring was stripped from Mrs. Hirschfield's hand and another ring valued at the same amount and $50 in cash were taken from Mr. Hirschfield. The Hirschfields were returning home from a loop theater.

Friends See Tragic Death of Bridegroom

Edward J. Powell, 38 years old, son of a wealthy Chicago widow, wrote finis to a four weeks' honeymoon by ending his life with poison last night in the presence of his mother and a party of friends in his suite at the Lake View apartment hotel, 2440 Lake View avenue.

His bride, the divorced wife of Morton H. Fox, Baltimore packer, was not present. They had separated last week at the Royal Poinciana hotel, Palm Beach, Fla., where they had spent the honeymoon. Mrs. Powell remained at the hotel and Mr. Powell boarded a train for Chicago, arriving here Monday.

They were married Jan. 1 in New York City. Relatives said last night the wedding came as a surprise to them, as Mr. Powell had always indicated he preferred bachelorhood after his experience in 1928, when after a brief courtship he married Miss Lavinia Ellis, a debutante of Hot Springs, Ark. The wedding was annulled a month later.

Tell of Death Tragedy.

Among the guests who were playing cards last night with Powell and his mother, Mrs. John Powell, were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gerlach, 3500 Sheridan road. Mrs. Gerlach is a daughter of Mrs. Powell. They said Edward had seemed in normal spirits until about 10:30 o'clock, when the conversation turned to paralysis, one of his friends having been recently stricken.

"I think I'm apt to die that way some day," he remarked. "I'd be better off dead." Then he arose from the card table and entered the bathroom. Returning in a few minutes, he walked unsteadily to the center of the room and said:

He fell to the floor. Mr. Gerlach summoned Dr. Gustav L. Kaufman, who resides at the hotel, and he pronounced Mr. Powell dead. The body was removed to an undertaking chapel at 1158 North Clark street.

Hunt Bride in Vain.

Efforts of the coroner's office to notify Mrs. Powell of the death proved futile. At the Royal Poinciana hotel at Palm Beach it was said she had checked out last Monday morning after breakfast, leaving no forwarding address. None of the members of her family knew her whereabouts. Her father, the Rev. J. W. Briscoe of Parkton, Md., thought she was still at the Florida hotel, as did her brother-in-law, Morris Weinbeck Jr. of Philadelphia.

Soon after the couple started on their honeymoon in January Mrs. Powell revealed that in November of 1930 she had been robbed of jewels valued at $75,000 while visiting here. She was a guest then at the home of J. Raymond Murphy, 6107 Kenmore avenue, a close friend of Mr. Powell. Chief of Detectives John Norton suppressed the report of the case at the request of Mr. Powell, who told him the then Mrs. Fox wished to avoid publicity. None of the jewels were ever recovered.

Beaten Daily, Wife Says; Divorce After 46 Years

After 46 years of married life, Mrs. Pauline Dotzauer, 3459 North Paulina street, yesterday obtained a divorce from Matthew Dotzauer, a grocer. The decree was granted by Superior Judge Desort on Mrs. Dotzauer's complaint that her husband beat her every morning before breakfast. The couple were married in 1885. They have four children.

G.O.P. GENERALS JOIN JUDGE IN BLAST AT CRIME

BY PARKE BROWN.

In his first speech to Republican county committeemen and other ward leaders who are backing him for the mayoralty nomination, Judge Lyle yesterday charged the Thompson administration with full responsibility for organized crime in Chicago.

"I lay at the door of the present administration," he said at the height of his talk in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle, "every murder committed by gangsters in the last twelve years."

This was the climax of a program in which one speaker after another assailed Thompson. George F. Harding repeated his charge that Thompson is no longer a Republican. County Chairman Snow said the defeat of Thompson would presage the rebirth of the Republican party in Chicago. Edward J. Brundage quoted from one of Thompson's own speeches placing the responsibility for crime on the man in the mayor's chair.

Barrett Lieutenant Speaks.

There were other speeches. President W. R. James of the west park board, Cook county Emmerson leader, said he was going all the way with Judge Lyle. Eden T. Brekke, second in command of the Barrett forces, said that no true Republican could afford to support Thompson.

W. L. Dawson said the nomination of Judge Lyle would be the beginning of the redemption of Chicago. Then Roscoe Conkling Simmons wound up the program by bringing peals of laughter at his discussion of Thompson's taking a donkey into the city hall.

Barrett Sends Telegram.

At the opening of the proceedings the chairman, John Leonard East, read a telegram from Charles V. Barrett sent from a sickbed to which he has been kept all week. "There is no truth to the story," Barrett's telegram said, denying newspaper reports that he had left the Lyle camp.

"As soon as my physician permits me to be out again," he closed the message, "I will again actively participate in the campaign."

Several of the speeches rang with denunciation of the character attacks made by Thompson upon Judge Lyle in innuendo in some of his speeches and by whisper through his city hall employés. In his noon speech of the day Thompson did not go so far as he did last Monday in this direction, and it is reported that, although he has refused advice from many sources, he had listened to warnings against that sort of campaign.

Judge Lyle Opens Fire.

The tone of indignation on this score marked Judge Lyle's own speech.

"The gangsters are gnashing their teeth and frothing at the mouth," he said. "They are stopping at nothing to defeat my election.

"They are using dastardly means to discredit my candidacy. They have prospered and perfected the organization, their criminal organization, under the present administration.

"They could not have lived in Chicago during the last twelve years and continued robbing, murdering, and blackmailing if it had not been for the connection between crime, money, and the present political administration of this city.

"Lyle or Lawlessness."

"The idea of 6,000 policemen, 98 judges, and nearly 2,000 bailiffs, clerks, and attachés of the court and law enforcement machinery not being able to suppress even the leading twenty-eight public enemies of this city is outrageous. It can only be charged to influence with this present city administration.

"The mayor of Chicago is all powerful in the appointment and removal of the chief of police and the civil service commission. The issue now between our organization and the city hall is squarely before the people. The outcome means 'Lyle or lawlessness.'

"Capone, Bugs Moran, Terry Druggan, Saltis, McErlane, and every other murdering gangster in this city are fighting against our success.

Asks Chance to Down Gangs.

"There are just two serious contenders in this fight, the present incumbent, who has had twelve years' trial, and myself; and I ask one term in which to show the citizens of Chicago that gangsters cannot live and carry on their criminal deeds if the mayor decrees it otherwise.

"Go out and tell the voters of your wards to pay no attention to the attacks of organized crime upon the person of your candidate. These criminals are hard pressed and you may expect them and their political allies to stop at nothing to save their existence.

"Wherever I go citizens assure me they will not be misled by the villainous, slanderous attacks and abuse that the criminals and their friends have made because of what I have done to them.

"I was never more determined in my life than I am now to win this fight. I want to win it to vindicate my good name and to vindicate that beautiful 16 year old daughter sitting back there."

East Opens the Meeting.

"If we have had any organization troubles," said Chairman East in opening the meeting with a reference to the Barrett defection story, "they have been because we have been growing too fast. They were growing pains, but in a few more days they will be all over."

Former County Treasurer Harding said that he wanted to put to rest for all time mistaken rumors about the cause of his break with Thompson. In detail he told how he broke with the mayor the moment of the Thompson indorsement of James Hamilton Lewis for United States senator last fall.

"When he sent for me and said he was for Lewis, I told him I was with Ruth Hanna McCormick, that I couldn't shake her hand and tell her so and then six months later stab her in the back. I told him that if he indorsed Lewis he would read himself out of the Republican party.

"I'm not for Thompson because he's not a Republican. I am for John Lyle because he is the best man in the race and is a good Republican. And I'm not a double crosser."

Snow Tells Rally Plans.

County Chairman Snow was called on to announce plans for the first big downtown Lyle meeting at the Apollo theater next Monday night. He said that Barrett would be one of the speakers.

"Such stories as the one about Barrett," Snow said, "are merely manufactured to discourage his friends in the campaign."

He said the issue in this campaign calls for no published platform because it "is in the hearts of the people of Chicago." Then he discussed the development of crime as an organization during the last ten years.

Hits "Character Assassination."

"These gunmen and gangsters," he said, "have already shown their hand in this campaign; have replied to the attack upon them. They have not attempted to assassinate the candidate, himself, but they have attempted to assassinate his character and his standing in the community.

"Those who live in filth deal in filth. Those who live in crime are as quick to assassinate character as they are to use the sawed-off shotgun. We have insisted that the people are interested in the great problems of the city and we shall not be turned from that determination by personal villification from the gangsters or by those who profit by their activities."

"No city can stand still," said Snow in closing. "It must either go forward or go backward. And this city is going forward under the administration of John Lyle."

Brundage Quotes Letter.

"The execrations of rascals are the glory of an unright man'," quoted Brundage in reference to the attacks on Judge Lyle, and then read from a Thompson speech of 1927, as follows:

"The people of Chicago demand an end of the present unprecedented and appalling reign of crime. . . . The chief cause of this condition is not at the bottom, not with the mass of the police department, but it is at the top with the powers, seen and unseen, which rule the force. . . . When I was mayor (1915-'23) I was held responsible for crime conditions, and properly so, and I accepted the responsibility without trying to shift it to the courts or other governmental bodies. . . . With practically the same men as are now in the police department I drove the crooks out of Chicago and will do so again if I am mayor."

Second Thompson Meeting.

Thompson's second loop meeting was only a fraction of the size of the organized meeting that blocked traffic on Dearborn street on Monday. The audience consisted almost entirely of city hall employés and curiosity seekers, many of whom followed the Thompson donkey, mule, and horse into the theater.

George K. Schmidt delivered the opening speech of his Republican mayoralty campaign before representatives of German-American societies at Prudential hall last night. He said he would clean up the police department and establish business methods in the city hall.

Robber Wounds Victim as He Hands Over His Purse

Charles Burda, 30 years old, 1957 South Spaulding avenue, was shot and seriously wounded last night by a Negro bandit who robbed him of $5. Burda was standing at 33d and State streets when accosted. He was shot in the stomach without warning after handing over his purse. At the county hospital physicians said his condition was critical.

School Burglary Suspect Seized; Find $4,000 Loot

Charged with robbing public schools of Chicago and taking fitments for reselling, John Malley, 38 years old, 3132 Wall street, was being held by the Deering police yesterday. Loot valued at $4,000 was found in his home, they said. Many articles were identified yesterday by principals of various schools.

Women Learn Politics to Aid Judge Lyle in His Campaign

During the three days that the women's division of Judge John H. Lyle's mayoral campaign headquarters in the La Salle hotel have been open for business, Mrs. Harriet M. Robertson, in charge of the division, has been busy giving a course in politics.

"Women who've never known a thing about politics are coming in, confiding that they're green but anxious to join our women volunteer workers for Judge Lyle," Mrs. Robertson said. "They know his record as a warrior against gangsters and crime, and they want to work for him and vote for him.

"We've had volunteers from all Republican factions, and we've had Democratic women volunteers, too, as well as women from various clubs and church organizations. They offered to do anything—precinct work, special organization, clerical work in the office and so on. Some of them even offered to do house to house canvassing, which is the hardest job there is in politics. Many women are calling in by telephone to tell us they are taking charge of the hotels they live in."

Associated with Mrs. Robertson at headquarters are Mrs. Harry Ed Smoot, who is treasurer of the Legislative Forum council, composed of nine women's organizations, and the recording secretary of the Illinois Republican Women's clubs; Mrs. May M. Brown, long affiliated with business and professional women's groups and a member of the board of the Republican Business Women's clubs; and Mrs. Pearle D. Crenshaw, known in state organization work.

"Those women who know politics are not affected," continued Mrs. Robertson, "by this 'whispering campaign' directed against Judge Lyle. It was to be expected, considering the forces opposing him. It can only affect those ignorant of cheap political methods. I hope no intelligent woman will allow this insidious propaganda to deflect her from the aim of cleaning up the city hall.

"Among the many women who have come to our headquarters to register are several neighbors of Judge Lyle. They are among his most staunch supporters."

Mrs. Robertson, who attended the conference of Republican county committeemen and other ward leaders backing Judge Lyle held yesterday in the La Salle hotel, said that among the most interested persons at the parley was Judge Lyle's daughter, Jane, who is 16 years old and a student at the University high school.

Price of Shaves Cut from 35 to 25 Cents

The price of barber shop shaves was reduced yesterday from 35 cents to 25 cents by a vote of the Master Barbers' association. The cut is the result of an argument advanced by members that an increase in shaves would more than balance the loss in profit on each individual shave. The price for haircuts is 75 cents throughout the week. The barbers have been charging 85 cents for Saturday haircuts.

ENGINEER DIES AT WORK.

Frank J. Lynch, 45 years old, 3306 West 66th place, for many years a locomotive engineer for the Illinois Central railroad, died of heart disease yesterday while working on his engine in the Randolph street yards.

103 WITHDRAW FROM RACE FOR COUNCIL SEATS

Election Board Expected to Cut List Further.

With the arrival of the time limit for voluntary withdrawals from the aldermanic campaign at midnight last night, 103 candidates in the huge field of 432 had abandoned the race by filing their withdrawal notices with the board of election commissioners.

It is expected that the crowded field will be still further reduced by the end of this week when the election commissioners announce their decisions on the protests against many of the remaining candidates.

Three Quit in Fortieth Ward.

Three candidates in the Fortieth ward race quit, leaving Ald. Joseph C. Ross with only one opponent, a woman, in his campaign for reëlection, Paula Milgrom, a communist, is the woman.

Ald. Sheldon W. Govier, in the Ninth ward, and Ald. William A. Rowan, in the Tenth, have only one opponent each as a result of withdrawals. Joseph N. Casello, a clerk employed by the Nickel Plate railroad, quit the race in the Tenth ward and Albert V. Becker withdrew in the Ninth.

Six of the nine candidates who had entered the Forty-third ward race for the council seat to be vacated by Ald. Arthur F. Albert, candidate for the Republican mayoral nomination, withdrew, leaving the fight to James B. Waller, the Deneen-Albert candidate, Mathias A. Wagner, a Democrat, and Charles G. Burmeister, the Thompson candidate.

In the Forty-fifth ward, six of the nine candidates quit the race, leaving the field to Leo M. Brieske, former member of the council, Al Mieschke Jr., an independent candidate, and Ald. William H. Feigenbutz, Thompson candidate.

Fights for Reëlection.

Withdrawals narrowed the field in the Forty-seventh ward, where Ald. John J. Hoellen is seeking reëlection. Hoellen, formerly identified with the city administration forces, declined to support Thompson for reëlection and announced that he would support Judge John H. Lyle. As a result, Thompson's candidate against Hoellen, Charles J. Sachs, withdrew to throw his strength to M. J. Schmidt, the Democratic candidate, in an effort to defeat Ald. Hoellen.

Thomas Daniel Collins, hotel man, active in near north side community affairs, was one of three who withdrew from the 42d ward race, where Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe is a candidate for reëlection, with four rivals still in the field.

The 33d Ward Improvement club at 1748 West North avenue was damaged early yesterday by vandals who threw bricks through the front windows. The club is the headquarters of Ald. George M. Rozczynialski in his campaign for reëlection.

Young Suggests Compromise on Cashing Veterans' Bonus

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Owen D. Young, whose name figures prominently as a Democratic presidential possibility, before the house ways and means committee this afternoon opposed the plan for immediate retirement of bonus certificates held by world war veterans, but suggested as a compromise that an increase in loans on the certificates to cost from 300 to 500 million dollars should be granted.

Outside the hearing rooms, Mr. Young, in response to inquiries, insisted that he has no ambition to become his party's presidential nominee.

Has No Presidential Bug.

"I am not in politics and any one who prevents me from receiving the nomination for President will be doing me a favor," said Mr. Young. "Not that I think that I am in the least danger. I am not a candidate."

Mr. Young concurred in Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's opposition to the floating of a three and one-half billion dollar bond issue for the immediate retirement of bonus certificates. Others who appeared before the ways and means committee today in opposition to a large bond issue included Rome C. Stephenson of South Bend, Ind., president of the American Bankers association, and George E. Roberts of the National City Bank of New York.

The declaration by Mr. Young in favor of an increase in the borrowing privileges, which, at present, are limited to 22 per cent of the face value of the bonus certificates, was regarded as giving substantial impetus to a compromise of this character.

Fears Economic Results.

"I do not believe that we can pay 3½ billion in cash without such serious risks to our economic situation as to make it unwarrantable," said Mr. Young. "I have grave doubts as to whether such an issue of bonds could be sold. We have had no experience with bond sales in peace times of such a staggering sum.

"The effect of this bond issue would be to divert our accumulated savings into channels of current consumption. That would give a stimulus to the market for consumption of goods, but, being relatively small in amount when applied to our total purchases, and being temporary and artificial in character, I fear that we should be worse off than when we began.

For Some Aid to Veterans.

"Well, what can we do? I, for one, am not content to do nothing. It would seem on any reasonable calculation certainly that no more than one-fourth or, at the most, one-third of the total number of veterans need cash now to relieve actual distress. If that be true, the government might advance to those who are in need a substantial percentage of the face value of their certificates over and above any loans which may have been made on the certificates under the authorization of existing law. The amount of such payments would probably be not less than 300 million dollars and not more than 500 millions. Such sums, but not more, it seems to me, the government might provide. If a smaller sum will relieve distress, so much the better for the country economically and for the veterans themselves."

Mr. Young suggested that the limit of loans might be made from 40 to 50 per cent of the full value of the certificates over and above any loans already made. He also proposed that such loans should be made only on a certification showing actual need.

LEO V. BROTHERS' ATTORNEYS SEEK CHANGE OF VENUE

Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court on Tuesday denied several motions made by attorneys representing Leo V. Brothers, who is under indictment for the murder of Alfred Lingle. Among these were motions to force the state to supply the defense with the names of additional state witnesses and to exclude certain assistant prosecutors from the trial.

The defense attorneys yesterday decided that they do not want Judge Prystalski to preside over the Brothers trial, which is scheduled to start early in March. A petition for a change of venue on the ground of prejudice was filed yesterday and will be heard today. The petition also asked that Judge Philip Finnegan be precluded from acting in the case.

TAKES TAXI TO LAKE AND ENDS LIFE IN WATER

A well dressed, unidentified man, about 35 years old, left the driver of the cab in which he rode to the 59th street pier waiting for his fare last night while he committed suicide by diving head first into the lake. The driver, Walter McCabe of 545 East 46th place, notified the Jackson park coast guards, who recovered the body. The man weighed about 250 pounds. The only mark of identification on his clothing was the monogram "M. C. L."

ESCAPED BOYS ARE CAUGHT.

Halted for speeding yesterday, 17 year old Howard Yaeger and 16 year old George Lawrence, both of Milwaukee, were found to have escaped from the Wisconsin Industrial School for Boys at Waukesha, in a stolen automobile.

ROBT. S. STURGIS OF LAKE FOREST SUED BY WIFE

She Charges Desertion in Divorce Bill.

A suit for divorce, charging desertion was filed in the Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan yesterday by Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond Sturgis, against her husband, Robert S. Sturgis, manager of the Savage Products Distributing company at 63 West Jackson boulevard.

The Sturgises are members of the Lake Forest social colony. They were married at Norwalk, Conn., on April 16, 1921. The divorce bill charges that Sturgis deserted his wife on Jan. 14, 1929. Mrs. Sturgis asks the custody of the two children, Harriet Hammond Sturgis, 8 years old, and Robert S. Sturgis, 6.

Mrs. Sturgis is a daughter of Mrs. James Young Hammond of Norwalk and a niece of Cyrus Hall McCormick of Chicago. Sturgis is a son of Charles I. Sturgis, vice president and secretary-treasurer of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad. The Sturgis home is at 504 North Oakwood avenue, Lake Forest.

The Sturgis wedding in 1921 was an elaborate affair, attended by 1,000 people coming from all parts of the United States and from Cuba. Mrs. Sturgis is well known as a horsewoman.

The suit will be heard before Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady at the March term of the Lake county Circuit court.

EVACUATE CITY RUINED IN QUAKE TO CURB DISEASE

BULLETIN.

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 4.—A sharp earth tremor was here tonight at 9:36 o'clock. Damage was reported.

NAPIER, New Zealand, Feb. 5. [Thursday.]—(AP)—While Red Cross officials tonight counted the dead in Tuesday's earthquakes at conservatively more than 1,000, new shocks were felt in this region and heightened the alarm of those who survived the earlier quakes.

The fresh tremors crumpled many buildings which had been weakened by the first shocks and increased the likelihood of fresh fires joining the flames now raging in the streets of this once beautiful seaport.

Officials feared the number of dead would go above even the latest estimate, for tons of debris have not yet been explored. More than 1,000 persons, many severely injured, have been treated and there is a probability that many more were hurt in the region affected.

Plan to Evacuate City.

All efforts were spent today in rescuing the injured, searching the ruins for still living victims, and preparations for a general evacuation of the city before disease can follow in the footsteps of the disaster. The city has been ordered evacuated within two days. Arrangements already have been made to evacuate 5,000 women and children to Palmerston, north of Napier. A steamship Taranaki sailed for Auckland last night with refugees.

The expression "wiped from the map" may be used advisedly, for not only have the man made structures of Napier been razed but the actual topography has been changed so that existing maps fail to describe with any accuracy whatsoever the coast line, harbor, and inland contours.

Bluff hill and other high promontories were tossed by the mighty forces of the earthquake into the sea, and the floor of which has so risen that even small boats cannot enter the harbor. The seafront itself has receded from 100 feet from the famous Marine Parade.

Inhabitants Lose All.

There was a sad stir and bustle early today when authorities prepared for evacuation of the city to save the population from disease which would result from the wrecked water and sanitation systems.

The inhabitants had little to do to prepare for leaving, however, as in most cases all they had in the world was destroyed when their homes collapsed and fire spread through the ruins.

But all wanted to make a last visit to their ravaged homes and perform a final search in the débris for some trace of their loved ones. There were similar scenes in half a dozen other towns of the province, especially Hastings, a populous little plains town.

Both Hastings and Napier were scenes of terrific wreckage, and while Napier fires still burned unchecked today, although explosives had been ordered to blast lanes through the tumbled mass of wood and masonry under which lie crushed no one knows how many bodies of men, women and children.

Relief workers who arrived here were told by the survivors horrible tales of panic as the first shock rocked the city. Clerks and shoppers were killed in the stores, nurses and patients in the hospital, and women in the homes.

Death was everywhere, and for a moment it seemed that all were dead. But today perfect order was restored, tained in the shattered town, the injured were being cared for in improvised medical stations, and the greatest among the homeless were given such comforts as were possible.

People Seem Dazed.

The population, in reaction from the hysteria of the first hours of disaster, seemed dazed and almost mute amid the ruins of the city.

One tale, which was typical of the harrowing scenes, was of the death of Mrs. Tom Barry. She was attending communion service in St. Paul's cathedral when the first shock brought the building down and she was pinned to the floor by a beam. Her husband and others tried to free her, but to no avail. Fire crept toward her and realizing there was no hope, a physician administered a drug. She died, but without pain.

The cathedral grounds presented a strange sight after the quake. The structure itself fell, with all the monuments in it except a war memorial cross, which remained standing on a tall shaft.

A great death toll was claimed at Napier Technical college. At least 100 boys and girls were killed when the building collapsed. Several boys, turning to save a group of the girls, were crushed when a subsequent quake tumbled the walls.

Inhabitants Lose All.

There was a sad stir and bustle early today when authorities prepared for evacuation of the city to save the population from disease which would result from the wrecked water and sanitation systems.

The inhabitants had little to do to prepare for leaving, however, as in most cases all they had in the world was destroyed when their homes collapsed and fire spread through the ruins.

The death roll at the nurses' home of the Napier hospital was placed unofficially at 22. Night nurses were sleeping and few escaped. Of those who did, many were severely injured.

Armed marines were brought ashore from the warships and patrolled the streets to prevent looting, isolated cases of which had been reported.

Eyewitness Tells Story.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 4.—(AP)—E. C. Weston, manager of the Christchurch company, who was in a department store at Hastings when the earthquake struck, told of the disaster when he reached here today.

"I had just completed my business in the store," he said, "when I felt the preliminary tremors. A young girl clerk ran into my arms and I tried to pacify her, telling her it would all be over in a second.

"A heavy shock came on the heels of the first movement and a great steel pillar fell across the girl's body, crushing her against the counter. She screamed, but the pillar was so heavy that I could not budge her and she was dead in a moment."

HOW QUAKE FELT ABOARD SHIP TOLD BY COMMANDER

BY COMMANDER H. L. MORGAN.
[Commander of his majesty's sloop Veronica]
As told to
[Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.]

NAPIER, N. Z., Feb. 5. [Thursday]—(AP)—It was a terrible experience!

We arrived at Napier early Tuesday morning and I was just leaving my cabin to pay the usual shore calls when I heard a terrific roar. The ship tossed about for about 10 seconds. I stood still, then ran onto the boat deck. I could see houses falling and roads cracking. Then everything seemed to disappear in clouds of dust.

Another terrific quake occurred. The stern wires of the ship gave way, but we managed to pull alongside the wharf. I immediately realized conditions were serious, and started to make arrangements for relief of the people ashore.

The first shock lasted about three minutes and was so severe as to make one an apparent heavy casualty list. As a result of the quake the bed of the ocean rose several feet and in the inner harbor, where the Veronica was berthed, the ship grounded hard and fast. She floated off, however, when the ocean bed subsided. The waterfront along the marine parade was extensively damaged, the land having risen ten feet.

For some time the tremors followed one another in quick succession, and it was not long before flames broke out. Fanned by a strong breeze from the sea, fires spread rapidly, rendering practically impossible the work of rescuing people trapped inside fallen buildings.

The task of the fire brigade was almost hopeless owing to the destruction of pumping stations and water mains. But the men stuck manfully to their work and splendid deeds of heroism passed unnoticed throughout the day.

3D DAY OF RAIN FLOODS STREETS IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—While an all-day rain flooded streets of Los Angeles and surrounding towns, turning streets into rivers and Hollywood hillside sections into waterfalls, a gale inundated oceanside sections and demoralized traffic. It was the third day of the storm.

Battering seas pounded upon the shoreside highway to Santa Barbara. Authorities closed the road. Damage to Santa Barbara's harbor and business buildings was estimated at $150,000. A number of cabins and small cottages were floated to sea north of Santa Monica. Surf whipped inland inundated streets of Hermosa Beach, Playa Del Rey and Manhattan Beach, and flooded portions of streets at Santa Monica, San Pedro, Wilmington and Long Beach.

Traffic in sections of Hollywood was stopped when water accumulated to depths of two and three feet, bit chunks out of paved streets and rolled down bowlders and miniature landslides. Six storm injuries were reported. Property damage exceeded $500,000.

EX-MAYOR DUVALL OF INDIANAPOLIS IN JAIL FOR 30 DAYS

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—John L. Duvall, former mayor of Indianapolis, went to the county jail tonight to serve a thirty day sentence for violating the corrupt practice act.

JOHN DUVALL.
[(C) Bachrach.]

The misdemeanor occurred when he was a candidate for mayor in 1925, it being alleged that he had promised to permit William H. Armitage, a Republican politician, to name two members of the board of works, which has charge of the awarding of city contracts, in event of his election. Duvall, a Republican, was elected with Klu Klux Klan support.

"I have no abili to offer," Duvall said in a formal statement. "My friends don't need it and my enemies wouldn't believe it. I shall serve my sentence and will neither ask nor expect any consideration other than that accorded any other prisoner."

Duvall was convicted by a jury in Criminal court Oct. 12, 1927, sentenced to jail, fined $1,000, and declared ineligible to hold public office for four years. He appealed to the Supreme court, but, under an act of the legislature in 1929, final jurisdiction in misdemeanor cases was transferred to the Indiana Appellate court.

The Appellate court affirmed the conviction a few days ago. Following his conviction Duvall resigned and the city council elected L. Ert Slack, a Democrat, to succeed him.

TORTURE 'JOKERS' SEIZED; VICTIM IS IN COLLAPSE

"Burial Alive" Called Fun by Seven Prisoners.

The seven loafers who early yesterday beat and tortured and attempted to bury alive George Wittbrod, a crippled salesman, last night were charged with assault and kidnaping and were taken to the bureau of identification for examination.

Meanwhile Wittbrod, suffering from the cruelties of the hoodlum band, was in a state of collapse at the Alexian Brothers' hospital. Earlier in the day he had identified his assailants at the Town Hall station. The police believe they have apprehended the whole gang with the exception of Marty Murray, owner of the car in which they hauled their victims to the St. Nicholas cemetery. They were searching for him last night.

"All in Fun," Hoodlums Claim.

"Aw, it was all in fun," the gang said during the police grilling. "It was just a joke."

Some of their number, however, admitted: "Well, we didn't like Wittbrod. He talks too much. But we didn't mean any harm—you know, just a little scare we thought he had coming to him."

After identifying the prisoners and describing the horrors of his ordeal to the police Wittbrod collapsed.

Wittbrod, during moments of consciousness on his hospital bed, recounted his harrowing experience in the hands of the young hoodlums. Wittbrod said he was kidnaped as he stepped from a poolroom at Lincoln and Belmont avenues. The seven jumped out of the darkness, slugged him, clapped a sack over his head and drove him off to the cemetery, he said.

"We've been looking for this chance for a long time—now you're going to die," Wittbrod quoted his assailants as saying as they strung him up by the wrists on a large marble cross standing on a monument over a grave. They pelted him with clods of dirt and, when he wrenched one hand free, cut him down and tossed him into a wooden coffin or rough box, he said.

Close Coffin, Then Fire It.

"They set fire to the straw in the box and then nailed the lid down," he said. "By working my feet around I managed to put out the fire. Then they tossed the box into a small open grave, but it was too small. The box stood on end and for some time I remained with my head down in the box. Then they tied the coffin to their auto, dragged it about 500 yards, tossed me into the ditch and drove away."

The youths when brought into the Town Hall station gave their names as Albert Ehmann, 20, 1923 Barry avenue; George Schimmel, 19, 2215 Fletcher street; Joseph Klopp, 19, 3114 North Ashland avenue; Michael Kahn, 19, 1727 Newport avenue; Fred Clost, 21, 1831 Barry avenue; Richard Morawz, 21, 2655 Ainslie street, and William Meddy, 21, 1729 Fletcher street.

Kahn and Meddy, the police said, were arrested last June on charges of disorderly conduct and each was fined $100 but was placed on probation by Judge Francis B. Allegretti in Boys' court. All seven will be arraigned in that court today.

THREE FAKE DRYS GET 8 YEARS FOR SHAKEDOWN PLOT

Nefarious Practice, Says U. S. Judge.

The racket of posing as prohibition agents to shake down bootleggers was denounced as "nefarious" and "outrageous" yesterday by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, who sentenced three convicted extortionists to eight years each in Leavenworth prison and fined them $2,000 each.

After a jury had found the defendants guilty, Judge Lindley constituted himself an examining magistrate and held the three victims of the extortion plot to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 each on charges of perjury as a result of their uncertain identifications.

Three Pose as Dry Raiders.

Philip Oliver, proprietor of a cigar store at Streator, who is alleged to have done a little bootlegging on the side; his brother, James, and his brother-in-law, Joseph Persong, according to testimony in the case, were held up with a gun by Ralph Scalia, Fred Vannuca, and Thomas Walsh of Chicago. The impersonators flashed badges, searched the cigar store, and found a few pints of booze.

Then Philip Oliver, according to a statement he made to Chicago detectives, promised the supposed dry agents $50.

"We're federal men and we don't want copper dough," the extortionists were reported to have said. At first they demanded $3,000, but later compromised on $1,500, of which $600 was paid in cash. A rendezvous was arranged at 35th street and Union avenue, where the fake dry agents were arrested by Chicago policemen who had been informed by Oliver.

Hesitate at Identifications.

The shakedown victims were not called to the stand by Assistant United States Attorney Henry Balaban, who refused to be bound by their testimony, but when called as court witnesses they said the defendants looked like the impersonators, but that they could be mistaken.

Affidavits made by the victims to the police, positively identifying the defendants, were introduced. Judge Lindley gave the dry impersonators the maximum on two counts each of impersonating government officers and one count each of conspiracy to impersonate government officers.

"This is a nefarious crime and when I have the opportunity I shall do everything I can to stop such outrageous practices," said the judge in pronouncing sentence.

HOLD UP RIVIERA THEATER IN VIEW OF STREET CROWD

In view of hundreds of pedestrians and motorists, a flashily dressed Negro at 10 o'clock last night held up the Riviera theater, 4746 North Racine avenue. It is at the intersection of Broadway and Lawrence avenue, one of the uptown district's busiest corners.

The second and last show had just started. A dozen persons were standing about the lobby. Miss Norma Squire, 539 Aldine place, the cashier, was counting the receipts when the robber walked up to the cage and said:

"Hand over the cash, or I'll kill you."

He displayed no weapon, but as Miss Squire hesitated, he reached under his coat, and she quickly pushed a bundle of bills through the window. The total amount was between $300 and $500, she told the police. The Negro thrust the money in a side pocket of his overcoat and strode away. He was joined by another Negro as he reached the sidewalk, Miss Squire said. The two disappeared before she could summon assistance.

JURORS DEMAND FACTS, NOT GAB, IN GRAFT QUIZ

Assured of Funds to Pay Expense of Inquiry.

The special grand jury impaneled a month ago to investigate the Chicago police department yesterday called for specific evidence of police graft and corruption. In a statement addressed to the citizens of Cook county the jurors declared they are ready to carry the inquiry all the way to indictments if they receive information that warrants it.

So far, the statement said, the charges the jury has heard have been based on hearsay and suspicion, without a particle of evidence on which indictments might be voted.

In case citizens are unable to supply the desired evidence, the jurors said, they will gather their own facts if they receive proper financial backing. This point was settled later in the day when President Cermak of the county board appeared before the jurors and told them that funds to prosecute the investigation were assured. He said the bills of the jury's investigators would be paid when presented to the county, and that the county commissioners had promised to approve a $50,000 appropriation for the inquiry when the county budget is adopted later this month.

The Jury's Statement.

"If the members of the grand jury," said the jurors' statement, "have correctly read the press of Chicago, a great many so-called reform organizations have both publicly and privately criticized the police department and almost all other public officials and have caused to be published speeches calculated to arouse the public to a sense of impending calamity and disaster, and, the proper setting having been arranged, staged drives for funds with which to investigate conditions and stamp out crime.

"A most worthy object, surely, and one to which thousands of leading citizens have contributed liberally of time and money. Assuming that these public spirited citizens have displayed the same sagacity and acumen in their drives against crime that has made them outstandingly successful in their various lines of endeavor, we looked forward to an overwhelming mass of concrete evidence upon which indictments might be based and the guilty brought to trial immediately, or surely some leads which might develop evidence upon investigation.

No Evidence, Jury Says.

"But up to date not one single particle of concrete evidence has been submitted from any of the organizations ostensibly interested in the suppression of crime upon which an indictment could be predicated.

"So-called surveys of the police department, prepared at no little expense, have revealed the fact (long since known to every school child in the city) that speakeasies and handbooks are operating, but up to date not one witness has been willing to swear on his oath that any connection exists between the police and the proprietors of outlawed business.

"Suspicions, surveys, veiled allusions, hearsay without end, and general pictures of the situation based on more hearsay, have been readily forthcoming from a hundred sources.

"Is it asking too much of these organizations to produce before this body any and all tangible proof they may have in their possession?"

Yarrow Replies to Jury.

One of the first statements to be issued in reply to the grand jurors came from the Rev. Philip Yarrow, head of the Illinois Vigilance association. He declared former Police Commissioner Russell had closed the resorts and that Acting Commissioner Alcock had done even more. His statement follows:

"Three years ago I asked the city council to appoint a special commission to investigate the police department. At that time I had evidence of malfeasance and corruption.

"Commissioner Russell closed up most of the gambling houses and syndicated vice dens. Commissioner Alcock has shut the town up even tighter."

Charles E. Miner, superintendent of the Committee of Fifteen, said:

"We have received charges against policemen or supposed policemen in cases within the last three weeks. In each case we investigated we found either that a man had represented himself falsely to be a policeman or that the policeman was doing his duty in making an investigation. Whenever we find anything reflecting on a policeman we forward the facts to the commissioner."

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, chairman of the Chicago Association of Commerce and organizer of its "Secret Six" committee, issued the following statement:

"I do not recognize the grand jury's statement as any criticism of the citizens' committee for the prevention and punishment of crime of the Chicago Association of Commerce. It is not a reform organization. It was organized at the suggestion and on the request of the state's attorney for the specific purpose of building up a real secret service to get the kind of evidence he said he wanted to secure convictions.

"We have done that thing and we supplied that service to the state's attorney and the United States district attorney."

G. L. Hostetter, executive director of the Employers' association, proposed that, in view of the grand jury's statement, a conference be called of the representatives of all the organizations interested in stamping out crime. Out of such a meeting, he said, he believed a definite relationship might be established between the grand jury and the organizations, whereby something might be accomplished.

No response came from the Crime Commission, officials of which consider their groups as not a reform organization, but rather a fact finding and observing body.

Maj. Thomas E. Crockett was a witness before the grand jury, supplementing the previous testimony of Albert R. Brunker, head of the civic safety committee, who referred to Crockett as the source of much of his purported information on crime conditions. Maj. Crockett was reported to have told the jurors he obtained his information from Sergt. Richard Williams, who formerly aided him and Brunker.

Loses $2,000 in Jewels

Attorney Harry X. Cole, 640 North Wabash avenue, and Miss Evelyn McCormack, 621 Cornelia avenue, sitting in an automobile in front of Miss McCormack's home early yesterday, were held up by two bandits, who took $150 in cash from Mr. Cole and $2,000 worth of jewelry from Miss McCormack.

GIRL IN POLICE INQUIRY FOUND; TELLS OF BEATING

Held in Cell for Three Days, She Asserts.

Miss Pearl Heller, whose experiences in Chicago last June brought about a recommendation by the special grand jury for the suspension of Police Captain Joseph Palczynski of the West Chicago avenue station, was interviewed yesterday at her home in Wausau, Wis., and she said she would not come here to press charges against any one. Acting Police Commissioner Alcock is to make an investigation this morning before deciding what to do in the case of Capt. Palczynski.

Miss Heller in one statement denied she had been criminally assaulted by the three men who were arrested on a charge of rape, which was later changed to disorderly conduct. In another statement she said: "Maybe I was after I became unconscious."

Girl Tells Her Story.

"Steve Piaszak and I were to be married and we went to Chicago to buy some furniture," said Miss Heller. "While he went into a barber shop I was pricing some second hand articles when I was seized and taken into a vacant apartment by three men. I fought with them, but they beat me into insensibility."

She exhibited a scar near the left eye and another on her lower lip.

"I do not remember what happened," she continued, "but I know I was in a hospital for a couple of days, and then I was taken to a jail, where I was kept locked up for three days. My intended husband finally obtained my release by giving a lawyer, whose first name was Jerry, $25 to get me out on bond. We postponed the wedding and I came home."

Miss Heller said she learned from Piaszak that her screams finally brought policemen, who found her in an apartment in which the lights had been turned out. Piaszak was attracted there by the police and learned what had happened to her, she recalled. She said he told her the three men were not caught at the time, but that through his help they were arrested later and were beaten by the police.

"Won't Come to Chicago."

"I don't know anything about $3,000 having been paid to the police to release the men who beat me," Miss Heller said. "But I wouldn't go back to Chicago to testify against any one, because the police treated me badly."

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, in charge of the investigation of the police, said he had the records of the county hospital which showed Miss Heller had been ravished.

The men first accused of rape and then of disorderly conduct, on which charge there was no prosecution, gave the names of Constantine Benortowski, Sigmund Cielinski, and John Dubinski. Mr. Mueller said he had not yet found them.

M'GURN GRANTED JURY TRIAL IN VAGRANCY CASE

Jack (Machine Gun) McGurn, who only recently escaped a bridewell sentence through a Supreme court reversal of a conviction for gun toting, is not ready to stand trial as a vagrant, he announced yesterday when arraigned before Judge Frank M. Padden in the Felony court. He is held under the warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle.

Attorney James McDermott tried to get a dismissal on a technicality—the absence from court of Policeman Roy Van Herik, who swore to the vagrancy warrant—and when unsuccessful asked for a jury trial and the necessary continuance. His request was granted.

"A gentleman so called—Mr. Lyle—signed these warrants," Attorney McDermott started to argue to Judge Padden.

"Judge Lyle is a judge of this court and you see that you address him properly," Judge Padden said to the attorney.

Vagrancy cases against four other reputed hoodlums were continued yesterday because the prosecutors were busy elsewhere. Maxie Eisen, "the fish peddler," got a continuance to March 20 when he said he was superstitious and did not want to go to trial on March 13. Hymie (Loud Mouth) Levine's case was set for Feb. 13. Sammy Jacobson's for March 25, and that of Claude Maddox to April 29.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

WARNING

A Vicious Deception May Be Attempted Against You

When You Ask for Genuine Bayer Aspirin at a Store, Scrutinize the Box Carefully . . . The Well-Being of Yourself and Yours is at stake

THIS warning is published to combat a vicious deception that may be attempted against those who seek Genuine Bayer Aspirin for pain in this district.

We publish it as a duty to ourselves and to you. To protect the well-being of your family and yourself from its possibly cruel results.

Unscrupulous or ignorant persons, we are told, are offering the public preparations of questionable origin—masquerading in packages purely imitative of Bayer Aspirin packages—as being "the same as Bayer Aspirin" or "like Bayer Aspirin" or as giving "the same results as Bayer Aspirin."

Watch Out and Take Care. Only genuine Bayer Aspirin can rightfully claim Bayer Aspirin results. Only Bayer Aspirin can fairly claim Bayer Aspirin's SAFETY to the heart. For only the makers of Bayer Aspirin know the laboratory tests it embodies.

Some of these imitations are patently spurious. Some may be vicious in their effects. One that we found in Brooklyn contained 50% of plain Talcum Powder! The maker of this spurious aspirin was sentenced to 3 years imprisonment by the New York Courts. The well-being of yourself and yours is at stake.

Remember that years ago doctors widely warned the public against "headache remedies" as dangerous to the heart. As heart depressants that were unsafe to take.

Then remember how genuine Bayer Aspirin came. And was acclaimed the world over by leading men of science as SAFE relief for pain; and prescribed without hesitancy by eminent physicians as relief that did not harm the heart. That did not cause heart depression. That acted with amazing rapidity, yet left no bad "after-effects."

What folly, in light of those things then, to dose yourself with drugs of which you know nothing. Drugs often made primarily to sell at shoddy prices. Made to imitate. Made sometimes solely to deceive. Don't gamble—KNOW. The health of yourself and those near to you is too precious for experiment.

Remember those things. Then when you ask for genuine Bayer Aspirin, see that you get it. Don't be misled for another's profit. Do that, if you must, only with preparations you use externally and not with those you take internally. Only Genuine Bayer Aspirin gives Bayer Aspirin results. Every box of Bayer Aspirin has the cross shown below—so has every tablet. Hence it's easy to identify. Watch out and take care. Our interest in this does not matter. But yours does.

HOOVER SPURNS COMPROMISE ON DROUGHT RELIEF

Expects Public to Back His Stand.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Col. Campbell Hodges, military aid to President Hoover, and Maj. O. S. Wood of the militia bureau in Washington, landed in an army plane here this afternoon to make a survey of drought conditions for the President and the war department.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover turned a deaf ear today to overtures for a compromise on the question of governmental appropriations for direct relief.

GEN. CAMPBELL HODGES.

The President, in talks with congressional leaders, insisted that there was basis for inferences by Democratic senators that his statement of yesterday had opened the door for a compromise.

As a concession to those who insist that the Red Cross cannot adequately meet all needs of sufferers from the drought and the depression, the President conveyed the intimation that if this proves to be the case he will call a special session to consider the question of government action.

Confident in Red Cross.

The President, however, remains confident that there will be no occasion for the government to invade the field of private relief, in which the Red Cross has heretofore been supreme.

The President also intends to continue to do everything in his power to avoid a special session, because of a fear of injurious effects on the business situation. His position on this point was upheld today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which made public communications from commercial and trade associations expressing the view that a special session would tend to retard business recovery.

In opposing any compromise, particularly with respect to the $25,000,000 relief appropriation voted by the senate and rejected by the house, the President indicated that an amendment making this or a smaller amount available only as a last resort would not be acceptable. Such a provision, he held, would be notice to the people of the country that if they failed to contribute to the Red Cross the government would furnish the money.

Sees No Need of Compromise.

It would, according to his view, destroy the Red Cross and individual initiative just as much as an outright appropriation for relief.

The President also is credited with having expressed the belief that the reaction to his position is favorable and that there is no occasion to compromise.

Early in the day the President conferred with Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader of the senate, and Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], assistant majority leader. Later he saw other senate and house leaders.

In spite of the President's attitude, conferences continued looking toward some sort of a compromise which will make it possible to avoid a special session.

It is understood to be the President's view at present that, even if some concession must be made, it would be futile to make it until the closing days of the session. The belief of many of his friends is that the Democrats are likely to weaken in their relief demands and that it will be possible to adjust matters satisfactorily in the last few days before March 4.

Send Aid to Arkansas.

It became known today that President Hoover has sent Col. Campbell Hodges, his chief military aid, to Arkansas to make a survey of the situation there. Col. Hodges left late yesterday by airplane. Capt. Lewis A. Pick, now stationed in Texas, who was one of Mr. Hoover's relief aids during the Mississippi flood disaster, will assist Col. Hodges. Their reports to the President will give him direct word as to actual needs in the most severely affected states of the drought area.

Protests against a special session of congress made public by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States included messages from the Chicago Board of Trade, the Gas Products association of Chicago, the Health and Accident Underwriters' conference, the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the Illinois Lumber and Material Dealers' association, the International Association of Blueprint and Allied Industries, the International Association of Milk Dealers, the Paper Board Industries' association and the Sales Book Manufacturer association, all with headquarters in Chicago.

"A special session of congress would be most disturbing to business," said a communication from the Chicago Board of Trade. "The legislative uncertainty in Washington is such that an extra session of congress would have a strong tendency to defer a marked improvement in business."

How City Streets Are Permitted to Decay

FINDS STREETS RUINED BY LACK OF REPAIR WORK

Holes Force Second Gear Driving in Spots.

Lack of repair work by the department of public works under Commissioner Richard W. Wolfe has left Chicago's streets almost impassable in widespread areas of the city. An inspection trip yesterday revealed that miles of pavements are ruined by chuckholes, seams and cracks, rough places and cavities left by utility company workmen.

During 1930 the department of public works spent approximately $6,000,000 from the city vehicle tax fund, which is supposed to be devoted to street repair work.

Motorists in Rogers Park, where the streets are notoriously bad, almost daily are breaking springs and exploding tires along the system of streets north of Loyola avenue west of Sheridan road. Greenview avenue between Morse and Estes avenues is a particularly good example of bad paving. Further north and west Pratt boulevard from Western to Ridge avenue is wrecked, as are nearly all the streets north of Pratt boulevard in that vicinity.

A tour through the Austin district on the west side showed the streets there in bad condition. On the south side in the neighborhood of 55th and Mozart streets the pavements are in ruins. For blocks drivers are compelled to slow down to eight or ten miles an hour in order to move safely. The same condition exists on Oglesby avenue north of 71st street.

Further south and southwest whole systems of streets are full of holes so deep in places that second gear driving is necessary.

With the exception of the boulevards, a large part of them kept up by the park boards, the winter has left the through streets as well as the side streets full of rough places and in need of repairs. Street car track thoroughfares such as Archer avenue, Grand avenue, Milwaukee avenue, and Clark street are all rough outside the car tracks, which in many stretches provide the motorist with his only passageway.

Although the vehicle tax fund, paid into the city treasury annually for automobile license fees, is presumed to be reserved for street repairs, $300,000 of the fund was appropriated in the 1931 city budget for safety islands and loading zones.

2 Reconfirmed, 1 Rejected for Power Board by Senate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The Democratic-radical Republican coalition in the senate today tempered its opposition to President Hoover enough to vote, for the second time, confirmation of the appointments of Claude L. Draper and Marcel Garsaud to the federal power commission.

When confronted with the name of George Otis Smith, the commission's chairman, however, the coalition turned stubbornly adamant and rejected Smith by a vote of 40 to 33.

As is the rule when the so-called "power trust" issue is before the senate, the radical Republicans voted solidly with the Democrats, with but one defection, when, in the vote on Draper, Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa insurgent, cast a ballot for confirmation.

In the vote on Chairman Smith, the Republicans lost the votes of Senators H. D. Hatfield [Rep., W. Va.], and Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], to the opposition, and the four votes they were able to gather from the Democrats were not enough to stem the tide. When Garsaud and Draper came to a vote, however, Senator Hatfield fell into line; four additional Democrats crossed over to vote for Garsaud and three Democrats and Senator Brookhart for Draper.

Garsaud was confirmed by a vote of 39 to 35, and Draper by a vote of 39 to 36.

With the force of the coalition behind them, the insurgents voted to reconsider the nominations and to demand the return of the three names by President Hoover. This the President refused to do.

The vote today, however, so the coalition leaders assert, will perfect the senate's record in the event that the case is brought into court.

ADMIT PAY ROLLS IN CASE AGAINST CANAL LAWYERS

The pay roll records of the sanitary district's legal department for the period from 1924 to 1929 were admitted as evidence yesterday at the hearing on the disciplinary action brought by the Chicago Bar association against fifty-five lawyers formerly employed by the district. The association alleges in its information, filed with the Illinois Supreme court, that the lawyers accepted money without giving service. The charges are being heard by Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor.

The records revealed that the number of lawyers employed by the district during the period ranged from 42 to 142. The number of other employés in the department increased from 170 in 1925 to 409 in 1928. The examination of the pay rolls concerns two of the defendants in the association's action, Hector A. Brouillet, head of the legal staff in 1925 and 1926, and Maclay Hoyne, head of the staff in 1927 and 1928.

CHILE PUT UNDER A DICTATORSHIP FOR FOUR MONTHS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Chile tonight entered on a four months' dictatorship by consent of congress. By a vote of 14 to 11 the senate approved a bill previously passed by the chamber which puts into the hands of President Carlos Ibañez complete legislative powers while congress is in a four months' recess.

RED CROSS HERE HAS $458,430 OF DROUGHT QUOTA

James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, announced yesterday that $458,430 of the $940,000 drought relief quota to be raised in Chicago has been pledged or contributed. Checks should be made payable to the American Red Cross drought relief fund and sent to the Chicago chapter, 616 South Michigan avenue.

A list of states where the Red Cross is administering drought relief was announced at the Chicago chapter. They are Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Montana, and Georgia.

It was explained by the Chicago chapter that in some states only a few counties are affected. In Arkansas, however, the Red Cross is giving relief in every county. The work in these states is being carried on by 34,000 men and women volunteers under the direction of experiencel Red Cross disaster relief workers.

WHY VANDERBILT SEALS HIS LIPS IN BUTLER CASE

Says He Is Bound to Respect Confidence.

[Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.]

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., explaining for the first time tonight his reasons for keeping his lips sealed concerning the Mussolini anecdote which is bringing Gen. Butler before a navy court martial.

The young newspaper man, who interviewed Premier Mussolini of Italy in 1926, said he feels bound to respect "the strictest confidence" which was understood to surround several incidents related by himself and others.

"All except three or four people have respected that confidence," he said. "The others who related some things with the understanding that 'none of this will get out of this room' have not breathed a word.

"So long as these, including Gen. Butler, have not told of what they said, I am bound by confidence.

"Gen. Butler quoted inaccurately what was said. Everything that has come out has been garbled. I will relate correctly from the witness stand what I said if Gen. Butler or his counsel ask me to appear.

"So far I have told it only to the state department in the letter which they have declined to make public."

Formal Charges Before Butler.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler returned to Quantico late today, under charges which carry the possibility of a fifteen year sentence in naval prison, for criticizing Premier Mussolini as a hit and run driver during a recent Philadelphia speech.

The formal charges and specifications upon which the general will be placed on trial before a court martial a week from next Monday were placed in his hands today. According to the most authoritative information, they charge "conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline," an offense punishable by a maximum of fifteen years' imprisonment, dismissal from the service, or a reprimand.

Maj. Henry Leonard, the present head of the Butler defense counsel, described them as severe.

Publication Held Up.

The navy department was prepared to give out the charges as soon as delivered, but withheld them pending receipt of word from Butler's counsel that he consented to such a step. Counsel for Butler had been represented as desirous of having them published, but after they had been received and considered, Maj. Leonard wrote the navy department, leaving the question of publishing them wholly up to naval officials.

"At this time," Maj. Leonard wrote, "Gen. Butler neither seeks the publication of these charges nor does he seek to prevent their publication."

While White House officials have made no official comments as to the President's attitude toward the charges, it is known that no move was taken in the Butler matter without consulting the President.

"No Mud Slinging."

Maj. Leonard said today that there will be no mud slinging by the defense during the trial and that the issue involved will be fought out on its merits.

He stated that while John W. Davis, New York attorney, will not be able to serve, a prominent lawyer of national reputation had consented to join defense counsel.

Gen. Butler spent most of today dodging newspaper men and photographers. In the intervals he consulted with Maj. Leonard, and went over the results of Leonard's investigations thus far.

WIFE WINS A $50,000 SKIRMISH IN BATTLE OF WEALTHY ARNOLDS

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—A verdict of $50,000 was returned in favor of Mrs. Bessie E. Arnold this afternoon in her $1,000,000 suit against Mrs. Margaret Grenshaw West of Crestwood, N. J., for alienating the affections of Ray Arnold, wealthy investment banker.

Supreme Court Justice Isidor A. Wasservogel, before whom the suit was tried, overruled motions to have the verdict set aside. Arnold and his wife are suing each other for divorce.

The jury required an hour and fifteen minutes to reach a verdict. Neither of the two women principals was in court when the jury reported.

In the divorce action Mrs. Arnold brought, Mrs. West, wealthy widow, was named as co-respondent. Arnold's counter claim for a divorce charged his wife with misconduct with Charles Haan, a member of her legal staff.

Several specific instances of misconduct were charged on both sides, and the jury that heard the double action returned a verdict in which Arnold and Mrs. West were found guilty of misconduct on two counts and Mrs. Arnold was cleared on all but one count, as to which the jury could not agree.

This verdict led Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook to order a new trial, which has not yet been held.

PROPOSE BONDS TO AVOID 2 TAX BILLS IN YEAR

At the meeting of the city council on Monday Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th] will submit a resolution authorizing the committee on efficiency and economy to investigate the feasibility of a plan for the city to issue bonds in the amount of the city's share of the 1929 and 1930 taxes to relieve the taxpayers from paying two years' taxes in one year. The action was authorized at a meeting of the committee yesterday.

The committee also asked Corporation Counsel Ettelson for opinions on the park consolidation act that was defeated in a referendum in 1916 in view of a proposal to resubmit it again in April. Under the act, if approved, park boards could be consolidated with the city.

noon meeting on the county's 1931 budget and urged the commissioners to support house bill 28. Adoption of the bill, he said, would remedy many ills and would place the county board in a position to keep close tab on expenditures in the taxing offices. He charged that only one-half of the employés in the taxing offices were doing actual work and that the rest were on the pay rolls for political reasons.

The finance committee of the county board held its first night session last night to speed up the preparation of the 1931 budget. When the committee adjourned at 11:30 p. m. the appropriations had been reduced by a total of $711,089. The large part of this figure represented requests for salary increases.

Among the cuts ordered was one of $174,945 for the Cook county nurses' training school. The state's attorney's appropriation was cut $110,423. The reductions affected two-thirds of the county's various departments. The appropriations for supplies for the departments were also trimmed.

ASSESSORS TO SAVE

A saving of $650,047 will be made in a revised estimate of the needs of the board of assessors for 1931 which will be submitted today to the finance committee of the county board. The reduced appropriation was announced last night at a meeting attended by Assessors John E. Conroy, Walter W. L. Meyer and John E. Traeger, and the board's attorney, Cornelius J. Harrington.

When Harry S. Cutmore, director of appraisals, was asked to prepare a tentative budget for the department, he fixed the needs at $1,300,000. A few weeks later he boosted this figure to $1,460,000 and more recently raised it to $1,740,000.

Following criticisms from the county commissioners, the assessors began an investigation, and for the last ten days have been paring the estimated appropriation. The amount which they have decided they will need was set last night at $1,089,953.

FOES PRESS FIGHT

Despite recent warnings by civic and business leaders against a "taxpayers' strike," spokesmen for the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers yesterday reiterated their contention that the 1929 taxes cannot and will not be paid on the basis of the present assessment.

John M. Pratt, executive director of the association, at a meeting of the group at the Union League club last night, announced that it will continue its fight against the 1929 assessment.

MINNESOTA "GAG" LAW REPEAL IS VOTED IN HOUSE

Measure Now Goes to the Senate.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—The Minnesota house of representatives today voted to repeal the Minnesota newspaper "gag" law. The vote was 68 to 58. The bill now goes to the senate where a similar proposal, introduced by Senator George H. Lommen, author of the original act, is under consideration.

The newspaper suppression law was enacted in 1925 and efforts to repeal it two years ago failed.

The law provided for suppression of newspapers by court injunction, which were found by a court to be publishing regularly "malicious, scandalous, or defamatory matter." It was twice upheld by the state Supreme court.

The law is the only one of its kind in the country and has been used to suppress two newspapers—the Twin City Reporter and the Saturday Press. Appeals in behalf of these papers, suppressed three years ago, have been sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and are now pending before the United States Supreme court.

Gov. Olson, in his inaugural address, signified his desire to have the law repealed.

Episcopal Minister Ends Life by Taking Poison

Cleveland, O., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Rev. Brinley Abbot, 45, who resigned as rector of St. John's Episcopal church last Monday to return to his family in England ended his life tonight by swallowing poison, police said. A group of young women who had gone to rehearse a church play found his body. Beside it was a bottle labeled poison. Police gave the cause of the death as worry over the ill health of one of the rector's three children in England.

BISHOP INSANE; TOOK RASPUTIN TO CZAR'S COURT

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Mumbling self-accusations of having brought about the downfall of the Russian dynasty by introducing Rasputin, "The Black Monk," at the court of the czar, Archbishop Theophan, former rector of the Orthodox Russian academy in old St. Petersburg, tonight was interned in an insane asylum here. The archbishop was discovered in a demented state in a suburb of this city.

In the days of the old régime in St. Petersburg, now Leningrad, Theophan, because of his high place in the church, had some standing at the court. He heard of the ambitious monk Rasputin, who had left the humble peasant home of his father and reached the capital after many pilgrimages. Sympathizing with the ardor of Rasputin, the archbishop presented him to the royal court.

After the death of Rasputin and the slaying of members of the imperial family, Archbishop Theophan fled from Russia where the soviet régime had been proclaimed. Later he joined in the retreat of Wrangel's scattering army, and came to Sofia.

ASHEVILLE BANK HEAD ARRESTED ON U. S. CHARGES

Failures Tie Up Millions of Public Funds.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Asheville, N. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Wallace B. Davis, president of the Central Bank and Trust company, one of the biggest political and financial powers in North Carolina, and two other banking officials connected with closed institutions here were arrested on federal warrants today on the charge of conspiracy to violate the national banking laws.

This is the first time in all the long string of recent bank failures in the south where any effort has been made to move criminally against responsible officials. Asheville had been waiting for something from the county grand jury, which has been investigating for weeks, but this action of the United States attorney came as a surprise.

Nearly 8 Million Public Funds.

The Central Bank and Trust company, which was closed last November by its own directors and is now in process of liquidation, had $7,780,7[illegible] of city and county funds in it, most of which is secured by real estate collateral which is considered of doubtful value. It had deposits of $18,000,000 in all and schools, churches, clubs, and thousands of individuals have suffered as a consequence.

The American National bank, which was owned by the same interests and is also closed, had $275,031 of public funds on deposit, although this had a surety bond of $150,000 to back it up. Two other smaller banks failed with more than $150,000 of public funds, making the total losses to this city and county of 50,000 population more than double what the state of Tennessee has lost in its unfortunate hook-up with the Caldwell banking clique in Nashville.

Real Estate Crash Blamed.

The specific charges made in the warrants issued at noon today are but little idea of the magnitude of the operations involved and the desperate efforts made last fall to save the Central bank with public funds or any other funds that were available.

The fundamental trouble was the collapse of the Asheville real estate boom, which spread out of Florida in 1926. The methods of gathering public funds were much the same here as those shown in Tennessee, including a legislative influence and a subservient local administration. Deposits drove in from the $350,000 palace which he built on his real estate development near by, "Stratford T[illegible]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Asheville, N. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Wallace B. Davis, president of the Central Bank and Trust company, one of the biggest political and financial leaders in North Carolina, and two other banking officials connected with those institutions here were arrested today on federal warrants today on the charge of conspiracy to violate the national banking laws.

This is the first time in all the long string of recent bank failures in the south where any effort has been made to move criminally against responsible officials. Asheville had been waiting for something from the county grand jury, which has been investigating for months, but this action of the United States attorney came as a surprise.

Nearly 8 Million Public Funds.

The Central Bank and Trust company, which was closed last November by its own directors and is now in process of liquidation, had $7,780,729 of city and county funds in it, most of which is secured by real estate collateral which is considered of doubtful value. It had deposits of $18,000,000 in all, of schools, churches, clubs, and thousands of individuals have suffered as a consequence.

The American National bank, which was owned by the same interests and also closed, had $275,031 of public funds on deposit, although this had a surety bond of $150,000 to back it up. The other smaller banks failed with less than $150,000 of public funds, making the total losses to this city and county of 50,000 population more than double what the state of Tennessee has lost in its unfortunate hookup with the Caldwell banking clique of Louisville.

Real Estate Crash Blamed.

The specific charges made in the warrants issued at noon today give no little idea of the magnitude of the operations involved and the desperate efforts made last fall to save the Central bank with public funds and any other funds that were available.

The fundamental trouble was the collapse of the Asheville real estate boom, which spread out of Florida in 1925. The methods of gathering in public funds were much the same here as those shown in Tennessee, including a legislative influence and a subservient local administration. Davis drew in from the $350,000 palace which he built on his real estate lake development near by, "Stratford Towers," the home is called, and submitted to arrest, being released on bond of $15,000. Those arrested with him on the same charge were:

All Released on Bonds.

J. Charles Bradford, cashier of the Central Bank and Trust company, was also named in a warrant, but he is not in the city. He is expected to return tomorrow. All were released on bonds and will be given a hearing next Wednesday before the United States commissioner. Wallace Davis called the complaint "ridiculous" and said:

"When the facts are established I feel confident of complete exoneration."

United States District Attorney Thomas J. Harkins said:

"I have simply done what I conceived to be my duty in the course of events."

The city has $5,298,000 tied up in unsecured notes, real estate mortgages and debenture bonds issued by real estate holding companies related to the bank interests. The Central Bank and Trust company handled most of this.

At the time of the bank closing Wallace Davis made this statement:

"The collapse of the real estate market in Asheville, followed by depressing business conditions in the country generally, confronted us with difficulty in the operation of the bank for the last two years. A fair appraisal of the assets, based on the sound value of the securities behind same, will show the bank to be solvent."

As late as last September and October the city commissioners reached into their anticipated revenues to issue notes, which the bank sold, and on Nov. 1 the city had $4,760,000 of such notes outstanding. The true condition of things here, as in Nashville, was kept from the public until after the November elections. Since then a new administration has come in, now struggling to get along with little cash and a mountain of debt.

The warrants charge that the defendants conspired together to commit offenses against the United States, which appears to have been an incidental matter that has escaped attention so far.

Specifically it is charged that they misapplied funds of the American National bank, which is a member of the Federal Reserve bank of Richmond, Va., by means of alleged sash letters emanating from the Central bank and by depositing them by the American National bank "as pretended exchange [amounts varying in different counts], which, owing to the character of the indorsements thereon, were non-negotiable, valueless, and not proper cash items."

Galli-Curci Reads Classics for Rest, So She Says

When Amelita Galli-Curci, concert singer, wants diversion she turns to—Plato, Cicero, Marcus Aurelius and the German philosophers. More than that she admits being somewhat of a philosopher, herself.

"I spend my leisure time trying to cultivate the body and the mind," Mme. Galli-Curci said on her arrival yesterday for her concert Sunday at Orchestra hall.

"Opera is an artificiality," Mme. Galli-Curci declared. "In a hundred years from now it will be regarded as something to be placed in the museum. It bores the ordinary person. It is too slow, too pompous for this fast moving age. It it were not more of a social function than an art form, it would have died out long ago."

With the singer was her husband, Homer Samuels, her accompanist.

9 KILLED, 3 HURT AS GIANT PLANE CRASHES IN SEA

Divers Hunt Bodies of 8 Trapped in Cabin.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 4.—One of the worst airplane disasters in the history of the royal air force overtook a giant Iris all metal flying boat in Plymouth sound this afternoon. The huge plane dived into the water, exploded, and sank, killing nine of the crew. Three others are in a hospital in a serious condition.

The explosion was heard for miles, and boats and planes raced to the scene of the disaster in hopes of rescuing some of the men. One of the crew who was standing on a fragment of wing was taken off by a motor boat and three others found floating in the water were picked up. One of the latter died later. Eight men were carried to the bottom of the sea, imprisoned in the cabin of the ship. Divers, hastily called, descended to search for the bodies.

Commander Is Killed.

The death roll includes Wing Commander C. J. Tucker, commanding the 209th flying boat squadron, and Flying Officer Wood, who died after being taken from the water. The other victims were enlisted men. The injured are Lieut. Maurice Ely, Flying Officer Charles R. W. Ley, and Corporal Barry.

The cause of the accident is not known, but it is believed that the officer at the controls was deceived as to his altitude when he attempted to land. The water was smooth as glass and the sun was glinting on the nose of the ship as it settled toward the water. It dived into the sea with terrific impact. The tail buckled and the explosion ripped the metal structure to shreds.

Largest Ship in Air Force.

The ship was stationed at the Cattewatter base of the royal air force. It had been maneuvering for an hour with another plane and was apparently under perfect control.

Planes of the Iris class are dual engined and are the largest in the royal air force. Besides a crew of five these planes are capable of carrying 28 passengers.

The worst previous royal air force disaster was the death of seven men at Bombay in 1926.

NEWSPAPER IS BEST 1931 AD MEDIUM, DRY GOODS MEN TOLD

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Increased use of newspaper space for advertising purposes was advocated today by Arthur O. Price, sales manager of the Namm department store, Brooklyn, in an address before the National Retail Dry Goods association in convention at the Hotel Pennsylvania. He said that this was by far the best vehicle for conveying advertising ideas to the public and that as a medium it should be employed more extensively.

Mr. Price discussed nine other forms of advertising media, and then declared that in 1931 stores must finecomb their advertising expenditures more than ever—not necessarily to "save money" but to direct it into the most productive media.

"It is my opinon," he said, "that 5 per cent can and should be eliminated from these other things upon which we are wasting our money, and it should be added to our newspaper advertising, thus giving this medium at least 75 per cent of our total publicity expenditure."

ROCKEFELLER 3D REFUSES TO BEG OFF JURY DUTY

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Among the talesmen summoned for jury duty before Federal Judge Mortimer L. Bryant today was John D. Rockefeller 3d, son of John D. Rockefeller Jr.

"Don't you desire to ask to be excused?" inquired an attendant.

"No," said Rockefeller. "I believe that any one summoned for jury duty should serve if he can do so."

He was not called for service today. He was told to return tomorrow morning, and said he would do so.

16-DRINK DRYS TELL ON BELLE, CLUB HOSTESS

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Belle Livingstone, who runs a saloon type "country club" right in the middle of Manhattan, between raids heard a couple of sixteen drink dry agents tell of tanking up in her front parlor at her trial today in federal court. She heard one of Uncle Sam's night club playboys describe her as an "obese old lady in red pajamas" and the other complain of doing all the buying with never a drink on the house.

Then Belle, in her brief ten minutes on the stand before adjournment until tomorrow, scored the noble experimenters, denied she was the owner of the club, and added a bit dramatically that if she told the name of the actual proprietor "I'd be liable to be shot as I walked out of here." Someone high in the underworld, she intimated, employed her as a hostess.

Never Tried Before.

It was not Belle's premiere at the federal building, but it was her debut in District court. Miss Livingstone has a record of three separate violations of the prohibition law and no record of having been tried for any of them. She was before Judge Francis G. Caffey today on a charge of criminal contempt of court based on the government's allegation that she ran her club in the face of an injunction forbidding her to conduct or permit the continuance of a nuisance.

It took sixteen drinks at a dollar a round to complete the noble experiment on the first visit to the club, according to testimony by Willard J. Mogland, "the dry sleuth who gained admission to the thirty foot bar by posing as a "big business man from Chicago." Frank Angelin described the second visit—considered necessary before any plain or fancy raiding—and again it took sixteen drinks to get the full evidence.

Belle Two Hours Late.

Belle, following the example set several seasons ago by Mme. Tex Guinan, was a couple of hours late arriving in court. But what is an hour in the affairs of a night club? She was dressed in a heavily furred black coat, black hat, shoes, and a black dress—and sat quietly as one in deep mourning for a lost cause.

"I went into the barroom," said Mogland, who was posing as Donald Ray of Chicago that night, "and I saw a lady there in a flashy dress. I says, 'Are you the famous Belle Livingstone, the proprietor of the country club known around the world?' And she said she was. Then I orders some whiskies and I asked her, 'Why don't you come out to Chicago and give us westerners something of this kind?' She said, 'Chicago is too tough for me.'"

On the night of the raid, Jan. 12, Mogland and a couple of other agents returned to the club.

"There were two ladies with us," said Mogland, "and I had to pay $12 as an entry fee. We bought drinks and danced until just before midnight, when we went into the barroom." Immediately after the signal for the raid, Mogland said, everywhere in the brown stone building buzzers began to buzz. The bartenders shed their aprons and made a dash for exits, but Mogland arrested them. An hour later the belle of 58th street was brought in, according to the dry agent. She was disheveled, clad in red pajamas, and had been captured on the roof. Mogland said Belle announced:

"I know why I am being bumped off all the time. There's a gang of Philly racketeers trying to muscle me out of my business."

A committee of nineteen state senators and two members of the house of representatives yesterday decided to recommend to the legislature the appropriation of $500,000 to pay the expenses of the state exhibit in the World's Fair of 1933. The decision was reached by the committee, of which Senator Roy C. Woods is chairman, in a meeting in the World's Fair administration building yesterday.

The committee also recommended the appointment of a board to be composed of seven state senators, seven representatives, the governor, and six persons to be appointed by the governor. This board will meet with fair officials and supervise the construction of the Illinois exhibit to be housed in the projected states' building on northerly island, south of the Adler planetarium.

LOCKS, POLICE GUARD TRIAL OF BISHOP CANNON

Heflin Takes a Hand, Telling "Persecution."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A cloud of witnesses descended on the Mount Vernon Place Methodist church today to testify before an ecclesiastical board regarding charges against Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

George P. Adams, secretary and treasurer of the Blackstone Female institute at Blackstone, Va., of which Bishop Cannon was president for many years, was the first witness to enter the church.

The church again was locked and guarded. A uniformed policeman paraded around the edifice at regular intervals, and a sergeant of police rode around the block. A plain clothes man guarded the door through which the witnesses entered.

It was said tonight the charges cover alleged incidents in the life of the bishop for the last twenty years or more. Accusations of gambling on the stock market were said to comprise only a small part. Most of the charges, it was said, deal more closely with the bishop's personal life, some in the last year.

Echoes of the proceedings were heard in the senate chamber during the day. Senator Heflin [Dem., Ala.], said Cannon was being "persecuted" and that "the Raskob and Al Smith machine is back of the effort to destroy him."

"I had a letter the other day," Heflin said, "reporting that John Roach Stratton had gone, that Bishop Cannon was on his way, and that I was due for a sudden illness.

"I wonder what kind of pill they will slip me?" he asked amid laughter.

HELD FOR DEATH OF YOUTH.

Although he had repudiated a confession made to the police, 17 year old John Zamarlik, 4402 South Wood street, was held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury for the death of his 16 year old chum, Anthony Bohniak, 4353 South Ashland avenue, who was found fatally stabbed Jan. 16.

Pleasant New Way to Treat

CATARRH

Is That Good News?

30 Days' Free Trial Says

All Walgreen-Economical Stores

Catarrh is caused by germs—wicked, vicious, persistent pests that multiply rapidly and by digging into and devouring the tender membrane cause soreness, swelling, inflammation and mucus discharges.

A few years ago, Catarrh was considered incurable, because no one was clever enough to get together a formula that would spread over the membranes of the nasal tract a purifying substance in which catarrh germs could not exist.

But Opex changed all that, and now all you have to do to get rid of catarrh is to spray on Opex and send the germs to eternity.

When you spray Opex you can send the healing, purifying vapor from one nostril thru the other (see picture), or from either nostril to the bottom of the lungs and out thru the mouth—you can actually see this steam-like smoke coming from nostrils or mouth.

That's the way to end catarrh and to lessen those annoying, ringing, buzzing noises in the ears. Many people say it is the only way.

The price of a bottle of Opex that will last two months is $1.00—it is easily worth one hundred dollars to any man or woman who wants clean, healthy nostrils, free from disgusting mucus.

Opex will end the most stubborn cases of catarrh in a few days, because it soothes and heals the sore, inflamed membranes, reduces the swelling and purifies the entire nasal tract.

And remember this—the toughest old head colds are knocked out in a few hours with Opex—it's the magic treatment of science, for with this new discovery you can reach the entire respiratory tract—right down to the bottom of the lungs.

Bear this in mind also, for it will be joyful news to millions. After you spray Opex for two or three weeks there won't be any lump of mucus in your throat to hawk up every morning—what a blessing!

Opex is sold in this city by all Walgreen-Economical Stores, with the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied at the end of 30 days your money will be gladly returned. Opex is delightful to use because of its wholesome fragrance. Inhale as you spray if you want to reach the bottom of the lungs—you can also spray that sore throat with purifying Opex.

Children's Sore Throat

Relieve It Without Prolonged and Gagging Gargling!

To clear up a sore throat you have to kill the irritating germs lodged in the throat. That takes gargling with an antiseptic. But your old-fashioned antiseptic is so low in germicidal power it takes frequent and prolonged gargling to make any effect. An amazing new-type antiseptic replaces all that. McKesson's Extol is the "10-second-germicide." It is so fast and effective, a one-minute gargling with Extol is equal to hours with ordinary products. Also, it is extremely penetrating, which is just as important! It penetrates the folds and crevices in the mouth and throat. It penetrates the mucous membrane and reaches the germs hidden underneath the outer layer of mucous. In other words, it reaches the germs that ordinary preparations miss. That's why three one-minute garglings with Extol will usually clear up any oncoming sore throat, nose or head cold. That's why if used daily as a regular measure, Extol will prevent these infections. Extol is delightful to use. So refreshing it makes your ordinary mouth wash seem insipid by comparison. Economical too, as it not only costs less, but permits greater dilution. Get a bottle today. For sale at all McKesson Service Druggists and other independent drug stores. Note the name, EXTOL—a McKesson & Robbins product.

NAIL STRIDES IN ANÆSTHESIA AS DENTAL TRIUMPH

Pain Thing of the Past, Doctor Asserts.

One of the outstanding achievements of the dental profession in the last fifteen years has been the development of the use of anæsthesia to a point where pain has been eliminated from practically all dental surgery.

This is the opinion of Dr. Howard C. Miller, secretary of the Chicago Dental society, the annual convention of which has been in progress since Monday at the Stevens hotel, attracting to its concurrent midwinter clinics 4,000 members of the profession from all over the country. The clinics and convention close tonight.

Time was when the misery of tooth ache and the torture of having infected teeth extracted were the subject of lampoons by the humorous journals, but this situation has been corrected, according to Dr. Miller. A patient today need no more dread a visit to the dentist than a trip to the barber shop or beauty parlor, in Dr. Miller's view.

Need Never Have Trouble.

Indeed, he says, the average person may now go through life without feeling so much as a twinge of toothache if that person will follow the rules of oral hygiene and submit to periodic examination of the mouth.

Dr. Miller advocates teaching the child to use the tooth brush when the first teeth appear and taking the child to the dentist for the first time between the ages of 3 and 4, and periodically thereafter. If parents will follow this practice the coming generation will have no dread of dentistry, he believes.

At present, however, many adults still retain a psychological fear of having teeth treated and this fear may generally be traced to some harrowing experience the subject had in a dentist's office in childhood, Dr. Miller believes. Overcoming this fear is one of the principle projects of organized dentistry at this time, he says.

Pain Is Practically Abolished.

"It is safe to say that pain has been practically abolished in dental operations," Dr. Miller asserted. "This applies not only to the extraction of teeth but to drilling, filling cavities, and other treatments in the restoration of teeth. Methods of nerve blocking have been devised for every type of dental surgery and cases where the physical condition prevents the use of an anæsthetic are practically nil.

"About the only pain connected with dental surgery recently has been the insertion of the hypodermic needle into the gums and even this has been wholly abolished by use of a 'topical anæsthetic,' into which the needle is dipped before insertion."

Called Economical Way.

Certain persons are prone to ignore the urging of the dentist for periodic examination of the teeth on the theory that the dentist is here inspired by selfish considerations, Dr. Miller said.

Such a view, he declared, is mistaken, as general experience proves that periodic examinations, which check dental troubles at the start, are far more economical than the practice of waiting for the tooth ache signal before rushing to the dentist's office.

Another advantage of periodic examinations in childhood is the opportunity afforded the dentist to correct irregularities in the teeth formations in early stages. Under treatment of specialists it is possible, Dr. Miller said, to virtually mold the child's face, building up the bone for a strong jaw and firmer chin and applying apparatus to reform protruding teeth.

Starts Contempt Sentence Ordered by Court in 1925

Joe Locrasto, now living in Chicago, but formerly considered a beer and vice boss of the Calumet region, surrendered yesterday to Sheriff Burney Maxwell at Valparaiso, Ind., to serve a 30 day jail sentence imposed in 1925 for violating an injunction restraining operation of the Roamer inn, on the Dunes highway. He appealed through the Appellate court up to the Indiana State Supreme court, which recently upheld the original sentence.

FILM ACTOR'S WIFE ACCUSED OF TRYING TO FRAME HUSBAND

Mrs. Katie L. Wagner, testifying that Mrs. Renaldo lived at her home for several weeks last October, said the woman "asked me to make false statements" about Renaldo and Miss Booth. Mrs. Renaldo has filed a suit for $50,000 damages against the actress, alleging she stole Renaldo's love while working on a film with him in Africa.

"Mrs. Renaldo came into the house saying 'God save me!'" Mrs. Wagner said. "I called Dr. James Reed and he put her to bed. When she appeared to have regained her complete consciousness, she came wandering into my room and I asked her if she wanted some coffee.

"She just said: 'You know I'm suing Edwina Booth for $50,000 for alienation of affections. Is this the room she occupied?' I told her I didn't know what she was talking about, and then she said: 'I've made a mess. I said in my affidavit that Miss Booth occupied this room. I must have the affidavit fixed.'"

PEORIA $100,000 HEART BALM SUIT IN HANDS OF JURY

Both Sides Hurl Jibes as Trial Ends.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Whether Helen Harseim, pretty 32 year old Bradley college graduate and musician, is entitled to $100,000 damages or any part of it tonight rests with a jury of four women and eight men. The case against David Belsley, wealthy retired Roanoke banker and farmer, was completed late today.

"She may have been a musician," declared Charles O'Hern, lawyer for Belsley, "but she never played any other notes than 'dough-dough-dough' when she was with her 'little David.' All the time she went with Belsley, she was leading and bleeding him."

He pictured her as the "bold-digger" of Secor—declaring that after she accepted $20 from Belsley on the night he told her the affair between them was closed, Dec. 25, 1929, she called her attorney and in the morning filed suit for $100,000.

"She closed the record just as she began it," he said, "showing that she plotted and planned to get money from this old man."

O'Hern quoted frequently from Helen's Reno letters to David, trying to show that it was improbable that Belsley proposed marriage to her in March of 1928 after her return from Nevada with a divorce.

Wallace J. Black, counsel for the girl, declared it was "easy for a banker to tell you that he's broke when you're going to take some money away from him."

He attacked Belsley as a crusty old fellow, who never had a sincere heart beat, who persuaded the young defendant to love him and believe he was going to marry her. All of the time, according to Belsley's own testimony, he said, he was just leading her on to see how far she would go.

SENTENCED AS WIFE BEATER.

Joseph Whalen, 24 years old, 833½ Sunnyside avenue, was placed on probation for six months yesterday by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman when Mrs. Whalen had him arrested on a charge of wife beating.

ALL UNIVERSITIES IN SPAIN CLOSED BY GOVERNMENT

Decree Charges Students Work for Revolt.

MADRID, Feb. 4.—(AP)—All universities in Spain were suspended today for a month under royal decree. The government said that all other means of pacifying the striking students have been exhausted.

A preamble to the decree says the students evidently are under revolutionary influences attempting to bring disorders on the country. It adds that the university sessions must be closed to permit a clear atmosphere for the coming parliamentary elections.

Earlier today professors at the University of Seville had announced that they would hold no further classes while the present governor of Seville remained in office. They maintained he had exceeded his authority in breaking up a student demonstration in the university buildings last week.

New Revolutionary Threat.

Meanwhile the possibility of further revolutionary attempts was seen in the action of leaders of the Spanish Socialist party, who have prepared a manifesto saying the party will use "every means possible, including violence, to overthrow the Spanish monarchy." Until the time is considered propitious for using force the party is expected to oppose the government by strikes and other civil disturbances.

Further disorders took place today. Police arrested several leaders of a group of 500 commercial printers who appeared before the ministry of labor asking the government to support their demand for shorter working hours and more pay. Their strike has paralyzed the printing business.

Students Are Dispersed.

Police also dispersed a group of students who shouted for abolition of the monarchy before the home of Dr. José Maria Albinana, leader of the Legionnaires in Spain, a monarchist group.

A decree convoking the country to parliamentary elections today fixed March 1 as the day to vote on deputies and March 15 for senators. It also called for parliament to convene March 15.

All of Spain tomorrow will be free of the state of siege imposed after the abortive attempts at military revolt in December. Yesterday military rule was lifted in Saragossa, which includes the northern territory where the first revolt occurred, and tonight the government decided to do the same in Madrid tomorrow.

'Perfect' Army Man Hanged for Slaying of Two Women

PECS, Hungary, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Sergt. Stefan Armbrus, whose army record was without blemish until in a moment of madness he killed two women postoffice employés in the village where he was stationed, was hanged at dawn today. His infantry company grouped itself in hollow square about the gallows and six comrades escorted the sergeant's hulking figure to the gibbet.

ROCKOLA GIVEN NEW HEARING BY SUPREME COURT

A rehearing was allowed yesterday to David C. Rockola by the Supreme court, which affirmed a six months' Bridewell sentence for contempt of court at the December term. The court will again review the Rockola sentence at this term of court. Rockola was sentenced by Judge John P. McGoorty after he had refused to repeat before a jury the testimony which he had previously given before the grand jury. He was the state's star witness in the prosecution against six police captains and twenty-one politicians and hoodlums in the so-called $1,000,000 slot machine scandal. The case collapsed.

Four death cases also were carried to the Supreme court yesterday. The appeals were taken by Attorney Benjamin Bachrach, the public defender. The defendants are Richard Sullivan and Frank Bell, sentenced for the murder of Christ Patras, and John Popescue and Charles Rocco, who pleaded guilty to the murder of Courtney Merrill, a banker.

McCAFFREY, TWO OTHERS NAMED IN A TRUE BILL

Mayoral Candidate Accused of Conspiracy.

Attorney Eugene McCaffrey, one of the Republican candidates for the mayoralty nomination, was named jointly in a conspiracy true bill voted yesterday by the grand jury with Dr. Blaine L. Ramsay, Riverside physician, and Daniel M. Agoa, a former prohibition agent. The three are charged with conspiracy to obtain $2,500 by means of a confidence game to obtain the release from the Bridewell of Mrs. Sara Goldstein, sentenced to one year for shoplifting.

Attorney McCaffrey obtained permission later in the day to appear before the grand jury to tell his side of the story. State's Attorney Swanson said that this was not unusual if the individual signed an immunity waiver. The grand jury would have the power to reconsider the voting of the true bill after hearing McCaffrey's testimony today, it was announced by the prosecutor's office.

Judge Writes Letter.

The efforts to obtain the release of Mrs. Goldstein, as outlined by Assistant State's Attorney George Lavin, were conducted mostly through Dr. Ramsay, who was friendly with Judge Harry B. Miller, the trial judge in the case. Dr. Ramsay prevailed on the judge, it is charged, to write a letter of recommendation in behalf of Mrs. Goldstein. The judge did not have any idea, it was announced, that any money was to be paid in the case.

Agoa's wife was a hostess at the Austin hospital when Dr. Ramsay was the owner of the institution. It was she, it is said, who prevailed on the physician, it is charged, to intercede with the judge. After the letter was obtained it was turned over to Agoa by the physician, who had told the judge he would personally carry it to Springfield to the pardon and parole board.

Demand Money for Action.

The letter was later taken to Attorney McCaffrey's office, where a demand was made on Mrs. Goldstein's friends for $2,500 before any additional action would be taken. An alleged receipt for the money bears the signatures of Agoa and Attorney McCaffrey, it is stated.

The charges in the case were made several months ago before the pardon board when Mrs. Goldstein was not released as promised. The case was referred to the state's attorney's office for action and Agoa and Dr. Ramsay were arrested on warrants.

RE-APPORTIONMENT BILL REFERRED TO HOUSE COMMITTEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—Argument in the house of representatives for the Barr reapportionment resolution, which passed the senate last week, was diverted today when Speaker David Shanahan referred the document to the judiciary committee.

The resolution would create a committee of nine—three senators, three representatives, and three citizens named by the governor—to study the redistricting problem and report back in the spring. A few Chicago members fought its passage in the senate, and the committee hearings, it is believed, will provide more spirited controversy.

The recurrent ticket scalper bill, a feature at many sessions, came in from Representative Edward Skarda [Dem., Chicago], and would prohibit the sale of theater tickets at a price higher than that printed on the ticket. The representative related to reporters how he recently was forced to pay land office prices for a brace of seats at a loop musical comedy. He wants an end to such a condition, he said.

Cuba Raises Postage Rates on All Domestic Mail

HAVANA, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Cubans paid three cents to send a letter within the island today instead of two. The new emergency postal bill went into effect at noon. Postcards require two cents postage instead of one cent, and the rates for money orders and post office box rent were increased proportionately.

AGED MAN KILLED IN A BRAWL, SON OF BISHOP SAYS

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—In General Sessions today James Matthew Maxon Jr., the 22 year old son of the bishop coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Tennessee, blamed a free for all fight for the death of David Paynter. He declared with emphasis that for his own part he had not knowingly or consciously raised a hand against the 73 year old printer who was killed on the night of April 18 last in the boarding house of Mrs. Rose Hickey on West End avenue.

Maxon is on trial on a charge of murder in the second degree and several witnesses for the prosecution have declared that they saw him beating Paynter with a chair in the kitchen of the boarding house.

"It was all done in a free for all," Maxon declared in his own defense from the witness stand today.

The youth gave his version of the early morning brawl after several eminent college professors and southern business men had testified to the excellence of his character.

The case will go to the jury tomorrow.

TAGGED AS 'DEAD' BEFORE HANGING, ESCAPES NOOSE

MENEMEN, Turkey, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Town criers were beating tom toms through all the villages of Smyrna province tonight to warn the inhabitants not to give shelter to a man who fled to freedom from the arms of official death.

Twenty-eight men convicted of treason were led out to die on as many gallows in Menemen yesterday, but a 25 year old villager named Hussein broke from the grasp of his Gypsy hangman. Dashing through a cordon of soldiers he disappeared in the dark, untouched by the bullets they sent after him.

He was dressed in the long white robe that those condemned to death in Turkey must wear, and around his neck there hung a placard, written in the past tense, telling of the crime "for which he died." Even in this strange garb he made good his escape and a search all day long failed to find him.

SLAYER GETS 7 TO 30 YEARS.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Edward Carnis, confessed slayer of Thomas (Crooked Nose) Melnick, Chicago bank robber suspect, here Jan. 14, pleaded guilty today to third degree murder and was sentenced to seven to 30 years in prison. Carnis asserted he shot in self-defense but pleaded guilty after a conference with the public defender, Frank Dichl.

INDIAN LEADERS TO MAKE SALT IN BOMBAY TODAY

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Police are prepared for trouble tomorrow afternoon for the congress party working committee announced today that its president and members of the war council intend to make salt at that time in the great Maidan square.

It is the first act in the continuance of the campaign of civil disobedience announced by Mahatma Gandhi upon his release from prison. Salt making is in direct defiance of the law and if tomorrow's gesture is carried out those who participate are certain to be arrested.

This evening Gandhi took his sick friend, Pandit Motilal Nehru from Allahabad to Lucknow for his health, and a radio message to the round table delegates returning to India asked them to meet the nationalist leaders at Allahabad instead of here, where the peace parleys were to have been conducted.

Cut Down Palms Trees.

Followers of Gandhi, dissatisfied with the results obtained from picketing liquor shops in their campaign for the suppression of the alcohol traffic, have decided to attack the traffic literally at its source.

Arming themselves with axes, swords, and saws, they go to the woods in bands, cutting down whole clusters of palm trees from which the Indians obtain their toddy, an alcoholic drink.

In the Surat district a hundred men wearing white caps and armed with all manner of weapons, cut down all the trees in the vicinity and broke all the toddy pots in which the liquor is made. Then they went to the Kirwan district where they felled 45 palm trees, burnt a number of toddy shops and terrorized all who attempted to sell the drink.

Ghandi Addresses 100,000.

ALLAHABAD, India, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, breaking his silence to address 100,000 natives here today declared that it was written in heaven that India's struggle for complete independence would end victoriously.

Squatting half nude on the open air platform, he offered thanks "for the great sacrifices of the people" during the nine months he spent in prison. The great throng of white robed men, women and children stood reverently. The gathering was like a gigantic American revival meeting, with the congregation shouting the Indian equivalent for amen.

Lauds Women for Efforts.

"Our women who were considered absolutely ignorant abandoned their seclusion at the nation's call," he said. "They even offered their children in the fight for liberty and any number of families would willingly have given one of their circle for the national struggle.

"In a fight with guns old men, women, boys and girls are exempt, but in our holy crusade everybody can participate. God is with us. It is written in heaven that victory is bound to come if we follow the path of truth and nonviolence."

Police Raid Paper.

AHMADABAD, India, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Police today raided the offices of the weekly journal, Young India, which was edited and managed by Mahatma Gandhi before his arrest last year in connection with the civil disobedience campaign. A cyclograph machine was seized and five persons were arrested.

WELL-KNOWN MAN PRAISES DIAPEPSIN FOR STOMACH ILLS

"My work as a commercial photographer keeps me on a strain," says J. Walter Ingraham, 1004 21st St., Des Moines, Iowa.

"So my digestion suffered. I got so I would have severe headaches and a heavy feeling in my stomach after meals. I had gas on the stomach; would belch often, leaving a sour, hot taste in my mouth. Few things agreed with me.

"A friend got me to take some Pape's Diapepsin. I had immediate relief from the first few tablets, so I kept on with it. Now I feel fine; eat anything I want without bad after-effects. I intend to keep on with Pape's Diapepsin until I am sure my trouble won't come back. The tablets are pleasant to chew and sure get results quickly."

Pape's Diapepsin is the best thing yet discovered to end digestive worries, give tone to a disordered stomach, increase appetite, make digestion vigorous and complete. Its success in so many cases where everything else has failed, proves that.

All drugstores sell these harmless, pleasant tablets. If you prefer to try them before buying, a letter to Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. Va., will bring a sample box, FREE.

FIND SKELETON; MAY BE CLEW TO LOST TREASURE

PERTH, West Australia, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A human skeleton and a handful of old coins discovered near the mouth of the Moore river were examined today by scholars, who believe they are relics of the Dutch treasure ship Golden Drake, wrecked on the nearby coast nearly 300 years ago. The Golden Drake traded between Holland and the East Indies. She was wrecked in 1649 and the fate of 68 castaways who took her treasure ashore and guarded it never has been learned. The coins found with the skeleton were dated from 1618 to 1648.

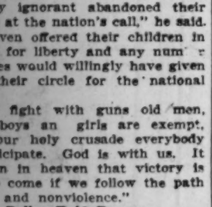
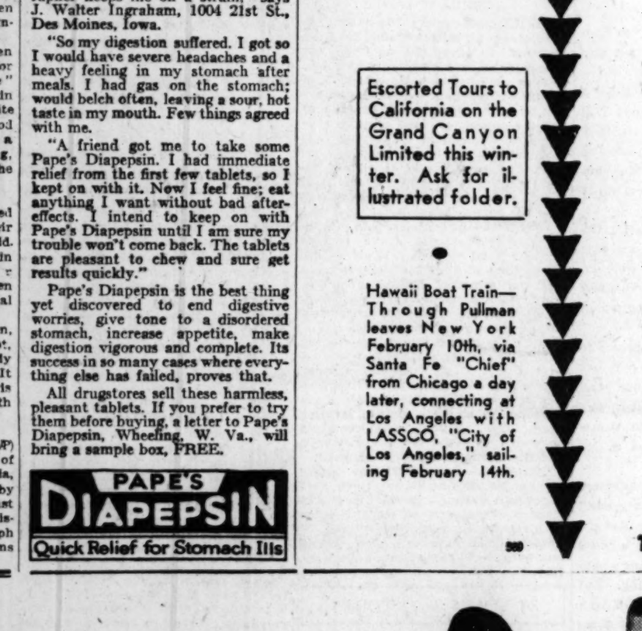
"Poise ATTRACTS MEN MORE THAN Beauty"

SAYS ELINOR GLYN



ELINOR GLYN
world-famous writer on romance



Men are fascinated by the charming self-confidence that exquisite femininity gives a woman . . .

"GLADYS and HELEN write me that they're 'ugly ducklings.' How can they hope to win love?

"Girls, many of the most fascinating women of history have been plain. But they've had the charming self-confidence that utter femininity gives a woman. And men have been fascinated by it.

"Such POISE is far more potent than beauty. And it's a quality every girl can win.

"Clothes can help you. Clothes affect YOU even more than they affect those who see you. LINGERIE, especially, when it is colorful and exquisite, makes you feel utterly feminine and confident of charm. And self-confidence is contagious! That's why this little recipe is so helpful to poise—

1. Choose the daintiest lingerie you can.
2. Always keep it color-fresh and lovely.

"Don't think your budget won't include colorful underthings. If you wash them in Lux they will stay NEW so long every girl can afford them.

"Ordinary 'good' soaps often fade and wear out delicate fibres, but Lux is made to keep colors adorable, silks soft and new.

"AT HOME too:—Charming surroundings give you poise! You feel at ease when you know everything about you, from pretty draperies to colorful table linens, is fresh and new—as Lux alone keeps them."

ELINOR GLYN

The Secret of Daintiness that gives Poise

THE MAP OF CONFUSION.

As a guide to investors in municipal bonds, one of the Chicago trust companies has prepared a table showing assessed valuations, bonded debts, if any, and populations in more than 230 local governments in Cook county. A map accompanies and illustrates the table.

The brochure was prepared as an aid to investors, but it serves also to explain many of the absurdities of government and government finance in the Chicago area. The table suggests the multiplicity of the tax spending bodies, the map shows to what an extent they overlap. City, county, forest preserve, village, sanitary district, park board, school district, high school district are superimposed one on the other in bewildering fashion. Each of these organizations has its taxes to spend, its administrative organization to maintain and its officials to formulate policies. Most of these officials, in turn, have their political obligations to fulfill. The confusion might have been and in part was created for the purpose of producing costly and incompetent government. A democracy at best cannot rise permanently above the level of intelligence and public interest of the governed, but this multiplication of administrations within a small area has made for government which is well below the level which this community might expect to attain. A glance at the map shows that citizens and taxpayers in the county must keep watch not on one set of officials but at least three or four, and generally more. The spoilsmen find it easy to conquer in an area so divided.

No doubt that is one reason for the senseless duplication. Prof. Simpson has mentioned others. "Some of the governments" he says, "are the simple heritage of earlier conditions, such as the city of Chicago itself and the towns and villages in the county outside of Chicago. Some represent an effort to adjust territorial boundaries to the nature of the governmental function to be performed, as in the case of the sanitary district. Some represent an effort to get an important function out from under undesirable political influences, as in the case of the board of education—an unsuccessful effort. And many of them represent only efforts to inflate the borrowing power [since each independent municipality possesses bonding power to the amount of 5 per cent of its assessed valuation], to transfer valuable patronage from one jurisdiction to another, and further other political ends."

One of the most unfortunate features of the present situation is the lack of coördination between governmental units. There is little assurance that physical improvements such as parks and roads will be properly related. There is no assurance of financial integration. For example, the sanitary district, carrying out the Supreme court mandate, must borrow more than $100,000,000 in the next half dozen years. That fact ought to be reflected in the issuance of bonds for other purposes. The unusual borrowings for sanitation ought to be accompanied by reduced borrowings for other purposes. No such result has been or will be observed as long as the present situation obtains.

Many of the governments ought to be liquidated and almost all of them ought to be merged into larger units. A multiplicity of police authorities in the county is both uneconomical and ineffective in suppressing crime. Centralized health administration is as plainly indicated. The question of the schools is likely to prove troublesome, but it may be possible to reduce unnecessary administrative duplication and establish minimum standards of accomplishment without depriving localities of their initiative in school matters. So far as control of transportation is concerned, there is everything to be said for a concentration of authority. And so on.

Simplification of the local governments has been advocated for years, but until recently the discussions have made little impression on the public and less on the politicians. The financial crisis last year served to show that the reorganization is of the utmost practical importance. Rising tax rates will bring the fact home to many who as yet are unmindful. Further than that, the local governments will be extremely fortunate if they avoid another and more alarming financial crisis within the next eighteen months. Coördination of local governments offers much by way of economy and administrative improvement. There is no danger that it will be carried too far. The vested interest in our present disorganization is a guarantee against that.

SENATOR BARR AND UNEQUAL REPRESENTATION.

In the state senate debate which preceded adoption of a resolution creating a commission to study reapportionment Senator Richard Barr of Joliet, arguing against equal representation, wanted to know how the Cook county senators would vote on repeal of the 18th amendment.

An ingenuous revelation of the restrictionist position. Residents of the cities are to be deprived of equal representation because of their opinions.

This is not a new discovery, only a verification from the lips of a champion of restriction. What interests us more in this instance is whether the voters of Du Page county think Senator Barr is representing in this matter their welfare in the long run. We doubt it. If a majority of them are dry, which also we doubt, what of other interests or views of public policy now existing or likely to appear at some time in the future? Do they, a growing community, wish their franchise to be restricted and their power of self-protection reduced by some future political or sectional combination? Unequal representation, involving the political domination of a minority over a majority, is not only contrary to American principles of equal suffrage but must inevitably bring about political and social discord which more than offsets any advantage claimed for restriction. Some other states have submitted to it, as Senator Barr asserts, but that is not a satisfactory reason for Illinois doing so, and we are confident it will not.

ONE MANAGEMENT FOR TRAINS AND TRUCKS.

From the wealth of his experience in transportation Mr. W. G. Bierd of the Chicago and Alton railroad suggests a possible solution of the conflict between the railroads and the bus and truck lines. He estimates that 25 billion dollars has been invested in railroads and as much more in motor transport. The nation will derive no benefit from the ruin of either means. As matters stand, the railroads are losing freight and passenger business which is essential to their prosperity, while the bus and truck lines, he thinks, are none too prosperous. Few of them, he says, are making money. He proposes that the railroads be encouraged to take over bus lines. As he puts it:

"The two systems must be brought under one general investment or ownership. . . . The railroad companies . . . should be given the right to furnish and maintain the second system of transportation. . . . The rails should carry through passenger and through freight and its allied motor service the local passenger and local less than carload freight. The rails could take off certain expensive local steam service, save operating costs and still give the public better and more frequent service. Store-door delivery of freight is already here and takes trucks to give it."

This program has much to recommend it. It is in part, at least, an answer to the cry of certain railroad managers for a regulation of motor transport as harsh as that now imposed upon the railroads. From that program little can be expected, for if it succeeds in putting common carrier trucks out of business it can only encourage industries to establish their own trucking fleets, with no benefit, and perhaps further loss, to the railroads.

The advantages of consolidating the two services are manifold. Store-door delivery could be accomplished with a minimum of expense. Transportation management could choose the more economical transportation unit. The huge investment in railroad securities which is at the foundation of our financial structure would be strengthened.

The success of the plan would depend, however, upon a different kind of regulation from that now imposed. The rapid growth of the highway carriers is to be explained in no small part by their freedom thus far from the overlordship of the interstate commerce commission. If the commission, which today undertakes to act as traffic manager for all the railroads, is permitted to govern the buses and trucks as well, the same blighting of initiative is to be expected, whether the trucks are operated independently of the railroads or in coöperation with them. Consolidation will accomplish little unless the powers of the commission are drastically restricted.

MODERATION AND MODIFICATION.

Since the Wickersham committee made its report recommending a moderation of enforcement excesses and a modification of the law the government agents have killed a Nova Scotian skipper and have ripped into an American cod fishing boat which had only cod and no liquor. The Canadian has been buried at home with bitter words from his minister for American hypocrisy which sacrifices life for a commodity it prohibits and demands. The American skipper is roaring over his losses. Thus moderation prevails.

As to modification: Congress has refused to extend to the District of Columbia the recommendation of the commission that the medicinal use of whisky be determined by the physician's judgment and not by statute. The Indiana legislature has refused to heed an appeal for a change in the state law, and Illinois prohibitionists demand that the legislature shall not be advised by the state referendum for the repeal of the search and seizure law.

The majority of President Hoover's fact finding commission found that prohibition was a failure and that the condition of the country required a change in liquor control, in the eighteenth amendment and the enforcement. The reply of the zealots to this is to insist upon more repression. It is characteristic of an intolerant and intolerable dictatorship to increase its frenzy as it loses its case. That may be expected in the next stage of the noble experiment. A greater press of moralistic coercion will be attempted following the decision that the cause is lost.

EDUCATION IN MUSIC.
[New York World.]

The radio, the phonograph and the better movie houses seem to be achieving the popular education in music that they set as one of their chief goals. At a local movie house the other night there was a waiting line, and as several hundred people stood about somebody started to whistle. He rendered the "Arlesienne" Suite of Bizet, correct as to all its tricky intricacies. Somebody responded with the third movement of the Beethoven Fifth. Presently there was a lusty twittering all through the lobby: one heard the Tschaikowsky Sixth, the "Meistersinger" Prelude, the Brahms Third, the Ravel Bolero, the Gershwin Concerto in F.

Now it is easy to smile at these and say they are pieces that have been played to death, but when this much is said it must also be added that they are excellent music. That a dozen or so whistlers casually toss them off while waiting to get in and hear the Tschaikowsky "1812," together with a ballet performance of the Rimsky-Korsakoff "Scheherazade," indicates a great change from, let us say, ten years ago. At that time, even if there had been a few who could have whistled this music, they would have been razzed into silence by the crowd. But now the crowd regarded it as casually as they did. Acquaintanceship with tunes, of course, is not taste, but it is a prerequisite of taste. If we have not developed a nation of music critics, we are well on the way to developing a nation of music sharks.

BELGIUM'S FOG.

EARLIER in the winter the cables carried stories of a wave of death which was sweeping over the valley of the Meuse in Belgium. Some attributed the wave to the atrocities of some modern demon who was loosing gases and bacteria from some laboratory somewhere. Some said German war gases pent up in forgotten chambers, or long held in soil, were finding their way to the surface. Some thought some supernatural devil was loosing his vengeance on the people.

It is now accepted that the cause was not supernatural and not very much out of the ordinary, for that matter. A heavy fog was hanging in this valley at the time of the scare. The death rate may have risen slightly above the normal for this season of the year, but it was not particularly above the normal for heavy fog weather at this particular season.

The death rate of the people who were in vigor a few weeks prior to the fogs was about normal. Such increase of fatal illness as was found to exist was practically all among those who were infirm from age, or from chronic organic diseases, such as heart disease and diseases of the arteries and kidneys. It has long been known that people of these groups are apt to die on foggy days.

The relationship between weather and health has been under study in Europe especially for a number of years. One of the first discoveries resulting from such studies was the fact that heavy fogs were associated with increased death rates.

It was found in London that on the days of dense fog, and for a few days thereafter, the number of reported deaths jumped up. When this was analyzed it was found that it was the old and the infirm from disease who passed on as a result of something associated with dense fogs. On the other hand, it has not been proved that dense fogs initiate disease or promote the onset of acute illness. So far as we know fog was the sole cause of the Meuse scare.

RAYNAUD'S DISEASE.

Mrs. F. L. M. writes: What is Raynaud's disease? Is it possible to operate for this?

REPLY.

Raynaud's disease is a spasm of the muscles of the smaller arteries running to a finger or toe. This spasm causes something of a frostbite effect. Dry gangrene may follow. An operation for it is on trial.

RABBIT DISEASE.

Mrs. H. B. T. writes: I want more information on this rabbit disease. We live where rabbits are plentiful and we eat quite a few. I want to know how a rabbit with this disease looks.

REPLY.

If a wild rabbit acts sick, does not jump easily, or is easily caught, he is probably sick. When many dead rabbits are found in the fields the chances are good that rabbit disease prevails among the game, for other game animals and birds may have this disease. The liver of a freshly killed rabbit that has tularemia usually shows many light areas flecking it here and there.

The people who are in danger of this disease are hunters, cooks, and butchers. Skinning tularemia rabbit is especially dangerous. There is no convincing proof that eating the meat of an infected animal causes one to become infected. The disease is also spread by infected insects such as ticks and deerflies.

FEET OF YOUNG BABIES.

Mrs. R. B. writes:

1. What causes fallen arches in a baby 16 months old?
2. Can they be cured?
3. Can bowlegs be cured at 16 months?

REPLY.

1. The foot of every baby seems to have a fallen arch. Don't be deceived.
2. An occasional baby is born with weak feet. The worst of these cases require operation. A physician should advise as to care or operation.
3. Some apparent bowing of a baby's leg is natural. Genuine bowlegs is a result of rickets. Within limits, it can be cured by viosterol, cod liver oil, and sunlight.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE TRAVELING SALESMAN FOR JOHN BULL & CO., LTD.

The Prince of Wales walked into the Foreign Office of a South American republic. He was smoking a big cigar and wearing his hat jauntily on the back of his head. All high pressure salesmen smoke big cigars and wear their hats jauntily on the back of their heads. He had on a nifty business suit with a big stripe and a red and green necktie and spats. A high pressure salesman has to wear this sort of outfit as a kind of uniform.

"Howdy, Gerty!" said the prince to the young woman in the outer office, "where's the big boy? Wait, don't pull that 'in conference' stuff on me. I'm traveling salesman for John Bull & Co., Limited, the biggest going concern in the world."

"Si," said the young woman, which is yes in Spanish, and which is all the Spanish we will use in the story. You probably don't understand Spanish any better than we, so it will be simpler to have everything in English.

"Well," said the prince, grabbing his sample case and walking over to the door of the private office, "I'm going in anyhow." And in he went.

The Secretary of Foreign Affairs had his feet on his desk and was lying back in his easy chair sound asleep.

"Wake up, big boy!" said the commercial traveler. "I'm not going to make you come over to the hotel and see my samples. Instead of that I've picked out some ox our best selling stuff and brought it to you. Sit up straight, ring for whisky and soda, and listen."

"We're not buying anything right now," said the Secretary of Foreign Affairs; "business is simply shot to hellengone and we've got ourselves loaded with stuff that's spoiling on our hands."

"Good Will," said the enthusiastic salesman, "Good Will, if it's proper quality and guaranteed, is always in demand. There's a lot of it, though, being put on the market that's pretty flimsy stuff and fades mighty quick. I'm not knocking, you understand; I'm just telling you."

"I know," replied the Foreign Secretary, "we took a big consignment of Good Will not long ago—not from your people but a rival firm—and it mildewed and rotted."

"Sure," said the high pressure salesman, "and when you examined it you found it full of high tariff moths that had just about ruined it."

"Exactly," said the Foreign Secretary, "so having been stung we thought we wouldn't get any more Good Will for awhile.

"Never mind," said the high pressure lad, "I want you to look over these samples of Good Will I've got here. This stuff is all wool, guaranteed, won't shrink, silk lined, Al double stitched, and has never given any of our customers anything but the highest satisfaction. How much do you want? Whaddayasay?"

"Well," said the Foreign Secretary, fingering the samples of Good Will the prince had shown him, "this seems pretty fair quality, but we were offered a new line from those people I told you about while ago, and they said the same thing about their stuff."

"I know, I know!" said the personal representative of J. Bull & Co., Limited, "those people are making a big drive on Good Will goods, too. They're overstocked and can't get rid of it in any other way than to cut prices below the cost of production. That's our big rival, Uncle Sam & Co., what?"

"Yes, they're the ones. They say their customers are just tickled pink over the quality of their goods."

"Lissen! One thing we don't do is to run down some other firm's goods. I'm not saying a word about the quality or the color or the wearing qualities of the Good Will those people are selling. But I understand that over in Europe their stuff isn't going so hot and that lots of countries down here in South America are simply refusing their shipments. Now, there's no place where we sell our Rule Britannia line, trademark on the selvage, that they don't say it's the best they've ever used and rush right back with another order."

"What about India?" said the Foreign Secretary, dryly. And it was, indeed, strange that he spoke dryly, because he was already lapping up the third whisky and soda he had drunk since the salesman came in.

"Oh, India!" said the star salesman of J. Bull & Co., Limited. "Well, let me tell you we're putting plenty of Good Will into India."

"Fairly shooting it in," said the Foreign Secretary.

"I'm sorry," said the traveling salesman, stiffly, "will you say that again?"

"Oh, nothing!" said the Foreign Secretary. "I was just thinking."

"We don't force our goods on anybody," went on the salesman for the British empire. "But our rival, Uncle Sam & Co., does. That's the way he sells the trade in the Philippines, but our firm doesn't do business that way—it doesn't pay in the long run. And believe me, Uncle Sam & Co. has put in a line of goods in Central America that nobody likes, I'm telling you. It's a pretty sort of stuff, very bright colored and called marine blue. But I hear there's lot of kicks on it from Nicaragua and Haiti and all around. And you ought to hear my old pal, Mussolini, one of the big buyers over in Italy, holler."

"I've heard something about that," said the Foreign Secretary. "Well, come around tomorrow and show me some more samples and I'll see if we want to place an order with your people."

"Righto, have a cigar, old top. Don't do anything until you see the rest of my samples. When it comes to Good Will, don't forget that we've got the niftiest line put out by anybody in the business. Boy, I'm telling you, it's the candy!"

"Did you say Gandhi?" asked the Foreign Secretary, sitting straight up.

"No, no, no!" protested the high pressure salesman, somewhat nervously. "I said candy! You know what I mean: candy; that is to say our stuff is the real thing, the surefire stuff; you know the expression, 'It's the candy'!"

"Gandhi?" asked the Foreign Secretary, standing up.

"No, candy; 'c-a-n-d-y'! Get me, now? Well, good-by, don't take any bad money and wait before you place any orders until you see me again. Goo'by!"

"But 'candy' does sound like 'Gandhi,'" mused the Foreign Secretary. R. H. L.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 5, 1915.

BERLIN.—Germany declared a blockade on all waters around the British isles. In an official statement the admiralty warned all neutral shipping to stay out of those waters after Feb. 18. Every merchant ship of the enemy will be sunk, regardless of whether or not the passengers and crew can be saved, it was stated. Charging that the misusing of neutral flags was ordered by Great Britain, the admiralty asserted that neutral vessels might be sunk by mistake if they entered waters near the British isles.

LONDON.—A German gain of importance in the Argonne was reported in the official statement from Berlin. Three lines of trenches were stormed and the principal French positions, more than a mile in length, were taken, with the capture of 600 prisoners, eighteen guns, and much war material. The French admit these losses, but claim the positions later were recovered. A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam reports the annihilation of a German battalion which endeavored to storm a British position near Arras. French reinforcements were all that saved the day, however, and the Germans were driven back.

CHICAGO.—Edward Tilden, banker and packer, died at his residence, 5020 Woodlawn avenue. Death was due to blood poisoning, traced to bridgework in his teeth, according to Charles P. Caldwell, his physician. Mr. Tilden was born in Utica, N. Y., on June 17, 1858.

FEBRUARY 5, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Two states repudiated prize fighting and last night Gov. Yates and Gov. La Follette played shuttlecock with 500 sportsmen who were trying to find a place at which to hold a fistic contest between Eddie Croake and Young Peter Jackson. Gov. Yates, by declaring he would call out the militia, caused the promoters to abandon their idea of holding the fight early in the evening in the opera house at Belvidere, Ill. The "promoters" announced they would go into Wisconsin for the fight, and Gov. La Follette ordered sheriffs of counties bordering on Illinois to stop the proposed bout, and telegraphed the railroad company that he would hold the officials as abettors if the special train was brought into Wisconsin. The special train early this morning was at Gilberts, Ill., where preparations were being made for the contest.

LONDON.—The final rites attending the burial of Queen Victoria were performed at St. George's chapel, Windsor, and at Frogmore, where the body of the queen was laid to rest beside that of the prince consort. Except for the great mass of onlookers and the lines of soldiers bending over their rifles in an attitude of mourning today's cortège was that of a private family funeral.

FEBRUARY 5, 1881.

LONDON.—On the arrival here of Michael Davitt, the Irish agitator, arrested in Dublin for violation of his ticket of leave from prison to which he was sentenced for his part in the Fenian conspiracy of 1866, he was taken before the chief magistrate at the Bow street police court and sent to Pentonville prison to serve out the remaining part of his term. It will be between four and five years. Davitt's original trial was a wicked farce, and his imprisonment in Millbank prison at Dartmoor and Portsmouth inhuman. When arrested he was a robust young man and when released he was broken down by maltreatment.

LONDON.—Four hundred extra police were on guard at the house of commons to maintain order during the debate on the Irish question. The speaker's home and Gladstone's residence were guarded. John Dillon, Parnell's lieutenant, who has been suspended from the house of commons, left London for Dublin for an extraordinary meeting of the Land league. It is probable he will take Davitt's place as chief director of the league in Ireland.

THE RECAPTURE CLAUSE.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 2.—In justice to a policy which the interstate commerce commission has adopted and which they should retain instead of discontinue, I must take exceptions to some of the statements made in your editorial, "The Recapture Clause," in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Feb. 1.

The recapture clause does not mean that the government's share of the earnings beyond 6 per cent is "to be divided among the less successful railroad companies," but instead the act reads, "The general railroad contingent fund which is to be built up from the government's share of earnings beyond 6 per cent is to serve as a revolving fund—in furtherance of public interest in railway transportation, either by making loans to carriers to meet expenditures for capital account . . . or by purchasing transportation equipment and facilities and leasing the same to carriers."

This act as stated by the Supreme court in the Dayton-Goose Creek case is an essential part of a general plan to provide adequate transportation facilities and, as such, represents sound public policy. The appropriation of one-half of the excess earnings of a common carrier above a reasonable return on a fair valuation and use of that fund for the benefit of the public will not "jeopardize the credit and serviceability" of the more successful railroad companies, for the reasonable return permits them to retain funds sufficient to maintain and increase their present standards of service. Aid extended by the government to the less successful railroads, through the medium of this contingent fund, is a benefit not only to the weaker roads but to the public as a whole.

VITAL STATISTICS.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—The Chicago health department reports our crop of 1930 babies as fewer but better. Signs indicate that a lower birth rate was brought about by the wider use of birth control methods, but the interesting feature to consider is that the lower birth rate also brought a lower infant mortality rate, and if these statistics are examined further it will be found that there was also a lower maternity death rate. The maternity death rate in the United States in recent years has been nearly three times that of European countries, where birth control has been more widely practiced.

R. RIDDLESBARGER.

COMPROMISE.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—At the Legion convention in Aurora the writer submitted a resolution asking that $15,000 be set aside for those of our comrades in drought stricken areas in Illinois, but, after some discussion, the finance committee reached a compromise and decided not to give them anything. I hope, therefore, that those of my comrades in a position to do so will give with a generous hand to those who through no fault of theirs are lacking the common necessities of life.

A DRY VIEWS THE REFERENDUM.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—As the clerical portion of the delegation mentioned in your editorial of Jan. 30, "Repeal of State Prohibition" as having appeared in the house of representatives in opposition to repeal, I trust you will permit me briefly to state the basis of our opposition. We do not believe that the vote registered for repeal constitutes a mandate for repeal because it is a minority vote. A majority of the vote cast for President in 1928 is 1,553,762. The repeal vote was 493,748 less than this majority. The total vote for United States senator in 1930 was 2,416,518, a majority of which being 1,208,259, the vote for repeal was 148,255 less than a majority of the senatorial vote.

The vote for repeal was a majority of the vote cast for senator in only 6 of our 102 counties. The repeal vote in the 32 legislative districts downstate only showed a majority of the vote for senator in two districts. The vote for repeal in Cook county was 136,087 short of a majority of the vote cast for senator.

The total vote for repeal in the state was only slightly over a third of the vote for President in 1928. Most damaging of all for the claim of mandate was that the repeal vote for 1930 was 4,996 less than the vote for repeal in 1922, notwithstanding an increase of about 500,000 voters in the last eight years. And this with the leading dry organization of the state urging drys not to vote while the wets had a highly organized and financed campaign and the benefit of a popular wet candidate for senator.

A TEMPTATION REMOVED.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—It is very fortunate that our beloved city is without funds at this time. Imagine the temptation to our daring bandits if there were fifty thousand dollars in the city hall! Verily, not one cloud but has its silver lining.

Or, if the policemen's salaries were threatened, would they become better marksmen and shoot those bandits?

May I suggest that we borrow a few of the Canadian mounted police?

HERMAN TEUPEL.

VISA FEES.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—England charges ten dollars for a visa of a passport. France charges two. The Irish Free State, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy make no charge. It seems strange that England and France, which are so financially embarrassed, should charge tourists for spending money in their countries. I should like to spend a few weeks with our English cousins when I go to Europe next spring, but dislike to be gouged for the privilege.

TALK AT PARTY N 1887 IS USED TO COMBAT WILL

avid Jamieson, now 69 years old, 1322 Ellis avenue, was a guest at party given in 1887 by his friend, bert W. Longley, on his farm near nesville, Wis. Jamieson was a wit- here yesterday at the hearing on the rt contest to break Longley's will ed he surprised the courtroom spec- tors by quoting verbatim a conver- tion at that party more than forty- three years ago.

Longley died on Oct. 28, 1928, leav- ing the bulk of his $1,000,000 estate to his third wife, Mrs. Mary Caroline Longley of Los Angeles. The suit to break the will was instituted a year ago by George Adair Green Longley, 43 years old, of Janesville, who claims he is the son of Longley and his first wife, Mary Adair Longley.

George Longley also claims that the late Mrs. Longley unduly influenced the drawing of the will of her husband, who was a Chicago hat manufacturer. Mrs. Longley contends that the contestant is an impostor. The suit is being heard by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg.

Jamieson testified that he and his wife were living in 1887 on a farm adjacent to Longley's race horse farm near Janesville. The party given by Longley was attended by twenty persons, he said. While he was talking to Longley and two other men, Jamieson said, a boy galloped up on a pony and dismounted.

Calls Youth His Son.

"Whose youngster is that on the pony?" one of the men asked Longley, according to Jamieson.

"That's my son, George," was the answer, Jamieson said. "He is ten years old."

Jamieson was asked how he remembered the conversation so distinctly.

"I had been drinking nothing but water," Jamieson replied. "I remember the incident clearly because of the comments that were made about my drinking water instead of liquor. I presume there was something uncommon about a young man refusing liquor and they laughed. I still refuse it today and that is still uncommon for a young man, I think."

Jamieson said that he did not see George Longley again until November of 1929, when the latter came to his home. He said that he mistook George for the elder Longley, the resemblance being so striking.

W. H. Chesbrough, 87 years old, of Beloit, Wis., testified that he owned a store in Janesville in the seventies and knew Albert Longley well. He corroborated Jamieson's testimony, saying that he also attended the party.

Basil Van Derrlin of Los Angeles testified that he was a roommate of George Longley from 1906 to 1924. In 1913, he said, the first Mrs. Longley told him the true story of George's birth.

"She said that she had lived with Albert Longley," Van Derrlin said, "and when the baby was born she demanded that Albert marry her. She said that he refused at that time, but they were married eighteen months later."

Bandit Knocked Out by Fall at Scene of Crime

Come over to my grocery at 1501 Larrabee street and arrest the fellow who just held me up," Joseph Barome last night telephoned the Hudson avenue station. "He's asleep on the sidewalk." The patrol responded and the policemen found Robert Schultze, 33 years old, 1951 Emmerson avenue. In his hand was a .38 caliber revolver. The officers took him to the station. Leaving the grocery after the holdup, he had stumbled on three steps and fallen face downward on the sidewalk, the impact knocking him unconscious.

Englewood, N. J., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had a birthday today, but he wasn't talking about it to reporters. He spent his 29th milestone at the home of his father-in-law, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, in the company of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover's reappointment of United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson of Chicago was confirmed today by the senate with no dissenting vote. District Attorney Johnson's term of office is to expire Feb. 7. The reappointment is for another year. He was originally sponsored by Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.], but his reappointment also had the approval of Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.], who will continue in the next congress as Illinois' single administration senator.

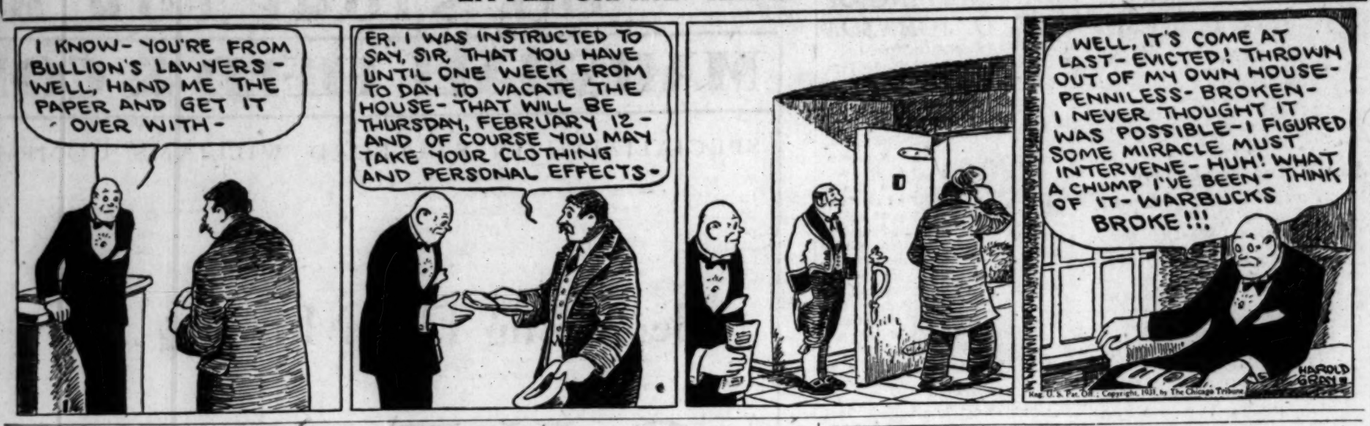
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Broke!



ONLY A MILLION LEFT BY STRAUS AFTER CHARITIES

Gave Most of Fortune While Living.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special.]—"What you give for the cause of charity in health is gold; what you give in sickness is silver, and what you give after death is lead."

With the filing of the will of the late Nathan Straus today, counsel for the estate disclosed how closely the philanthropist had adhered to his favorite Jewish proverb. Of his great property, estimated during his lifetime to have run into many millions, he had perhaps less than one million when he died.

Mr. Straus' benefactions ran into the millions of dollars, although no authoritative total of his gifts was available today. A few years ago it was revealed that for many years he had been devoting his entire income and part of the principal of his fortune to charitable enterprises.

No Bequests to Charity.

There are no bequests to charity in the will. The sum of $100,000 is to be divided among persons in his employ in such a way as his executors may deem fit, his wishes "being known to them."

His children, Nathan Straus Jr., Hugh Grant Straus, and Mrs. Sissie S. Lehman, wife of Judge Irving Lehman of the Court of Appeals, are the executors.

The original will, considerably modified by codicils, leaves all household effects to Mrs. Lina Straus, his wife, who died last May. The residuary estate is divided into three parts, one for each of the sons and the third as a life trust for Mrs. Lehman. At her death the fund is to be divided between her brothers.

Half Million for Son.

This codicil also provides that Nathan Straus Jr. is to be given $500,000 before the estate is divided, explaining that this bequest is made "solely by reason of circumstances known to all my children; they surely understand that in my measureless love for all of them, there can be no difference or distinction."

After quoting the proverb, Mr. Straus had added:

"Many of the rich do not even give lead. I have always lived up to the above proverbs, particularly in connection with the charities which I initiated, the pasteurized milk laboratory, the preventorium, and my Palestinian activities. I have all my life drawn whatever I could draw out of business and devoted it to the prevention of poverty and sickness, and make no specific charitable provisions in my will."

"It is my wish that none of my children or grandchildren shall ever marry out of the faith, and I enjoin upon them always to be and remain good Jews."

RABBI L. J. KOPALD OF GLENCOE IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Dr. Louis J. Kopald, 46 years old, rabbi of the North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, died yesterday at the Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md., where he had been for six weeks suffering from tuberculosis.

Dr. Kopald is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elsa Rheinstroim Kopald, who was at his bedside. He was a brother of Sigmund L. and Herman G. Kopald, Mrs. Richard W. Desdecker, and Mrs. Louis E. Wilzin. He was born in Austria, but his parents brought him to America when he was three months old. He had been in charge of the congregation at Glencoe for three years.

Receiving his B. A. and M. A. degrees at the University of Cincinnati, and later taking a special course in Semitics at the University of California, Dr. Kopald entered the ministry at Stockton, Cal., in 1909.

Funeral services will be held in Baltimore, with Rabbi Stephen S. Wise officiating.

THE LONG LOOP

BY B. M. BOWER

SYNOPSIS.

Dave Larrabee, head of Whistling Creek ranch, was swindled in an oil well frameup by Dan Gray, neighboring rancher and banker. Everything he owned, except the home ranch, was mortgaged. Dix, an orphan, keeps from his grandmother and his young sister, Chuck the true state of affairs. Gram has her heart set on seeing Chuck a doctor. Chuck has expensive tastes and his indulgent older brother has a hard task saving for his college tuition and material demands.

Rhy McGuire tempts Dix with the idea of changing the brand of the cattle from Lazy O 7 ranch to a coffeepot, symbol of Dix's own.

Tom, an Indian helper, discovers a lost valley with a geyser on the Coffeepot ranch and one passage leads to it, through what is seemingly a blank cliff wall. It is an ideal retreat for cattle.

With vague misgivings Dix begins rustling from Gray's herd, hiding the stolen cattle in Lost valley. A blizzard obliterates all traces of the crime. After a second raid Dix was ready to call quits, but Mart and Tom continued night riding on their own. Dix's profits mounted steadily after every shipping.

Chuck and a flier friend, named Frosty, arrive at the ranch. Chuck confesses to Dix that he has given up a medical career for aviation. He and Frosty plan to build secretly a competitive plane for a prize. A shed built against the crevice, hiding the entrance to Lost valley, seems to them the ideal place for their work.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

RESENTED REMARKS.

Chuck awoke singing "Who's sorr-ree no-ow" between yawns, and apologized for hogging more than his share of the bed and asked Dix for a buck to pay the charges on some stuff that would be waiting in the express office. He and Frosty would drift into Graypoint right after breakfast and size up the joint and get their extra baggage and some things they would need. They'd be back by noon, he said. They wanted to get right to work on that shed. They had a long hard grind before them and the sooner they got organized the better. And how about that plane they were going to need? It still burnt Chuck up to think of being handicapped doing without one when they could get a good used plane for around two thousand dollars. The sooner they got one the better, Chuck thought.

"O, I guess I can rake up that much," Dix yielded in a tired, flat voice. "Only don't hit too often, Chuck. Believe it or not, I'm not made of money, you know. There's a limit to what the old Coffeepot can dig up."

Chuck stood up yawning, his eyes going to the window and to the valley beyond. Suddenly he smiled boyishly and grabbed Dix by the collar, swinging him around so that the two stood face to face.

"You're a great old scout, do you know it? You've stood by. Don't think I'm unappreciative if I fail to rave about the way you hung on here and gave me a free hand back in Baltimore. I don't suppose it really means a whole lot to you what profession I take up, just so I do something and get somewhere. I've cost you quite a lot, maybe, but I'll make that up fast enough. This Frosty is a genius, no less. He's got certain safety devices worked out to incorporate in his absolutely original plane, that—well, if we don't fly off with that hundred thousand, it'll be just too bad, that's all!"

"Yeah. Well, breakfast's about ready." Dix pulled away as casually as he could and went outside. He busied himself at the stables until he saw the two go scooting through the gate and down the twisty road to Graypoint. When nothing was left of them but a slow settling dust cloud he rode up to the weaning shed to have a last look around before he closed the masked opening for good. And there he found Mart, just emerging from the crevice and looking the picture of gloom.

"You damn crazy fool!" panted Mart.

"Dix," he began glumly, "it's a crime to let them two hellions come in here and kill a hull winter's work like this. You got a good two carloads of beef back in there, easy. But it ain't goin' to do yu a damn bit of good unless we can sift 'em back onto the range gradual. That's goin' to take a couple months, if we do it right—and if we don't do it right somebody's liable to jump us into court. 'Case uh bein' safe or sorry. You got to put your foot down on Chuck, fer once in yer life. Hell, he can't come in here and wring the goose's neck that's been layin' him gold eggs every mornin' fer his breakfast."

"Well, what excuse would I make?" Dix flung out both hands in a gesture of helplessness. "They're here, and the stuff to build that plane of theirs is on the way. They've got to have some place to work, I s'pose, and they seem to think this is it. I don't see what I can do about it, Mart—except leave the cattle right where they're at till they've built their plane and get to hell outa here."

Mart stifled a chuckle of satisfaction. It was the first time in his life that Dix had ever expressed the slightest impatience with Chuck and his schemes. It tickled Mart, but he knew better than to show it.

"Well, on the other hand, they're goin' to run yuh into money, Dix. You shore are goin' to need that beef this fall, and yuh know damn well yuh daresn't chance shippin' a hoof that wasn't took off the range in plain sight. And moreover, that fool notion you've got of turnin' back half the increase—"

"It's all fool notions, I reckon," Dix said dully. "And the biggest one of the lot was the one I started out with in the first place. I thought I had everything figured down to a fine point, but I sure overlooked a bet. Chuck plantin' himself right here on this spot like a cat at a rathole—I sure never thought of that.

"No, there's just one thing to do, Mart." Dix walked over to his horse and began to unbuckle the flap of his saddle pocket. "I'm going to plug up and plug the rathole right now. They've got plenty of feed and water in there—let them stay till Chuck's through here and gone on about his business."

"And what about shippin' time?" Mart wanted to know. "How yuh goin' to get it out at the bank, Dix? Ain't they goin' to kinda wonder why the checks for your beef shipments is fell off all of a sudden? Course, if you're shaped up so good the bank won't never notice a drop of five or six thousand in the fall returns, that's all right. But you get 'em broke to expect about so much comin' in, and then in another year when you jumped it up another notch—hell, you know your own business better'n what I do, Dix, but it shore looks to me like you'd oughta take all this into consideration before you go lettin' them two plant theirselves in front of this hole. If you ever figured anything in yore life, kid, you shore gotta figure right now."

"I spent the night at it, Mart."

"Say!" Mart shot a sidelong glance at Dix while he appeared to be gazing off down the level stretch that had so appealed to Chuck and Frosty. "Say, Dix, endurin' yore figurin', did yuh happen to figure on tellin' Chuck the hull thing from start to finish, and lettin' him pack his share uh the load?"

"No." Dix's mouth hardened. "I might be crazy, but I ain't as crazy as that."

"What's so damn crazy about it?" Mart challenged. "It's comin' to Chuck to know where you got the money to let him go hellin' around in a flue car back east while you laid under an old lizzie about half your time, and sit in here and watch your beef shrink and dwindle and—and ain't it? It shore is comin' to him to know how you sweat blood tryin' to make a doctor of him—and him not even studyin' to be one. You stealin' cattle to send him money to blow like a drunk sheepherder in shearin' time! Why, damn his soul——"

Dix whirled and struck Mart full in the mouth with his gloved fist. The shed wall caught Mart and saved him from falling, and as he staggered there Dix caught him on the cheek bone with another blow that had his full weight behind it. Mart struck out, then rushed to a clinch, hooking one long leg around Dix's legs. They went down in a heap, fighting like wildcats.

A roundup wrestler from the time he first drew a man's wages was Mart, and he knew all the tricks. Dix never had been a fighter, but it took every trick of range fighting save gouging and mayhem to handle him now. It was as if the pent bitterness of the last three years was suddenly finding outlet in a cyclone of flailing arms and legs and the springy writhings of his limber body.

Because Mart looked upon Dix as a man in delirium, to be subdued without being hurt, Mart got the worst of it. When the storm was over and Dix stood leaning against the shed wall with his face on his arms and his legs shaking worse than Gram's palsied hand, Mart went off to the pool to staunch his bleeding nose and to bathe a rapidly swelling eye. Faint sounds of hammer blows came to him as he dismounted at the pasture gate. That would be Dix driving home nails that fastened the masked doorway and "plugged the rathole."

"Wouldn't fight for himself, the damn fool," Mart muttered as he rode on. "Dig up his last dime for Chuck—turn cow thief for Chuck—take the worst of it right along and never a much as a whimper—and then try 'n lick me that raised 'im like his own pappy! Tried to lick me, the best friend he's got in the world!"

Good Morning!

Exactly!

It's parlor, bedroom, and bath politics and its hero, to quote himself, is "Just a diplomatic gigolo—that's all." It's the screenization of the stage farce "The Command to Love," and from what I've heard about the play—which I didn't see—isn't one, two, three with the former.

Mr. Hays, I understand, was very firm with the producers about this number. They mustn't use the original title and they must delete this, that, and the other thing—including the backbone, I imagine—or else papa pank. So it's been all fixed up. All—fixed—up!

O, well, the picture as stands is an agreeably acted, prettily staged piece, and details interestingly enough the adventures of that handsome military attaché, Baron Valmi, who is invaluable to his country because of his popularity with the wives of men who have favors to grant. When a treaty must be signed by the war minister Baron Valmi is commanded to love the war minister's wife. And so on.

The ladies all wear intriguing gowns, smile like kitty cats, and talk in birdlike voices. [If the smiles ever meet the voices what have you?] Mr. Keith, as the Baron, is a delightful fellow. All of the players are expert and personable.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Clergy of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago yesterday defeated the laity in the latter's attempt to have equal voting rights with clergy in future elections of bishops. Battle for such equal rights has been waged in annual diocesan conventions for more than 30 years, but yesterday, toward the close of the 94th convention, the clergy reversed its practically unanimous vote of 1930. At last year's session the clergy favored changing the church constitution in favor of the laity.

While the nomination may come from either lay or clerical sources, the clergy now elect a bishop and the laity either confirm or reject him.

The resolution, which must be adopted at two succeeding conventions, lost by a vote of 52 to 39. Lay delegations from only three parishes supported the clergy, while 57 parishes voted for the change. The resolution was presented by Charles E. Field of Evanston. His identical resolution was adopted last year. In introducing the resolution yesterday Mr. Field stated he had heard of a clerical whispering campaign against it. He challenged the clergy to present their arguments against a method of election in use in the great majority of Episcopal dioceses.

Mr. Field's challenge was not answered. He then stated that the late Bishop C. P. Anderson repeatedly had appealed to him to "keep up the fight" for the change, while the late Bishop Sheldon Munsun Griswold likewise had urged him to press for its adoption.

Attorney John V. Norcross of Highland Park, speaking for the change, pointed out that as the laity elect rectors they should have intelligence enough to participate in the election of bishops instead of being held responsible "for correcting the blunders of the clergy" in such elections.

Apprehension was expressed by both clergy and laity after the close of the convention as to the effect of the vote adverse to the laity. John D. Allen, president of the Chicago Church club, stated that he "feared the reversal of last year's position of the clergy was a great mistake in such times as these, and when the laity are expected to participate in an expanding diocesan program." Mr. Field said he felt his resolution had been defeated long before the vote was taken, and that the silence of the clergy in answer to his challenge only confirmed that feeling.

In appointing two archdeacons yesterday Bishop George Craig Stewart started what is regarded the most extensive missionary program ever undertaken by Chicago Episcopalians. He appointed the Rev. Winfred H. Ziegler of Elgin and the Rev. Frederick G. Deis, national field secretary of the church, to the office.

Those chosen yesterday to represent the diocese of Chicago at the general convention of the church to be held in Denver in September are:

The Rev. Messrs. George T. Thomas, Stephen E. Keeler, Frederick C. Grant, and Edwin J. Randall. Lay deputies elect are Messrs. Courtney Barber, William F. Pelham, Henry E. Mason, and Edward J. Rogerson. The members of the standing committee of the diocese were reëlected.

Air Traffic Links Faraway Climes at Lunch

Newark, N. J., Selected for Practical Test.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 4.—(AP)—By air transport from many states and three foreign countries viands were brought to Newark airport and laid today on a luncheon board.

From the Chicago soup to the Missouri strawberry ice cream and the Texas cactus candy it was an all-air feast, celebrating the opening of a union passenger terminal at the airport.

More than a hundred guests sampled a meal assembled within 36 hours from points as remote as Seattle, Havana and Phoenix, Ariz., and spread before them were 800 pounds of food, every ounce of it air shipped.

The luncheon was arranged to demonstrate what a hub of aerial transportation the Newark airport, terminal for many an air line operating to the metropolitan district of New York, has become. The airport is less than three-quarters of an hour from the center of New York City.

Ham from Greenville, S. C.; beef bouillon from Chicago, caviar put up in Buffalo, baked beans and codfish rom Boston, dates from Phoenix, Ariz., salad made from Idaho potatoes, pickles packed in Pittsburgh, pretzels made in Harrisburg, and guava jelly put up in Connellsville, Pa., pomegranates from Dallas, Tex., grapefruit from Texas' Rio Grande valley, butter from Montreal and Oklahoma, coffee from New Orleans, strawberries from Missouri's Ozarks, ice cream from Schenectady, N. Y., oranges from Orlando and Jacksonville, Fla., and from southern California, onions from Colorado, apples from Seattle and from Oregon, avocados from California, pork and beef from Chicago packing plants, pineapples from Panama, and cigars from Havana.

Oysters in the shell were started from Baltimore at 10 o'clock this morning and arrived at Newark airport at 11:45 with the sea air still on them. The apples from Oregon were 36 hours on the way. The cigars were started from Cuba Monday and got to Newark last night at 4:55.

The cactus candy was started from El Paso at 4 a. m. Tuesday and delivered at the airport in 12 hours. The alligator pears left Los Angeles Monday and got to the airport at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday. Even the flour from which the bread was baked was shipped by air from Kansas—120 pounds of it.

More than 200 pounds of food left from the luncheon, including five boxes of air transported oranges from Los Angeles and Jacksonville, was given to St. Michael's hospital in Newark.

Jewish Charities Seek More Than $3,000,000 for Work in Chicago

More than $3,000,000 will be spent during a year by institutions affiliated with the Jewish Charities of Chicago. That was revealed last night at a meeting of the board of directors of that organization. Of that total the Jewish Charities, the Jewish community fund, have voted to contribute almost half.

Allotments provided in the $1,413,433 budget of the Jewish Charities will be made to the following institutions: Board of Jewish education, Chicago Home for Jewish Orphans, Hebrew Sheltering home, Home for Aged Jews, Jewish Child Welfare council, Jewish Free Employment bureau, Jewish Home Finding society, Jewish Social Service bureau, Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home, Michael Reese hospital, Babette and Emanuel Mandel clinic, Mount Sinai hospital, Orthodox Jewish Home for the Aged, the Winfield sanitarium, and Women's Loan association.

Alfred K. Foreman, president of the Jewish Charities, discussing the budget, called attention to the fact that it is $230,296 beyond the anticipated income. This amount is expected to be received from subscribers and other sources.

MARY WIGMAN DANCES AGAIN HERE, CRITIC COMMENTS ON WORK

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mary Wigman's program at Orchestra hall last night was in great part different from her former appearance, containing, I am told—I was an absentee, fighting a battle with flu germs the other time—less deliberate ugliness and more of the fantasy and strength which would seem to be her great claims to fame.

What Miss Wigman teaches ought to be a source of great comfort to the rest of us who are in the habit of letting others do our dancing for us. Just get up and express a mood, thereby gaining more expressiveness and better muscular development the longer you keep at it. The only trouble is that sometimes the cue to the mood is a bit vague and its manner of expression still vaguer, which is likely to upset the verdict of the onlookers.

One thing, however, is certain. As many moods as possible should end with a prostrate flop to the floor. Others, as far as Miss Wigman is concerned, are indicated with postures of many kinds, some of them eye filling in their beauty, others raising the suspicion that their ancestry traced back to gymnastic drill movements, few, if any, in the artistic scheme of any other dancer within memory.

In all Miss Wigman exhibited a superb control of body and limbs. Occasionally she went oriental and wore a mask, a device which dancers of the exotic type would do well to consider. For rather strangely, the blankness of an oriental mask became more expressive than human features.

The music of piano, flutes and a battery of various percussion instruments, was played by Hans Hasting and Meta Menz. Frequently it was a single rhythmic phrase repeated over and over again, and at such times was least annoying when it was least pronounced. Sometimes there were long intervals of silence, punctuated with a single stroke of drum or tom-tom or what not. But not the least interesting part of the program was the poised intentness of these two young people as they waited to connect Miss Wigman's bodily rhythm with their instrumental rhythm.

Apparently Miss Wigman is running something of a danger as far as American audiences are concerned. It is that she is likely to become a cult.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Puppets, once the lowly side attraction of the circus and old fashioned variety bill in vaudeville, will invade the Goodman theater next Sunday afternoon and Monday night.

For the first time in the history of the Chicago stage life sized marionettes will perform. And for the first time locally a large orchestra and singers will interpret the gesticulations of the loose jointed mimics, who in this case are concerned mainly with the chivalrous adventures of one Don Quixote.

The puppet show is called "Master Peter's Puppet Show," by the Spanish composer, Manuel de Falla, and staged by Remo Bufano, master puppeteer of New York, who introduced the life sized puppet into this country. It will be presented in connection with the performance sponsored by the Chicago chapter of the International Society for Contemporary Music.

"There is an increasing interest in puppets as an integral part of music and drama," Mr. Bufano said as he rehearsed the armored Don Quixote and Sancho among others at the theater yesterday. "This is indicated also in the fact that the Guggenheim Foundation recently issued two scholarships in the marionette field.

Mr. Bufano explained that the stage is a double one, the three life sized puppets governed from a bridge by puppeteers wearing black costumes and masks. For "Master Peter's Puppet Show" is a puppet show within a puppet show. It is the old story of the knight who took upon himself the job of rescuing a damsel in distress when the actors in a puppet show in an inn become real to him.

Einstein Has Theory Later Than Relativity

Offers It as Closed Box to U. S. Scientists.

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Albert Einstein has a new concept of cosmology. The old Einsteinian universe is a thing of the past.

A gasp of astonishment swept through the library of the Mount Wilson laboratory here today when the Berlin professor made that revelation. World famous astronomers present saw in his words a new field for research.

"Regardless of what field equations are used, space never can be anything similar to the old symmetrical spherical space theory," the professor said with a smile in closing an hour and a half talk on his new unified field theory.

With these words he swept aside his original concept of the universe, likewise that of De Sitter, Dutch astronomer and a friend.

The new concept of the universe hinges upon the work of two California scientists, Dr. Edwin P. Hubble, Mount Wilson astronomer, and Dr. Richard Chace Tolman, California institute of technology physicist. It comes from the observations of Hubble and the calculations of Tolman.

Hubble is perhaps the world's most advanced student of the island universes or distant nebulae. Tolman, his friend, has used Hubble's observations for the basis of his theory of an ever-expanding, nonstatic universe, in which matter is constantly being converted into energy. That concept is probably known as the universe running down.

Einstein, speaking in German, to a select group of astronomers and physicists, unfolded the development of his unified field theory. He told how the foundation of the general principle of relativity was unsatisfactory and required further development. The equations were generalized to find a solution for the structure of space.

This resulted in the unified field theory in which equations accounted for the phenomena of electro-magnetism as well as gravitation. An equation of distant parallelism of two infinitely small spaces worked out the solution insofar as weak fields of gravitation and electro-magneticism were concerned, he said.

"No methods are known of investigating in an indirect way without integration," he said in commenting upon his unified field theory.

"I offer it to you like a closed box, and as one who doesn't know what is in it," Einstein said.

"While it appears like a closed box, we hope to have the cover off soon and see what's in it," replied Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Mount Wilson observatory. Adams had established one of the astronomical proofs of the principle of relativity.

"Now what can you tell us of the applications of the unified field theory to cosmology?" Adams asked.

In the general excitement, the professor found he had exceeded his time by half an hour and rushed off to another engagement.

"There is some real meat in that," Dr. Adams said, as the astronomers and physicists made plans for further conferences with Einstein on his new concept.

One interpretation of his remark was that it also implied no "closed space" could exist.

Beta Theta Pi Will Give Yearly Banquet Tomorrow

Chicago alumni and undergraduate members of the Beta Theta Pi college fraternity will assemble in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house tomorrow, Feb. 6, at 6:30 p. m. for the annual banquet of the Beta Theta Pi club of Chicago. The first of these dinners was held in the year 1869.

Four hundred members have made reservations. The Chicago affair is one of several to be held that night in different cities in honor of the founder of the fraternity, John Reilly Knox, Miami, 1839. Francis Wayland Shepardson, national president of Beta Theta Pi, will be the principal guest here and will deliver an address on the founder.

Dr. Stephen E. Keeler, Yale, 1916, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, will act as toastmaster. An address will be made by Alfred W. Place, Chicago D. B., 1913, former college athlete of note, who has returned to this city after spending a number of years in Japan lecturing at Waseda and Keio universities. He was responsible, to a large extent, for introducing the American college athletic system into Japan.

Block Prints Upon Textiles Delight Critic

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THERE is a most amusing, instructive and charming exhibit at Au Paradis, 940 North Michigan avenue. It is rather unusual as well, being an exhibit of textile designs. Ruth Reeves is the artist responsible for the designs and to a great extent for the fabrics upon which they appear. Her block prints have been transferred bodily to the various materials in varying color schemes and the result is as successful as it is extraordinary. Some thirteen different cotton cloths are used, and these in addition to voiles, linens, and other heavier material.

But the materials do not keep our attention long. The patterns and the colors are too fascinating to lose. In one, for example, Ruth Reeves does honor to the memory of Emily Dickinson, a New England poet, having contrived this most mid-Victorian design with its self-conscious qualities to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of her birth. Most of the designs are gayer and freer. The "American Scene" is alive with every activity natural to us—the radio, the car, tennis, breakfast, golf, playing chess and backgammon and cards. Here we are, Americans, en famille, engaged in the customary twenty-four hour varied round.

"Play Boy" is another irresistible composition makeup of marching figures, fencing, a boy on skis and a boy on horseback, all of them electric with pungent thrusts of amusing humor. For children there is the fascinating "Beastiary," where up and down and across go all sorts and kinds of fabulous monsters. A perky elephant has the situation well in hand, but to be on the safe side he is accompanied by a bodyguard of jaunty giraffes, sturdy bears, and modest crocodiles. It is a gorgeous composition for a playroom.

The "Manhattan" is one of the artist's most recent efforts and one that is excellently carried through. A private design, "South Mountain," gives us a glimpse at the artist's personal life. Among the other compositions, effective and striking, are "Dinette," "Carnival," "Pomona," the "Aiken Drag," and "Florae Americanae."

The exhibition will be on view through Feb. 14.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I heard a tale, without knowing how much truth there is to it, about a certain professional woman with a reputation for beauty whose every day, Sundays and holy days not excepted, includes a professional facial, a body massage, a hairdress, certain eye treatments that require an hour of themselves, and other attentions. As the story was told me, not less than three hours are consecrated to beauty rites daily.

Well, whether the story would hold upon investigation or not, a lot of us would just like to have that much time—and money—for part of a year so that we might satisfy ourselves, whether or no we'd be so improved our worst enemies wouldn't know us. We all nurse a sneaking suspicion that if we had a lot more time to devote to beautifying we wouldn't be apologizing to the face in the mirror so often.

The professional of whom the tale was told has a reputation to hold, and being in the public eye she has a hard, hard job to keep that reputation. The eye of the observer, turned on a woman reputed to be an outstanding beauty, is a critical eye, a coldblooded eye, and often a mean one. Don't envy any woman with a beauty reputation to sustain. If she has to give twenty-one hours a week to maintaining it, she earns what praise she gets. Her lot is a hard one, for she can't let down for a single day, else that day some mean eye will light on her and broadcast its findings.

All of which is offered as solace for those who do not have great reputations as beauties to uphold, though they might want to be numbered among the toasted.

On the other, just think of how many of our women manage to get all the admiration they can use from week to week, year in and year out, on much less time and money expenditure. They keep up an excellent standard of face, form, and dress. And their lives do not have to be consecrated to the work. It is in their example that the hope of the average person lies. They have prescribed rules of daily treatment, to be sure, from which they never flag. Here I am speaking of women who always look well and smart and interesting.

They have system, if it's only fifteen minutes, morning and night, or twenty minutes, or a half hour at night and five in the morning.

THE dignified Fortnightly rocked with mirth yesterday afternoon at the "Amateur Night in 1904" that Mrs. John Lewis Cochran and Dorothy Schmidt arranged for the Wednesday Fortnightly's meeting. Although the personnel of the entertainment was a little dubious beforehand regarding the reception of the offering, thinking maybe it was a bit rthaid, they needn't have worried because the whole thing was a huge success.

The program began with an old-fashioned movie, and one of the funniest of the "acts" was the Rook Creek chorus done by Doris Featherbotham, Dorothy Schmidt, and Mrs. Cochran. Walter Frazer warbled "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" with those weird colored alides they used to have, and Janet Fairbank's "Walking at the Church" almost caused a panic of laughs. Another one that nearly stopped the show was Percy Hambleton and Ned Platt costumed in ancient bicycle suits, with a wobbly bicycle, singing "Daisy, Daisy . . ." in the 1904 manner. Mrs. Burdett Hubbard did an old-fashioned coon song, and Arthur Meeker Jr., Ned Platt, and Janet Fairbank did the touching skit, "Father, Dear Father, Come Home with Me Now," etc., with killing effect, and the grand finale was the ensemble singing "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

Facts Like This Must Be Approached Scientifically.

Ichthyological (look it up if you don't think it's spelled right) item—Jim Rawleigh landed a 42 pound peto last week down at Nassau. Child Recovering from Illness Has Great Need of Rest

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Helpful reading on the adolescent boy and girl will be suggested by Mrs Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What a mother learns by experience usually sticks in her mind.

But often a hint or a warning from some one who has been through the mill will open a mother's eyes enough for her to be on the alert so that her child need not pay too great a price for the mother's learning.

The suggestions today are for the inexperienced mother who has a convalescent child. This is the time of the year when children are especially susceptible to colds and other infections, and when we need to prolong their convalescence a little because of drafts and cold floors and inclement weather. Some doctors who are excellent during an illness are not explicit about the care that should follow it.

The big thing for parents to realize is that when a child is recovering from any sickness his vitality is lowered. His endurance is much less than when he is well, even though he may seem to be quite himself. His strength must be conserved.

There are two ways in which to do this. One is to keep him actually in bed as long as necessary. The other is to give him rest periods when he is up and dressed.

The rest, rest, rest is the great restorer. It is coming into higher and higher favor with all those who are concerned with conserving the health not only of children, but of adults, too.

So see that your convalescent child does not overtax himself. Give his body time to store up vitality again in the reservoir of strength that spells endurance. In a word, simply give nature, that wonder worker, a chance to do her work.

Asks for Medical Belt.

"A few weeks ago I was operated on for ventrical hernia. I am still under the doctor's care, but am improving daily. I must remain in bed, however, until I am able to purchase an abdominal belt, which I cannot do because my husband has been out of work for fourteen months. I appeal to you to see if you can help me through some generous reader. If some woman about 240 pounds in weight has an adjustable belt to discard I would be happy to have it.

"MRS. C. W."

There should be a marked improvement in Mrs. C. W.'s condition once she has the much needed abdominal belt. If you can help her to secure one, I know she will be grateful for it.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

The dolman sleeve is a conspicuous feature of this lovely afternoon dress of black Canton crepe. Cream lace in a draped inset in cowl effect at the front gives just the right touch—the insets in the sleeves matching. The buttons trimming the sleeves are a chic detail. The skirt has its fulness at the front through a circular godet, while the side fronts of the skirt form a yoke effect that narrows the hips.

The pattern, 2,888, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ⅜ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Printer, Jobless for Year, Wife Appeals to Sally for Help

A letter came to Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE'S bureau for the unemployed yesterday from the wife of a printer, and the mother of two daughters, 6 and 8 years old. Always used to more comfortable circumstances, the wife declared "never did we dream that we would come to asking for help, but this depression has driven us to it."

"My husband has been out of work almost a year now. Although he goes downtown every day he can't find a thing," writes the wife, Mrs. C. on Kingston avenue. "He is willing to do almost anything for we are in need of money badly. By trade he is a printer, for the last 15 years having worked as a production man in the business. He is a hard worker and I know that any work he is assigned to do he will be found very satisfactory."

While similar letters were pouring in, their writers hoping eagerly for work, many job offers for men, especially, were being received by Miss Brown. Many were in response to her appeal when the number of job offers began falling off last week.

Mrs. O. W. on Yates street called to say she had a job for a man who could do paperhanging, varnishing and painting.

J. H. on Greenwood avenue needed a man to wash windows, and Mrs. F., East 50th street, a sign painter.

C. & R. company on West Jackson boulevard needed a man to take up a carpet, and offered $2 for the job.

The W. C. garage on Vernon avenue called for a man to wash and park cars. Mrs. L. P., Evanston, will pay $5 a day for a seamstress. The W. beauty shop on Sheffield avenue is in need of a beauty operator.

An amusement café on South Michigan avenue called for a man for the bowling alley and offer fifty cents an hour and meals.

Mrs. F. on Dakin street wants a man to care for a furnace. The U. & U. company on North Michigan avenue has a two day job for a man to wash walls. A public high school is in need of a dishwasher five days a week.

One of the better jobs offered was from the C. D. company on West Lake street. They want a man to sell sheet metal goods and will pay $25 a week and commission. The P. I. company offers $15 a week for an office boy.

Please send your job offer to Sally Joy Brown, Superior 0100. The offers will then be sent to the Illinois Free Employment service, 116 North Dearborn street, where unemployed men wait by the hundreds for jobs.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Children Willing to Obey.

I had taken my two small children to see a dog and pony show, buying the admission tickets in advance to avoid the rush. We arrived there just before the opening when a crowd of school children began to flock in also.

No sooner said than a swarm of boys and girls of all ages began to jam past the ticket taker, who yelled at me, "Madam, your can't send in a round dozen on two fares!"

Every one laughed when I protested that only two were mine.

Coral and Jade Form New Jewelry Ensemble

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Bi-color effects are, as you know, the furor of smart Parisiennes now. It's the rarest thing in the world to see a chic woman dressed from head to foot in a single color. Brown has to be touched up with vivid blue or green or beige, or with the new pinkish terra cotta that the leading Paris couturiers are showing for the south.

With this latter shade coming to the fore it is natural that coral should regain importance in smart jewelry circles and the leading jewelers are featuring coral for spring jewelry, to replace the ubiquitous turquoise jewels of the last two seasons.

But in jewels as in clothes, piebald color schemes reign supreme. One of the latest two color jewelry sets is sketched above. Berlioz-Leroy makes it of antique coral and "green apple" jade. The earrings and the clasp of the necklace are charmingly carved fruit motifs of these two contrasting stones. The necklace itself is composed of round beads of jade alternating with smaller ring beads of coral. The bracelet has large carved oval motifs of jade separated by sticks of coral.

Every smart jewelry ensemble must include a ring, nowadays, and this one is made of a carved oval motif, like those in the bracelet, set in coral and platinum.

Agnes makes an evening bonnet to match. It is of bands of tulle embroidered in alternating stripes of coral and jade. This matching of the evening coiffure to the jewelry accessories is the last word in luxurious elegance.

Girl Goes Out with Boss, Then Wonders Why Wife Objects

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"For some time I have been going to lunch with my boss, to parties which are given by him and his friends at their favorite speakeasies. Now, I had no way of knowing that his wife objected to this. He asked me to go, and of course I went. It was lots of fun. Naturally, I did not ask whether his wife liked it or not. I thought that, like everybody else, she had her boy friends, and let him do as he pleased. I didn't think people tried to run each other in marriage, any more, but that freedom was t' word, and that that way everybody had a good time."

Fancy that naïveté from a young woman old enough to hold a job and go out to speakeasies! Naïve, hard boiled, or just plain dumb—which would you call it? I vote for dumb.

Listen to more from the young woman who'd better hurry up and learn to say "No." To condense her story: Last week one of the men in the office told "Hazel M.," as she signs herself, that the boss's wife had found out about the parties and was so furious that she left him and says she never will go back unless Hazel M. is fired.

The boss hasn't said anything to Hazel, yet, but he is acting differently toward her. He hardly speaks to her and is awfully cranky. The other man in the office told Hazel it was up to her to quit and several of the women in the office have stopped speaking to her.

Hazel says she can't quit. She has to support herself, and jobs are hard to get these days. She didn't mean any harm. What Hazel asks now is if I think she ought to ask her boss if there is anything she can do to square it with his wife? She thinks she could explain that there was no harm.

What the chances would be for Hazel squaring things with the wife you may judge from this final excerpt from her letter: "Gosh, these wives are sure hard to please! You'd think when they had everything they wanted they could let their husbands have some fun, but no, they have to lay down the law about everything. I'll bet she doesn't know what it's like to have to please the boss and try to please his wife, too."

Hazel, what you need is some one to take you by the hand and begin your training where it was left off at two. I'd judge from the subnormal state of mind you exhibit.

Food Talk.

"Malted milk" brings to the mind of most people a tall glass filled with a creamy, foamy mixture, either chocolate, vanilla, or strawberry, and obtainable only in drug stores. It is not generally known that the ingredient that makes the store "malts" so desirable may be purchased in a bottle and quickly used to make the same satisfying beverage for home consumption.

Malted milk itself is an easily digested food prepared from cows' milk combined with extracts of malted barley and wheat.

If a bowl is used for the mixing, a rotary egg beater is best to blend the malted milk paste with the milk. If an electric mixer is used, the powder should be placed on top of the liquid and mixed immediately. Hot malted milk may be prepared by using hot milk or water. But scalded milk should never be used (milk that has been heated to a point where a film collects on top) and malted milk should never be boiled.

Flavorings to suit the individual taste may be added to supply the desired variation. Chocolate is one of the most popular of flavors and is best added in the form of a sirup. A number of combinations using malted milk to good advantage is possible. The following recipes should enable you to prepare the best of malted milks.

CHOCOLATE SIRUP.

Melt 2 squares (2 oz.) bitter chocolate over hot water. Add one cup boiling water and cook directly over a slow flame, stirring vigorously until thick and smooth (about 2 minutes). Add 1 cup granulated sugar and with occasional stirring continue cooking 3 or 4 minutes. If a sirup with more body is desired, add 1 marshmallow or ½ teaspoon gelatin softened in 1 tablespoon cold water to the hot sirup and heat until well blended. Pour into a clean jar. Keep covered in a cool place.

Yield: 1½ cups sirup. If not, make up with water.

1 cup prunes
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons malted milk
1 egg white

Wash the prunes well. Soak to soften in water to cover and cook until tender with a slice of lemon. Put prunes through a colander. Add sugar and malted milk and beat well. Fold in the stiffly beaten white of egg. Cool and serve with whipped cream.

2 cups pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons fat

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with baking powder and salt twice. Rub fat into flour with fingers until appearance is like coarse cornmeal. Add liquid and mix quickly but thoroughly. Toss dough onto board dusted with bread flour. Pat or roll out to ½ inch thickness to fit the pan. Place apricots in a deep, buttered pan. Sprinkle with sugar. (No sugar will be required for canned apricots.) Add butter and water, then cover with the dough, being sure that the dough touches the edges of the pan. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) about 25 minutes.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Trousered skirts for daytime wear were introduced by Paris couturiers today as a spring style innovation. The designs were so full that the bifurcated cut was revealed only when the wearer walked.

Among the rebels were blue linen suits for street wear and black satin ensembles for formal afternoon functions, both designed with full trousered skirts and hip length jackets. Virtually all the trousered models were made with a wide panel in the middle of the back, falling the length of the skirt and concealing the bifurcated cut. The new skirts are ten inches above the ground.

The couturiers varied the trousered evening designs by placing pajamas under chiffon or satin skirts. There were black satin evening frocks with skirts slashed to the knee on each side, revealing white satin pajamas.

Castoria... for CHILDREN'S ailments

ARE you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or for the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish spell, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the formula on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

NATIONAL PARLEY ON PROPERTY TAX WILL OPEN TODAY

Representatives of fourteen national organizations interested in obtaining for property owners a remedy for inequalities in revenue collection and distribution will open a two day national tax conference in the roof bungalow of the Hotel Sherman this morning. The conference is called by the American Farm Bureau federation, Chicago, of which M. S. Winder is secretary.

Officials representing organized labor, manufacturers, women's clubs and taxpayers, railways and farm organizations will take part in plans looking toward the formation of a national commission on tax policies.

"The purpose of the conference, which will be entirely informal, is to consider problems now confronting property owners which result from unduly burdensome taxes," Winder said last night. "Remedy for present conditions will be sought in the light of practical study of state and national problems."

Among the organizations signifying an interest in the federation's conference today are the General Federation of Women's Clubs, National League of Women Voters, American Federation of Labor, National Association of Manufacturers, American Bankers' association, American Electric Light association, American Civic association, state manufacturers' groups, railway officials and other farm organizations, such as the National Grange and the Farmers' union.

STUDENTS SEND NICKELS TO AID GOOD FELLOWS

Nickels saved from the club dues of a classroom of school children were added to the Good Fellow fund yesterday.

"We are sending you $8 to help support some poor family in Chicago. We hope this contribution of ours will help in your fund," wrote the children, pupils at the Murphy school.

Pledges and new gifts amounting to $820.77, which arrived yesterday, brought the fund's total to $88,100.74. The families whom it will aid all have been found to be worthy by the United Charities, Central Charity bureau [Catholic], Jewish Social Service bureau, and the Salvation Army.

COAL TEAMSTERS FAVOR OUSTING OF RED BARKER

More than five hundred members of the coal hikers and teamsters' union have replied to invitations sent out by Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson seeking an election to oust George [Red] Barker, former business agent of the union now serving a ten year sentence in Joliet, and other racketeering officials from the union.

"Fully 90 per cent of the replies," Mr. Thompson said, "are in favor of ousting all present officials. The others are at least in favor of declaring Barker no longer a recognized member of the union. As soon as we have heard from a majority of the 3,000 members we will set a date and place and an election will be held under police protection."

STATE EMPLOYES DONATE $20,000 TO RELIEF FUND

State employés in Cook county yesterday contributed $20,000 to the $5,000,000 relief fund being raised by the governor's commission on unemployment and relief. The contribution represented gifts from all branches of the state government in the county, supplementing previous gifts from employés of the park systems and attachés of the Probate court.

Total collections last night stood at $4,329,342, counting $78,000 provisional subscriptions to be collected if the $5,000,000 quota is raised before Feb. 11, when the drive ends. Total subscriptions yesterday amounted to $47,807.

Among contributions reported yesterday were: $5,700 from the estate of Leander J. McCormick; employés of Eastman Kodak company, $3,250; employés of John F. Jelke & Co., $2,350, and Straus National Bank and Trust company, $500.

SPRINGER HEIR FINDS CLAIM TO MILLIONS FALSE

New York, Feb. 4.—(AP)—R. C. Springer of Woodside, N. Y., promulgated bad news today to the 15,000 members of the Springer family throughout the United States, many of whom have been expecting momentarily to become wealthy through ancient claims to the land on which Wilmington, Del., is built, and variously estimated to be worth from $50,000,000 to $500,000,000. Mr. Springer said he had personally completed a search of titles and had found the claims to be without foundation.

COLDS

THIS trying time of year is apt to find too much acid in your system—and acidosis is another way of saying your bodily resistance is low. That's when germs grab you.

Grapefruit overcomes acidosis because its action is alkaline or anti-acid. This golden gift from Florida supplies, in richest measure, the vitamins and mineral salts your body needs—especially at this season.

Eat "Seald-Sweet" grapefruit two or three times a day; or drink the refreshing juice. That is the delightfully effective, modern way of preventing and checking colds.

Imagine Schmeling Embarrassment!

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—It is a bit o surprise to me to hear that a yo process server who attempted to p a subpœna or mash note, as the torneys at law call them, into the willing hand of Max Schmeling found counsel willing to bring against Max for $25,000 on his behalf and for $5,000 more on be of the young man's father.

It is alleged that Schmeling lost temper and fetched the young ma couple of slaps and this is h enough for me to believe beca Schmeling, whatever else he may is no amateur, but what puzzles more is the proposition that if Sch ling had done this it would have b an illegal act.

I had always thought that poena servers were held to be m bers of the same social class as vate detectives and that under law, far from any penalty for pling or extinguishing any "of same, a man stood to receive kind of bounty from the state, now that the distinction has been gested, it may be determined th process server is better than a pri detective, perhaps even an office the court in some distant way which case violence offered to on them might be construed as conte of court provided that in view of cent revelations some of the co are not found to be beneath conte

There Is Some Doubt.

Assuming these actions ag Schmeling to have been brought the sincerest motives, one doubt curs nevertheless that all the litiga with which distinguished counsel harassed the young German other prize fighters was initiated the same high principles in view.

A suit for damages can be s motion for about $35 and it is plorable fact that there are cou in the noble profession who hav far forgotten the ideals of the ba to steam up litigation for plain who haven't the faintest notion having been wronged.

SANTA-HANSEN BOUT STOPPED; NO CONTEST

Imagine Schmeling's Embarrassment!

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—It is a bit of a surprise to me to hear that a young process server who attempted to press a subpoena or mash note, as the attorneys at law call them, into the unwilling hand of Max Schmeling has found counsel willing to bring suit against Max for $25,000 on his own behalf and for $5,000 more on behalf of the young man's father.

It is alleged that Schmeling lost his temper and fetched the young man a couple of slaps and this is hard enough for me to believe because Schmeling, whatever else he may be, is no amateur, but what puzzles me most is the proposition that if Schmeling had done this it would have been an illegal act.

I had always thought that subpoena servers were held to be members of the same social class as prison detectives and that under the law, far from any penalty for crippling or extinguishing any of the same, a man stood to receive some kind of bounty from the state, but now that the distinction has been suggested, it may be determined that a process server is better than a private detective, perhaps even an officer of the court in some distant way, in which case violence offered to one of them might be construed as contempt of court provided that in view of recent revelations some of the courts are not found to be beneath contempt.

There Is Some Doubt.

Assuming these actions against Schmeling to have been brought with the sincerest motives, one doubt occurs nevertheless that all the litigation with which distinguished counsel have burdened the young German and other prize fighters was initiated with the same high principles in view.

A suit for damages can be set in motion for about $35 and it is a demonstrable fact that there are counsel in the noble profession who have so far forgotten the ideals of the bar as to drum up litigation for plaintiffs who haven't the faintest notion of having been wronged.

Members of the bar tell me that unfortunately there are some counselors who seek out persons suffering from trivial or purely imaginary invasions of their rights and induce them to go plaintiff in suits for dignified sums of money with no idea of pressing their complaints to trial, but hoping, nevertheless, that the defendants will deem it cheaper to settle out of court than to pay the costs of resistance.

It seems deplorable, indeed, that never so low and loathsome the criminal but that the high principled profession of the law can readily furnish some one yet lower to get him off for a price payable from the proceeds of his turpitude, even to the exploitation of the fallen sisterhood.

If Schmeling damaged the process server and if it is illegal to do this then Schmeling undoubtedly should be compelled to make amends to an extent determinable by the courts. The amount prayed for, $25,000, strikes me as somewhat pretentious, however, and without wishing to seem to try his case, I would point out nevertheless that, considering the brevity of the alleged tussle, Sharkey could have been had for the same price. Any one desiring $25,000 for a couple of slaps in the face ought to go and get a reputation.

And, though it may reflect some disrespect for law, I will never quite give up my belief that when a process server sneaks up disguised as the ash man or a friend of a friend from out of town with a letter of introduction, to deliver a subpoena and fifty cents, the victim ought to be allowed one good, free swing with a 36 ounce ball bat. If Schmeling transgressed the law, I must deplore it and hereby do, with a lurking notion, however, that if he didn't do a good job of it he missed an excellent opportunity.

Max Seems to Be on Spot.

Herr Schmeling seems to me to be off to an excellent start toward a certain opinion of this country. To him, the sharp, dollar chasing American of the European cartoons must by now appear as the most gullible chump on earth, for he was promoted to the heavyweight championship of the world and received about a quarter of a million dollars on a record which he, himself, in his most complacent moment, cannot possibly regard without apology.

But his experience in the political and business affairs of the ring in this country must have convinced him that he stands alone against a nation of crooks. The Americans pay him, but the Americans then connive to shear his money away, sometimes enlisting the assistance of the American courts in litigation of the most obviously predatory character.

Schmeling is not a very picturesque young man. In a faint degree he resembles the Jack Dempsey of 1920, and he is considerably more thoughtful than most prize fighters, although no intellectual prodigy. He is not notably generous with his money, and the fact that on his occasional arrivals from Germany he brings gifts for American acquaintances who are in a position to plead his cause only suggests to me that his manager, Joe

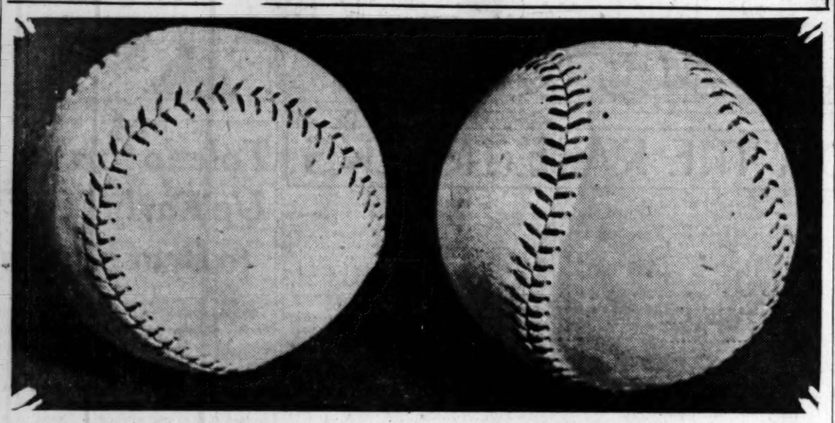
THE OLD AND THE NEW



Here's the first picture of the new baseball adopted by the major leagues, showing how it compares with the old ball which has received all of the blame for the deluge of home runs in the last decade. The new ball—on the right, if you can't distinguish between them—has wider stitches and a slightly raised seam and while at first glance the difference is not readily noticeable, baseball experts say the higher seams will give pitchers a better grip and create a higher wind resistance, cutting down the length of drives.

Ring Names Are Taboo in Golden Gloves Tourney

Chicago boys who expect to enter one of three city sections of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament must follow instructions on the entry blank carefully. Ring names are not permissible. Each boxer must print legibly his first and last name.

Be sure and specify your weight, classification and section. Otherwise it is impossible to place entries correctly in the programs.

Entries for west section trials at Ashland Boulevard auditorium close Monday. West section bouts will be held Feb. 16 and 17. Bouts at the Fronton are scheduled for Feb. 19 and 20, while the White City section will be held Feb. 23 and 24.

One hundred sixty-seven individual entries have been made, not including yesterday's group. Gymnasium teams will be selected within a few days, and since the greater number will compete for clubs or gymnasiums, it seems now the number competing in city sections will exceed last year's entry. In 1930 approximately 700 Chicago boys entered.

The 15 cities cooperating with THE TRIBUNE will send 120 boys, each a champion in his weight division, to bouts which start at the Coliseum March 2. After three days fighting at the Coliseum, the 32 boys remaining in the tournament will meet in semi-finals and finals at the Stadium March 11.

Dick Mastro, a brother of Earl Mastro, Chicago's well known featherweight, has entered the Golden Gloves again this year. Dick fought last year as a flyweight and reached the semi-finals where he was defeated by Johnny Emmerick, winner of the Springfield, Ill., section. Dick has picked up weight and will start his campaign for a title in the featherweight division at Ashland Auditorium.

DON'T DELAY

Tickets for the Golden Gloves boxing tournament are on sale at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. Get your seats now if you plan to attend the world's biggest amateur boxing tournament. Delay means disappointment.

Champions from 15 cities meet Chicago's leading boxers at the Coliseum March 2, 3, 4. The winners fight at Chicago Stadium March 11 to determine the team which will represent Chicago against New York at Madison Square Garden March 30.

Tickets for the Coliseum bouts cost $1 $1.50, and $2. The prices at the Stadium are $1, $2, and $3. Orders will be accepted by mail if accompanied by check. Send application to Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves tournament, The Tribune, Chicago.

Cubs' President Protested Against Change in N. L. Ball

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The new baseball with which the National league hopes to give the vanishing tribe of pitchers a new lease on life was accepted over the protest of William Veeck, the Cub president. He made known his stand, and also that the Boston and Brooklyn clubs had tried to support him, when he returned yesterday from the league's New York meeting, at which the alteration in one of the most important tools of the trade was decided upon.

WILLIAM VEECK.

Along with his few words on the new baseball Veeck admitted that he had only time to pass the time of day with Sam Breadon, the Cardinals' president, while in New York, and consequently nothing was done about the Cubs' purchase of Jim Bottomley.

"Chances for making the deal appear to be so slim that we might as well forget about it," was Veeck's comment.

Barnard Explains A. L. Stand.

Additional information about the new ball and how it came to be accepted by the American league were revealed by President Ernest S. Barnard. His owners discussed it at their December meeting, but couldn't make any headway, so Barnard decided to act on his own hook. He discussed the matter by mail with Tom Shibe, president of the Athletics, who also is boss of the factory producing the pellets.

"The manufacturers of the ball, since the agitation against the so-called jack rabbit started, have insisted that no change has been made in the inside of the ball in many years," said Barnard. "However, they did make a change in the stitching four or five years ago, when it was discovered the thread in use broke frequently.

"To eliminate this trouble a finer thread of greater tensile strength was adopted. At the same time the sewing was done so as to keep the stitching flush with the cover. The counter sinking of the stitch lessened the chances for the pitchers getting the proper grip on the ball. Consequently pitching as a whole became less effective.

"The new ball restores the raised seam. A coarse thread and longer stitches will be employed. The raised seam will afford the pitchers better purchase at the tip of their fingers. This means they can increase the spin of the ball as it leaves their hands, and it is the spin that causes the ball to curve or break. The raised seams also will increase air resistance, thus making it seem reasonable that the new ball will not travel as far when hit."

Calls It an Experiment.

Barnard further declared the change was only in the nature of an experiment. The ball will be kept in use throughout the year, and then if hitting hasn't been curtailed the manufacturers will be requested to alter the makeup of the inside of the ball.

Having the National league use a cover of one thickness and the American league another also was devised as an experiment. The National league men believe a thick cover will tend to take some of the life from the ball, but the American disputes this contention. The hide on the balls made for National league games will be twenty one-thousandths of an inch thicker than those made for use in the junior major. These covers are cut by the same machines which slice ham for baseball park sandwiches.

Draft Approved

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The National Association of Professional Baseball leagues today voted to accept the position of the major leagues in regard to the draft and to players sent out on optional agreement. The vote was 18 to 1 in favor of acceptance with the Southern association as the only dissenter.

BENNY FRIEDMAN CHOSEN AS YALE BACKFIELD COACH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Benny Friedman, the greatest forward passer football has ever known and one of the best quarterbacks of all time, will abandon the New York Giants and the professional gridiron to coach the Yale back field this fall.

Dr. Mal Stevens will retain his job as head coach until his contract expires at the end of the 1931 season, but he will be head coach in name only. Friedman will direct the Yale attack, which, under Stevens, has been a hodge podge of all the systems known to football.

To Install Irish System.

Friedman will install the Notre Dame system, which features perfect blocking and perfect timing as the essence of its attack. In this he will have the coöperation of Adam Walsh, the present line coach, whose work has been handicapped by lack of a free hand in inculcating the ideas of line play he learned under Coach Knute Rockne at Notre Dame.

This combination will give Yale a football team that will click to the discomfiture of Harvard and all other adversaries. At least that is the hope and expectation of Yale's football advisory committee, which will lay the Friedman proposal before the athletic board of control next Monday. Its acceptance is regarded as a certainty.

Yale's alumni have felt that there has been a woeful waste of fine playing material at New Haven and point to last year's team as an instance of potential winners gone wrong. Under the Friedman-Walsh régimé Yale, its alumni hope, will click as it did in the days of Ted Coy.

Pro Game Made Him.

Friedman was a star in his day at Michigan, but it was not until he took up the pro game that he ranked as probably the greatest all 'round player in the country. He is a master strategist and has had no recognized peer as a passer.

Benny will start on his new job when the Yale candidates gather for five weeks of spring practice, during which time he will get a good line on the material with which he will try to give a headache to Eddie Casey, Harvard and the Warner system when the Blue meets the Crimson next fall.

DE PAUL DEFEATS CENTENARY FOR 9TH IN ROW, 33-15

Tony Laurites, sophomore forward who performed in the absence of Heine Coan, led the De Paul attack with five baskets and six free throws. He registered every effort from the free throw line. De Paul snatched the lead immediately after the opening tip-off. For a while they were ahead by a 12 to 1 margin, but the southerners cut this margin to 18 to 7 at the half. Lineup:

Tagged Birds Go from Sanctuary to Sanctuary

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The tagging system used to identify birds which visit Jack Miner's bird sanctuary here proves that the birds travel from sanctuary to sanctuary for protection, according to the local expert. During the last few months several geese killed near Cairo, Ill., have borne the Miner tag. William Wrigley Jr., Chicago baseball magnate, maintains a preserve near Cairo.

"O, MR. GALLAGHER—"

Prosperity Is Back! Hockey Crowd of 18,007 Proves It

BY ARCH WARD.

Prosperity has returned at last. If you don't believe it, ask Maj. Frederic McLaughlin owner of the Chicago Blackhawks.

The major's skaters Sunday night drew 18,007 persons, the largest crowd that has seen a hockey game, to Chicago Stadium for their contest with the Montreal Les Cadiens.

HOWIE MORENZ.

Hockey has made great strides in the last five years, particularly in Chicago. Not so long ago a gathering of 5,000 was something to write about. Now the biggest rink in the world is inadequate to accommodate the fans when a big game is the attraction.

Salaries and player values have increased proportionately with attendance. Ten years ago a player who received a season wage of $1,000 was up in the money. Now there are players drawing ten times that figure.

Howie Morenz of the Canadiens, generally regarded as the outstanding player in the game, is as expensive a bit of sporting bric-a-brac as a leading baseball player. His club is reported to have turned down an offer of $75,000 for him two years ago. The great Babe Ruth didn't cost the Yankees any more than that in actual cash.

Salaries in hockey compare favorably with baseball when you consider that the pucksters take part in only 44 games, whereas the ball players are required to play 154. The diamond workers are at their toil six or seven days a week, but the hockey men seldom work more than three, and usually it's less.

Bill Tobin, manager of the Blackhawks, points out that the increased popularity of the sport doesn't mean all gravy for the magnates. The overhead almost keeps pace with the attendance. In addition to higher salaries there is the matter of increased rentals and larger squads.

"Five years ago the average National league club carried ten players," Tobin said. "It now has sixteen. A defense man used to be good for 50 of the 60 minutes of the game. Now he ordinarily is relieved every six minutes. This, of course, has tended to speed up the game."

It is natural that a community which goes wild over football would take to hockey in a big way. Body contact is common to the two sports. Injuries are frequent in both. There is nothing feathery about a frozen gridiron, and we have heard no hockey player complain that an ice surface had eiderdown effects.

WARFARE ON THE MAT.

Jimmy Londos, the wrestler who has been turning 'em away at the biggest arenas in the country, is greatly agitated over the title claims of Don George. He has prepared a lengthy document which purports to prove his right to the undisputed heavyweight championship.

According to his written word, Londos not only is the champion in N. B. A. territory, but in Pennsylvania and New York as well. He cites his victory over Richard Shikat, recognized as titleholder in the two eastern states, to support his contention.

George bases his claim on his defeat of Gus Sonnenberg, who generally was regarded as champion until he ran afoul of the N. B. A. a year or so ago.

If there must be a wrestling champion, why wouldn't it be well for some enterprising promoter to bring the boys together in Chicago on a winner take all basis? Londos says those terms are satisfactory.

If you think even a match like that would settle the issue, who are you and where were you born?

THE EAST WAKES UP.

Eastern newspapers have been printing columns about the change in policy for the organization and administration of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania. There is little news value to the story out this way, except the indication that eastern schools gradually are trying to catch up with the progressive policies adopted years ago by the leading universities in Western conference territory.

REFEREE HALTS FARCE AS KNUTE FALLS UNHIT

Johnson Knocks Out Gallagher in 2d.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

José Santa, labeled the heavyweight champion of Portugal, and Knute Hansen of Racine, Wis., played a two round farce last night in the Stadium ring. Hansen's acting, however, failed to convince any of the 5,000 customers of its sincerity, and it was publicly scorned by the members of the Illinois athletic commission, who declared the bout "no contest" and ordered both fighters to appear before them next Tuesday for a judgment which may bar both indefinitely.

Hansen went through the motions of a knockout in the second round, but he neglected an important item before tumbling to the floor. He went down apparently without being hit, and his exhaustion had no physical basis.

Santa Not as Advertised.

The Portuguese previously had won a dozen bouts in this country and, like Primo Carnera, boasted excessive proportions as a claim of ring prowess. The crowd was disillusioned when the black haired foreigner lumbered into the ring. Publicized as weighing 265 pounds, Santa actually scaled 239. His height had been overestimated, for he stretched only half a foot more than six feet, which obviously did not make him a physical monstrosity, if one excepts his bulging forehead.

While the ire of the commission in calling the bout no contest included both men, it may be Hansen will receive the greater punishment unless subsequent developments prove collusion on the part of Bertys Perry, Santa's manager. Davie Miller, who refereed the fight, was inclined last night to the opinion that Santa did his best to fight, although his best was more worthy of a wrestling show.

In the first round Hansen stabbed the Portuguese with a stinging left which snapped Santa's head backward, to the delight of the crowd. Then the Dane covered up and permitted his opponent to engage in a series of rushes which, although stirring up a cloud of resin dust, did not appear dangerous. Hansen was bowled over in one of these off tackle drives and went down for four seconds, with Santa on top of him. When José had untangled his thin shanks and arranged them to support his huge torso Hansen clambered to his feet none the worse for the tumble.

Hansen Out Without a Count.

Once again, before the round was concluded, Hansen sat on the floor, although his rest period was only for three seconds. Close observers did not see that Santa hit him before he fell.

Then came the second and final round. Santa closed in with poofs and grunts, and while he could not punch when clasping his smaller opponent to his bosom, he handled him with every intent of throwing him out of the ring. Miller pried the men free. Santa danced toward Hansen, who unexpectedly sprang in to grapple in a neutral corner. Santa tapped gently with his right hand at Hansen's head and the Racine lad went into his act. He wobbled from side to side, emoting as if in pain. Then Hansen fell sideways to the floor in the best approved form for complete disability.

Johnson Stops Gallagher.

Larry Johnson, Chicago heavyweight, knocked out Marty Gallagher in the second round of the semi-windup. While there was no doubt concerning Johnson's superiority and Gallagher's punishment in the first round, when he was knocked down for a nine count by a left hook to the chin, the Santa-Hansen affair, which immediately followed, is said to have caused the suspicion to fall on Gallagher. The visitor possibly did not fight quite as thoroughly as he might have, but whether he did or not, he certainly saved himself from embarrassment by his resignation in the second round.

Johnson was outweighed 25 pounds, but the tigerish Negro tore after his slower opponent with the intention of walloping him quickly and frequently. Gallagher never had been knocked out previously, which might have been expected to encourage him last night. The first knockdown occurred within 20 seconds of the bell, so Marty was able to stay until the second period.

Gallagher Goes Down Again.

In this round Gallagher received a series of jolts from both Johnson's flying fists, and then dropped for another nine seconds.

When he staggered to his feet Marty was practically helpless and, although he dropped face downward for the concluding count without the formality of being hit, he probably had been punished enough to excuse such action.

With the rapid execution in these bouts the Willie Oster-Harry Ebbetts fracas, which went ten rounds with Ebbetts the winner, was quite naturally the best offering of the evening.

CUBS CHOOSY IN SPRING GAMES? IT'S GEOGRAPHY

Pirates Only Major Foe They Can Meet.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Our Cubs aren't very sociable in the matter of spring exhibition games with major league competitors, but you can't call them uppish. It's the geography.

The boys will play seven games against major leaguers, all of them with the Pittsburgh Pirates, which isn't so very clubby when you reflect how some other majors will be visiting each other.

The Pirates and Cubs are the only teams that are training in California, which accounts for their clannishness, whereas the southeastern section of the country will harbor many clubs.

Braves to Play 22 Games.

While the Cubs are held down to their meager allotment of games with one club, the Boston Braves will be flitting hither and thither more than ever before, playing 22 games with seven major league adversaries, thus topping the White Sox-Giant spring series by five games. Last year the Sox and Giants set a new record for inter-major league play when they added a half dozen games to their original schedule. Similar action is probable this year.

Joe McCarthy, who didn't go in for inter-major contests during his five years as boss of the Cubs, finds his Yankees facing an exhibition season of 33 games, of which 16 are with major league clubs. The Yanks' style is somewhat cramped by the American league rule against exhibition games played by teams in the league. The Yanks will clash with the Braves, Reds, Cards, Phillies, and Robins of the National league.

Need Stars for Drawing Cards.

The Braves probably will make as much money in their exhibition series as they used to make in the championship season prior to last year, for they have nine games with the Yankees, three with the world champion As, one with the Cards, champions of the National league, and three with Brooklyn, all of which are good drawing cards, even in exhibition territory where natives get pretty well fed up on baseball before clubs start north.

Clubs without individual stars in recent years have found the pickings in the south so slim that the practice of winding up the exhibition series with pre-championship games has become increasingly popular in the last three years. Last season the Giants and White Sox paid most of their training season expenses with the take at Saturday and Sunday games played at Comiskey park immediately prior to the league openings, and the same harvest is anticipated at the two games the clubs will play at the Polo grounds April 11 and 12.

Cubs Close with Minor.

The Cubs will be the only National league team vying with a minor league club on the Saturday and Sunday before the league openings next April.

Reds vs. Cleveland at Cincinnati.
Robins vs. Yankees at Brooklyn.
Braves vs. Red Sox at Boston.
Phillies vs. Athletics at Philadelphia.
Pirates vs. Detroit at Detroit.
Giants vs. White Sox at New York.

While all this is going on, the Cubs will be playing the Kansas City Blues at Kansas City.

Quakers Meet Blackhawks Here Tonight

Hockey Results

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Tulsa, 0; Kansas City, 0 [overtime].
Duluth, 2; Buffalo, 1.

The Philadelphia Quakers will meet the Chicago Blackhawks in a National Hockey league game at the Stadium tonight with a better chance of defeating the Chicagoans than in any previous game this season. Cooper Smeaton, Quaker manager, has slowly rounded out a team which now appears to be a certain contender in next season's race.

The game should be unusually fast, as each team has played only one game in a week and the rest has sharpened both for tonight's affair. The Quakers, elated over their showing recently when they tied the Boston Bruins and their victory over the Montreal Maroons, are going into the battle confident that they can whip the Hawks, who have been their toughest foes for two seasons.

Lowrey High Scorer.

The easterners' main asset, however, is the 18 year old goalie, Wolf Cude. With Chuck Gardiner taking care of the nets for the Hawks the fans can expect goal minding acrobatics such as no game has furnished this season.

Jenkins with Hawks.

Another youngster who made a name for himself in major league circles is Roger Jenkins. He is a 19 year old right winger playing his first year as a pro and was loaned to the Toronto Maple Leafs by the Blackhawks early this season. He has been recalled and will be in the Hawks' lineup tonight.

Johnny Gottselig, who suffered a fractured nose in the Canadiens game Sunday, also will be back in the Hawks' main forward line tonight. Lineup:

Gardiner	G	Cude
Abel	D	Coulson
Wentworth	D	Shields
Desjardins	C	Lowrey
Ingram	R. W.	Howe
Adams	L. W.	Kilrea

ALL CHICAGOANS IN PAN-AMERICAN GOLF SEMI-FINAL

Edgewater Park, Miss., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Tomorrow's semi-finals of the annual Pan-American golf tournament will be an all Chicago affair.

Johnny Lehman, western amateur champion, turned in the best card of the day, playing par golf to eliminate Russell Martin, Chicago, medalist and favorite, 4 and 3. Lehman scored a par 72 in the morning round and was even par when the match ended at the 33d hole.

Chuck Becka, Chicago district junior champion, eliminated Bob McCrary, Des Moines, Ia., 2 up.

ZAHARIAS SIGNS TO MEET LONDOS ON MAT FEB. 18

Sox to Open Home Season with Indians

White Sox fans will have to wait until April 22 for their first glimpse of Donie Bush's 1931 edition. The Sox, according to the American league schedule, published this morning, will open the season at Cleveland April 14, playing a four game series. St. Louis then will be visited, after which Bush will bring his youths to Comiskey park for the local inaugural. The Indians will furnish the opposition.

Should Chicago happen to have another late spring, it will be just too bad on the White Sox attendance figures. They are billed to play at Comiskey park from April 22 to May 31, barring one series at Detroit and one at Cleveland. During this long home stay the south siders will entertain, among others, the four eastern clubs, which start drifting in May 8 and continue to May 21.

The Sox will close their at home season Sept. 6. After that they must spend three solid weeks on the road, concluding the campaign at St. Louis Sept. 27.

HANLEY PREFERS N. U. TO COAST; WILL STAY HERE

Assurance that Dick Hanley would continue as head football coach at Northwestern university was obtained last night both from Hanley and athletic authorities.

Dispatches from Spokane, Wash., where Hanley is visiting relatives, quoted the Wildcat coach as saying: "I feel my best opportunities are at Northwestern and I expect to continue in my present capacity."

"We are heartily pleased with Coach Hanley's work at Northwestern," K. L. Wilson, director of athletics, stated last night. "We feel that he is one of the best football coaches in the country and expect to have him with us for a long time."

Coach Hanley will return to Evanston next week. He has been on the west coast since he took the all star eastern football team to San Francisco to play an all star western team in a charity game.

Savoldi to Make Debut as Wrestler Feb. 16

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star, will make his professional wrestling debut here Feb. 16, Gabe Kauffman, American Legion matchmaker, announced today. An opponent for the 220 pound Savoldi has not been selected.

Toledo Piles Up Early Lead to Beat Bruins

Toledo played one of its best games of the season last night to beat the Chicago Bruins, 17 to 13, in an American Professional Basketball league game at Broadway armory. The Bruins never were in the lead, and trailed by a margin of at least five points until the last five minutes, when a rally cut the Toledo lead to two points.

At this stage, the Red Men leading, 15 to 13, started stalling and played defensive basketball to the end of the game, although Spindell went down the floor once, practically unmolested, for a field goal that made victory certain.

Toledo led at the end of the half 9 to 5, because a pair of field goals by Lapschik, a field goal and a free throw by Banks and two free throws by Dehnert. Banks was removed from the game near the end on personal fouls.

CHICAGO [13].	B	F	P
Wickhorst, f	0	0	1

JUST WHEN IS A PROCESS SERVER WORTH $25,000?

Suit Against Schmeling May Set New Value.

Hard to Decline Gift.

It is hard to decline a present, not because the present itself is desired but because to do so is to say in other words, "The gift is intended as a bribe, and I won't take it." This implies an exaggerated sense of virtue and some lack of manners. Jack Dempsey has made a habit of giving away very thin engraved watches. I suppose he has distributed five hundred of them, each one engraved with some intimate salutation, as "To my old pal." Not long ago he even gave watches to two members of the New York prize fight commission whom he certainly had no reason other than diplomatic to honor thus.

Schmeling has tried to acquire, but without success, that hello-pardner manner with which Dempsey lured so many people from hostility or skeptical neutrality to approving friendship. Schmeling is a member of a practical race and acquaintance is one thing to him and friendship quite another, and, though he tries to remember his hello-pardner instructions from Jacobs, the young man simply isn't breezy.

Doing Best He Can.

His manners are satisfactory but by no means elegant, and though his reading naturally has been different, he seems not at all well read and, on the whole, just a commonplace fellow doing the best he can and trying to protect himself at all times.

Still, if he did flock that process server, that indicates that he is willing to pay high for the real pleasures of life, because he must have known that the young man's lawyer would be tearing into print with his damage suits before the young man quit dancing.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. SALES AND INCOME EXPAND

BY O. A. MATHER.

In spite of the general depression last year, the Public Service company of Northern Illinois, which supplies electricity and gas to territory adjacent to Chicago, was able to hang up several new records. Its total sales of electricity increased 13.1 per cent over 1929 and its sales of gas gained nearly 1 per cent.

President Britton I. Budd points out in his annual report that voluntary rate reductions made during 1930 effected a saving of $928,000 to customers and will mean a saving of $1,-[illegible] for a full year. Nevertheless, operating revenues reached $35,405,093 an increase of 6.2 per cent over 1929. Net income for 1930 was $7,564,046, equivalent to $12.92 a share on the common stock, compared with net income of $7,100,780, or $13.69 a share on a smaller number of shares in 1929. Surplus after dividends was $2,809,376, which brought total surplus up to $16,-[illegible].

Reports Successful Year.

"From these figures it will be seen that the company had a most successful year, notwithstanding the generally depressed business conditions," Mr. Budd says. "The number of customers increased 10,808 over 1929 to a total of 448,736. The company now serves a total of 319 communities."

Less favorable reports were made by several other companies. Reflecting the slump in the automobile industry last year and the sharp drop in rubber prices, the B. F. Goodrich company reported a decline in sales from $164,400,000 in 1929 to $155,000,000 in 1930. The company incurred a net loss of about $8,400,000 last year, compared with a net profit in 1929 of $7,-[illegible], which was equivalent to $4.53 a share on the common stock.

The directors declared the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred stock and approved retirement of 11,-[illegible] shares of preferred stock. An inventory depreciation charge of $1,800,-[illegible] was made against surplus and the cost of issuing $30,000,000 of debentures last year also was charged against surplus.

The National Bellas Hess company, chain stores, reported net sales of $33,836,695 for 1930, compared with $48,211,813 in 1929, a decline of 29.96 per cent. The company incurred a net loss of $4,109,238 last year and a total deficit of $4,529,217 after paying preferred dividends, which reduced earned surplus to $1,653,140. In 1929 there was a net loss of $214,114 before payment of preferred dividends.

The directors yesterday voted to omit the quarterly dividend on the preferred stock, although President Albert S. Scott said the company's current cash position has improved since Dec. 31, 1930, when current assets were $7,461,843 and current liabilities were $2,115,292. Merchandise inventories at the end of 1930 were $4,351,187, compared with $8,980,873 at the end of 1929, a decline of 48.45 per cent.

The Caterpillar Tractor company reported net sales of $45,355,434 in 1930, compared with $51,812,461 in 1929. Net profit last year was $8,714,801, equivalent to $4.63 a share on the common stock, compared with $11,600,446, or $6.16 a share in 1929. The directors declared an extra dividend of 25 cents and the regular quarterly payment of 75 cents on the common stock.

News of Steel Trade Mixed.

News of the steel industry, as set forth in the mid-week reviews, was about a standoff yesterday. While pig iron production last month made the first gain since last April, the demand for steel has slackened in the last week.

"Pig iron output in January was 1,714,266 tons, or 55,299 tons a day, compared with 1,665,690 tons, or 53,732 tons daily, in December, an increase of 3 per cent," the Iron Age says. "While the output for the month is noteworthy for bringing a protracted decline to a halt, it is the smallest for any January since 1922.

"Steel demand has lost momentum and is increasingly even, with some market centers reporting that improvement has been definitely arrested. But specifications in the aggregate continue to slow slight expansion. Ingot production for the country at large now averages fully 48 per cent of capacity, compared with 47 per cent a week ago."

Young Would Nationalize All U. S. Banks of Deposit

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Nationalization of all banks of deposit under supervision of the federal reserve system was proposed today by Owen D. Young, New York financier, as a major step toward development of a "sound" banking policy to prevent recurring economic disasters.

"Then, for the first time," he said, "we shall be able to fix responsibility somewhere for a sound banking system."

This was included among a series of proposals and suggestions presented by the author of the Young plan for German reparations payments to the senate banking investigating committee which is considering changes in existing law to curb large scale stock market gambling.

The financier told the committee the country could not go along under forty-nine different banking systems and if correction measures could not be applied by legislation then an amendment to the constitution should be enacted.

Cites Bank Failures.

"We have seen thousands of bank failures," he said, "and it is a reflection on the American people if they can't get protection against this condition. If it finally is decided that the federal government hasn't authority to correct this I see no way out except through amendement of the constitution.

Young said he would place all deposit banks in the reserve system to eliminate the serious competition between state and national banks.

In addition he would require all savings banks and trust companies to be state institutions and nocompetitive with national banks.

With control under one authority, he said, this would "at once mobilize all our banking reserves into one central system, which is as it should be."

Young added that while no law could prevent bank failures this new system would "minimize them greatly." Among the 7,000 bank failures in the last ten years, he said, five out of every six had been state banks not members of the reserve system.

View on States Rights.

He said he "bitterly opposed" impairment of the rights of states in their appropriate field, adding it seemed strange that in the face of gravitation toward federal authority "we should have retained divided rather than unified power over our deposit banking sytsem."

Young, who is a director of the federal reserve bank of New York, said the reserve system should have power to examine, discipline and even expel member banks.

"One of the weaknesses of the banking system at present, in addition to the competition between the governments for charters," he said, "is the natural hesitation of the federal reserve banks, in the absence of clearly expressed powers, to require the correction of undesirable practices within the law in state banks, particularly lest they withdraw from the system and thereby weaken its resources and general influence."

Tells of Banking Bills.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 4.—(AP)—One or more banking bills "to prevent abuses which confessedly exist and also the loaning of money for speculative purposes," in the opinion of Senator William H. King, of Utah, will be presented to congress.

Senator King assailed questionable banking ventures in an address before the Traffic club of Baltimore here last night. After urging the promotion of international amity and the removal of trade barriers, he hit at assertions that "prosperity is just around the corner."

"There is now being conducted an investigation by the banking and currency committee into the fiscal and credit systems which will involve a consideration whether credit is improvidently and improperly extended for speculative purposes," he said.

"I think it also will cover cooperative investment trusts, branch and group banking.

"It is quite likely that if the states do not control investment trusts congress will act and subject them to federal supervision and control. The orgy of speculation which has contributed so much to our depression many believe was caused by improper practices of banks and extension of credit far beyond the needs of legitimate business."

JANUARY SALES OF WOOLWORTH, OTHER CHAINS ARE HIGHER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Sales of F. W. Woolworth company in January were $19,240,069, compared with $18,405,159 in the corresponding month last year, an increase of 4.5 per cent.

In commenting on the report President H. T. Parson stated that the January figures showed that 50 per cent of the increase was the result of operations of the old stores and indicated a marked improvement in the trend of business. The actual gain by the old stores in January was $490,-538, or 2.67 per cent, compared with the month last year.

Believes Freight Rates to West Coast Should Be Cut

BY SCRUTATOR.

Most of the programs advanced for the purpose of enabling the railroads of the United States to earn something like a fair return on their present accepted valuations involve pressure for legislative changes on a wide scale. A suspicion which is not far short of certainty exists that nothing quite so widespread can be had.

FRED W. SARGENT [Matzene Photo.]

Somewhere a start can be made, one which would in a measure relieve the railroads of the onerous burdens which regulation in present law places on them, but at the same time would not be too radical. Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western, was asked to outline his views on steps of this sort which could be taken immediately.

Deemed Most Important.

He mentioned relief under the fourth section of the transportation act as probably the most important from the standpoint of the western railroads and of the middle west. In the language of the layman this means that the railroads of the west should be permitted by the interstate commerce commission to reduce rates from this section to the Pacific coast, in order to place rail service on a competitive basis with water competitors through the Panama canal.

"The middle west's business with the Pacific coast was seriously damaged when the canal was opened. It is much cheaper, under the present rates, for manufacturers on the eastern seaboard to ship to west coast ports than it is for one of our own manufacturers to ship from the vicinity of Chicago to the same ports.

"One of the results has been the occasional shipment of manufactured goods from this region to New York or Philadelphia by rail and then a further shipment in vessels through the Panama canal. Two firms in Wisconsin have done this and found they made important savings in their freight charges. There are records to show that goods destined for the west coast have been shipped to eastern ports from as far west as Waterloo, Ia., and then forwarded by ships to California.

"The situation is serious to this section, because industries that might be located here are being driven to other regions. It is serious to the western railroads because they are losing traffic they might otherwise have. Loaded cars containing vegetables and fruits move in here from the west and are sent back empty. Actually, full train loads of empty cars frequently move back to the coast.

"Anything we could get to put in those cars, even at low rates, would be velvet, provided the products are those which are now moving from the Atlantic and Gulf ports by ship. We could not cut all rates proportionately to meet the water transport charges; that would bankrupt us. The difficulty in making such rates comes through the complaints from the intermountain territory. It is difficult to make residents there see that it is just to charge them more for a shipment—to Spokane, for instance—than for the same shipment if it passes through that city and goes on to the coast.

Effect on Mountain Section.

"The mountain section would not be injured. Its present lowest freight rate is the ship rate from the east plus the local rate from Portland or other coast port back to the mountain city. This would not be changed. We are not asking to be allowed to give the port cities any added advantages over the mountain cities; we only want to compete on the coast with the cheap water transport that already belongs to these coast cities."

Mr. Sargent added that he believed the shipping companies operating through the Panama canal should be brought under the same regulations as the railroads as to rates and that a healthy competition between them and the rails should be maintained. If the permission of the interstate commerce committee were granted, he said, the western railroads within six months would make a system of freight rates to the Pacific coast which would open up that territory to Chicago manufacturers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 4.—Stocks continued to face forward today in spite of the rather bearish flavor of the day's grist of news. The steel trade journal reviews were a trifle sour, as were a number of poor earnings reports and some discouraging dividend actions, including several postponements, a few reductions, and one omission.

There were no startling gains today in any section of the list—not even among the specialties, some of which have been in a rambunctious mood for a week or more. Indeed Auburn, Worthington, and one or two others of their set felt constrained to move against the common trend, and both these worthies wound up showing substantial losses.

Improvement Is Modest.

In fact the improvement of the list as a whole was on a very modest scale, with the gains running on the average below a point and a fair sprinkling of minus signs to mar the card at the finish of business. But it was another day for the bulls and with conditions what they are and the future none too certain.

Merchandise and mail order shares essayed leadership roles in the earlier dealings of today's market, being helped by the publication of a number of favorable sales reports. Wool-

REPORTS TRADE IN WINNETKA, CALUMET CITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Figures showing the volume of retail trade in Winnetka, Ill., a residential suburb of Chicago, and Calumet City, Ill., an industrial suburb of Hammond, Ind., were made public today by the census bureau.

While the population of the two towns were approximately the same, being 12,166 for Winnetka and 12,298 for Calumet City, a marked difference in volume of retail trade was evidenced in the reports. Winnetka, with 79 retail stores, reported sales totaling $5,346,507, while sales of 92 stores in Calumet amounted to only $1,896,-451. The census bureau explained that "the retail situation in Calumet City is most unusual. This condition arises from the fact that Calumet City depends upon Hammond, Ind., for many lines of merchandise."

CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE LISTS UNITED GAS ISSUE

Share Trading Dull and Prices Work Higher.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading in the common stock of the United Gas corporation will begin today on the Chicago Stock exchange. The listing, regarded as one of the most important in several months, was formally approved by the governing committee yesterday.

Action of the governing board followed a dull trading session on the exchange which was characterized mainly by narrow price movements relieved in a few instances by moderate gains chalked up in the late ailing. The recent advance in United tates Radio was halted at least temporarily as the issue eased to 20⅞ n a volume of sales exceeding 13,000 shares.

Leader in Gas Industry.

United Gas corporation is generally looked to as one of the leading factors in the young and lusty natural gas industry. The corporation began business in its present form in June, 1930, as a holding company. It represents a combination of the former United Gas company, Louisiana Gas and Fuel company, and Magnolia Gas company, with substantial interest in several other companies previously affiliated.

The corporation is controlled by the Electric Power and Light company, which is affiliated with Electric Bond and Share. The company is engaged through its operating firms in production, transmission, and distribution of natural gas and owns large reserves.

The common stock is now traded in on the New York and Chicago curb exchanges, but is listed on neither exchange. Last year it was one of the most active issues on the New York curb and since the first of the year has been the most heavily dealt in stock. Of the 26,000,000 shares of common stock authorized 7,500,000 have been admitted to trading on the Chicago board.

Act to Prevent Gambling.

Following the example of the New York exchange officials of the Chicago exchange announced yesterday that daily sales will be reported in round numbers only. Previously exact sales were made public. As in the similar cases of the New York clearing house and the New York exchange the action was taken to prevent the figures being used as the basis for lotteries and other games of chance by outside interests.

Acquisition of the United Telephone company by Associated Telephone Utilities company was announced yesterday by Marshall E. Sampsell, president of the latter concern. The United company has properties in eleven states and in the year ended Oct. 31 reported gross earnings of $1,706,730.

Federal Judge Woodward yesterday denied without prejudice a motion for the appointment of a receiver for the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co., with the provision that the motion may be renewed when the defendants file their answer to a bill of complaint pending against them. Complaining stockholders charged the president, Frank P. Parish, and members of the board of directors with mismanagement, spreading false propaganda, and stock manipulation.

LEHMANNS PAY $375,000 FOR BOUL MICH FEE

Buy Property at No. 1000 —Merge Leasehold.

BY AL CHASE.

Merging of the fee and leasehold at 1000-1004 South Michigan avenue was accomplished yesterday by Edward J. Lehmann, Otto W. Lehmann, and Edith M. Behr purchasing the property from Edwin F. and Mabel Hyde Gillette and William S. and Delphine May Jenks, for an indicated $375,000. This is at the rate of $6,250 per front foot and $31.25 per square foot. The property fronts 60 feet on Michigan boulevard and is 200 feet deep.

The buyers own the 74 feet adjoining this parcel on the north and control the property adjoining on the south, which has a frontage of 78 feet and is improved with a seven story building, through a 198 year lease. This gives them a total frontage control of 212 feet. The property purchased yesterday and the adjoining parcel to the north is improved with a two story building.

$75,000 Initial Payment.

According to E. J. Lehmann, yesterday's merging of fee and leasehold was done to place the Lehmann interests in a better position to dispose of the 134 feet, or possibly the entire 212 feet. According to the county records the buyers have paid $75,000 for the 60 feet frontage and agree to pay at such times as may be elected by buyers or sellers within twenty years $300,000, without interest. The agreement also contains this clause: "No broker's commission in any amount shall be paid to any one by either of the parties hereto."

George F. Anderson of the, law firm of Anderson & Anderson will speak on "What a Broker Should Know About Mortgage Laws" at the regular meeting of the suburban real estate board council at the Morrison hotel today at noon.

Only 37 per cent of the people moving during the last year did so in the old moving months of April and September, and 63 per cent moved during the remaining ten months, according to Daniel T. Carroll of Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke, in a talk on "Year Round Renting" he gave at a renting and management conference last night at the Chicago real estate board.

Since 1928, said Mr. Carroll, the number of people moving in the four peak months, March, April, August, and September, has been reduced by 23,396, or 12½ per cent. Mr. Carroll is a director of the Chicago Homes Economic council since its organization and has been a leader in the creation of a year round rental season.

Henry N. Lorish Is Hopeful.

Henry N. Lorish of McKey & Poague, former chairman of the renting and management division of the board, said he saw hope for improvement at a rapid rate as soon as the unscrambling of doubled up families gets under way with an improvement in the general business situation. There have been cases, he said, where eight adults were crowded into six room apartments and seven adults into two rooms and kitchenette suites.

Albert W. Swayne, chairman of the executive committee, property owners' division; Oliver S. Turner, vice president of Baird & Warner; President Mark Levy; and Thomas J. Fleming, chairman of the renting and management division, also spoke.

Edwin H. Lindow of Detroit, president of the American Title association, now holding its annual midwinter meeting in Chicago, yesterday urged unity of action by real estate boards of the country, the mortgage bankers, and the title operators in a move to secure relief from government extravagances and to harmonize state laws governing transfers of real estate.

"Such action will bring about increasing interest in the ownership of real estate which, in turn, will revive the urge in the heart of every American to own his own home," said Mr. Lindow. "A nation of home owners will never become a nation of communists."

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

The Cadillac Motor Car company announced that it plans to "materially" step up its production schedules for the "coming spring months," as the result of indications of increasing retail business. Production figures for January, announced at the same time, show retail deliveries of 1,137 cars, as compared with 832 in the same period last year. Shipments to dealers last month were 1,223 units, contrasted with 1,025 in January, 1930.

Consumption of coffee in the United States last month, estimated by deliveries in this country, was the greatest in five years, the New York coffee and sugar exchange reports. Deliveries last month totaled 1,118,961 bags, compared with 955,930 bags in January last year. It was the largest total recorded for any single month since January, 1926, when 1,171,138 bags were delivered.

A 20 per cent increase in the use of paving brick, despite industrial depression, was reported by F. B. Dunn of Pittsburgh, acting president of the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' association, at the opening of the organization's annual convention in Pittsburgh. Saying the increase was expected to be extended in the coming year, Dunn said increased business in the paving brick industry would be reflected in other business, particularly coal, because of increased demand for fuel.

W. A. Blees, vice president in charge of sales of Oakland Motor Car company, said automobile sales since the first of the year have risen considerably above the volume predicted in early forecasts. Oakland's volume is running more than 15 per cent ahead of last year, he said.

After touching the lowest price levels since last summer cattle supplies were reduced yesterday and values turned upward. The market was strong to 25c higher, mostly 25c higher as desirable grades, with spots being 40@50c up. Hog values showed further declines, reaching new low levels since the summer of 1924. Best fat lambs held about steady, but the bulk of offerings changed hands at 25c lower prices as compared with the previous day's selling.

In the cattle market it took extra good steers to bring more than $10.00, and the best on sale brought $11.40. There were 84 head of choice 1,514 lb steers from South Dakota feed lots at that price. Some choice 1,002 lb yearlings sold at $11.50. Few other cattle sold above $10.00 and the bulk went at $7.65@9.75. Butcher stock sold on a steady to 25c higher basis, cheaper grades showing the strength. Bulls were steady and calves declined 25@ 50c.

Hogs Mostly $6.60@7.70.

Hogs sold mostly at $6.60@7.70 yesterday. A few of the best 150@180 lb butchers realized up to $7.90, the day's top. The average price for the day was $7.15, or 10c below Tuesday's average. It was a new low level for hog prices since July, 1924.

The supply of hogs yesterday was 37,000 head, but demand was limited, eastern order buyers taking only around 5,000 head. At the close of the market approximately 6,000 were still in first hands. The advance estimate for today called for 37,000 head.

Demand for best fat lambs was sufficient to hold prices about steady, but the great bulk of lambs sold at 25c lower prices. Up to $9.00 was paid for best lambs, but they sold to city butchers and eastern shippers. Packers bought most of their selections at $8.50 down. Some of the common lightweight lambs ranged down to $7.00 and below, but sales at $5.50 or under represented only common "throwouts."

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter prices dropped 2c yesterday to the lowest figures on fresh at this season in many years. Offerings were liberal and demand slow. Fresh eggs were ½c higher with offerings smaller. Live heavy hens, starks, leghorns hens and geese were 1c lower. Receipts, 2 cars and 18 trucks. Potatoes sold slowly with the market showing an easy undertone. Receipts, 83 cars with 251 cars on team track.

FAIR UPTURN COTTON

Cotton prices were on the upgrade the greater part of yesterday and finished about the top. Futures in Chicago were 10@18 points and other markets up 11@18 points. New York being the strongest. Spot prices were 15 points higher in New York at 10.85c, and 10 points up in New Orleans at 10.30c, with Galveston 10.40c and Houston 10.30c. Liverpool closed 4@5 points net higher with spot sales 5,000 bales. Trade news was in the main rather more favorable. While trading was not heavy, there appeared to be a better tone in the weekly trade review of the New York Cotton exchange. It showed a decline in India supply of cotton below last year with heavy consumption by Indian mills, despite the political disturbances. Foreign consumption of cotton also is holding up fairly, but otherwise there was said to be no important change in the situation. Europe was said to be buying in New York and American mills are taking cotton on all breaks. Weather in the south was favorable for farm work. Prices follow:

DISCERN CHANGE IN NEWS ABOUT WHEAT MARKET

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A gradual change in the character of the news surrounding the wheat market is apparent. A great deal of the pessimism seems to have vanished and the rapidity with which the heavy world shipments are being absorbed, combined with an improvement in general business and continued dry weather over the greater part of the North American wheat belt, tends to create a belief that the lowest prices of the season may have already been witnessed.

For a number of days wheat prices in Canada have been edging gradually upward. The threat of that country being forced to sell at any figure buyers cared to name has been eliminated as a market influence. At the top yesterday Winnipeg May touched 81⅜c, or nearly 12c above the inside figure of the season, and the highest since Dec. 12. The close was ¼@¾c higher than on Tuesday.

Winnipeg Leads Advance.

At the finish yesterday Winnipeg July wheat was ⅝c over the same delivery at Kansas City compared with 3¼c under on Dec 12, and was only 5½c under Chicago, against 10c discount in the middle of December, putting the American new crop deliveries more in line with those in Canada than at any time in months.

Dry weather reports are taking on a more serious tone from both the winter and spring wheat belts, and cover an unsually large area, including the south, the lack of subsoil moisture being mentioned as a factor in the cotton market. There was fairly general buying of the deferred deliveries at Chicago early with the July touching 68⅛@68⅝c, a new high on the present movement. Later the market eased around 1c on profit taking and on the forecast for showers in southwest Kansas and closed ⅝@⅞c lower for the day with July, 67⅝c, and September, 66⅝@66¼c. Old crop months were ¼c lower with March, 79⅛@79¼c, and May, 81⅞c.

After allowing for bread, seed and feed requirements it is estimated that Canada has around 222,000,000 bu still available for export, compared with 230,000,000 bu last year. Broomhall raised his estimate on world's wheat requirements 32,000,000 bu as compared with his previous figures, and makes the prospective import needs 768,000,000 bu; against 636,000,000 bu actually imported in 1929-'30. Nat C. Murray, the Clement, Curtis & Co. statistician, figures the world needs around 825,000,000, or well above the average of recent years.

Corn Reacts After Bulge.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝@⅞d higher, but is still somewhat affected by the prospects of liberal Argentine and Australian grain. Broomhall, in commenting on his increase in probable world needs, said the bulk of the extra 32,000,000 bu would be furnished by the southern hemisphere and would go largely to non-European countries.

Corn started strong and ⅛@1c higher on general commission house buying and short covering, but the technical position had apparently been weakened by the advance of 3¼c from the low of Monday. There was some reinstating of recently covered lines on the way down, and the close was at net losses of ⅝@⅝c with March, 65⅜@63⅞c; May, 65⅛@65⅝c; July, 66¼@66⅝c, and September 66⅛@66⅝c.

The continued lack of aggressive eastern demand for cash corn is regarded as counting considerably against the maintenance of bulges, as is the mild weather over the west. Purchases of 76,000 bu were reported made to arrive, including 60,000 bu from other terminals. Buenos Aires closed ¼@½c higher.

HEDGING SALES IN LARD

Liquidation and hedging pressure on lard was too much for the limited buying as hogs were liberal and prices lower yesterday. Cash trade was slow and easier both on lard and meats.
